DARRELL MAGNER FAMILY will return to Thief River Falls within the next few weeks when they move the production portion of their label manufacturing company here from the Denver, CO, area. Darrell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Magner and his wife Linda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Jorde. Their children are Kim, 12 and Kelly, 10. Darrell is president and half owner of Independent Machine service and his company has purchased the former Puetz Cabinet building (shown in the background) for use in the label making operation.

Business To Move Production Here

Announcement was made Thursday that Independent Machine Service, Inc., of Westminster, CO, will move the manufacturing portion of its operation to Thief River Falls within the next several weeks. The small company manufactures labels for use in price marking equipment.

Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Magner, both former Thief River Falls residents, said they are expanding their operation here because they could obtain real estate at one-third the cost of similar property in Colorado. John W. Rogers, a partner in the company, will remain in the Colorado suburb of Denver to handle sales, work with distributors and conduct administrative duties there.

The Magners have purchased the former Puetz Cabinet Shop building in the industrial park along the airport road in Thief River Falls. The building has about 3,000 square feet which will be more than ample for the company's equipment, storage and shipping at the present time, Magner said.

The Magners said they will be bringing one employee of the company with them and that the three people will conduct the manufacturing operation for the present time. Speculation was that the company could grow to involve six to eight employees within several years.

Darrell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Magner and a 1964 graduate of Lincoln high school. His wife is the former Linda Jorde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Jorde, who graduated from Lincoln in 1966. They have two daughters, 12-year-old Kim and 10-year-old Kelly who are in sixth and fifth grades.

Moving of equipment to Thief River Falls is expected early in February, pending the wrap-up of production runs and closing of the plant in Colorado. Magner said the equipment is quite sophisticated but not large and will not have to be disassembled for moving. He anticipated a week's time will be required to stop production in Colorado, move the equipment and have it ready for operation here.

Both Darrell and Linda will be involved in the manufacturing operation here. Their main business involves the printing, die-cutting and rolling of labels to fit various types of equipment used for attaching pressure-sensitive labels. Much of the equipment is automated.

In addition to the labels it produces, the company handles the labeling equipment, pin and string tags, plastic loop taggers, marking machines, labels, tags, shopping baskets, in-store sign materials, calculators, ribbons and paper rolls for cash registers and adding machines and paper bags and shipping room supplies.

Darrell left Thief River Falls in 1965 when he volunteered to be drafted into the marine corps and served 13 months of a two-year enlistment in Vietnam. He married Linda when he returned to Thief River Falls on leave in 1967 and they moved to California where he completed his military service and took employment.

He worked for another company in the label industry

Rail Shippers Meeting To Be Held Thursday

Options for improving track conditions and rail service on Burlington Northern's Marcoux Corner to Warroad line will be discussed at a meeting in the basement of the city auditorium at 7 p.m. Thursday, January 5.

That meeting had originally been scheduled for December 15, but was canceled due to inclement weather.

Meeting is being organized by the Northwest regional development commission to discuss the current status of the line and options for rehabilitating it with shippers and other interested parties. Formation of a shipper's association to address problems of the line and monitor developments will be addressed. Area legislators and Minnesota department of transportation personnel are expected to be present to lend their assistance and discuss the Minnesota rail service improvement program.

10-Ton Routes To Be Topic Of Meeting Here

Effectiveness of 10-ton highway routes in meeting the shipping needs of northwestern Minnesota will be reviewed at a meeting of the Northwest regional development commission's transportation advisory committee, to be held at 7 p.m. Monday, January 9, in the basement meeting room of Thief River Falls auditorium.

According to Wayne Goeken of NWRDC, 10-ton routes are essential to the efficient movement of agricultural commodites from the region. He notes that currently, various trunk highway routes are opened up to 10-ton loads at different times throughout the year, primarily after spring weight restrictions are removed.

Also to be reviewed at the meeting will be the current status of Burlington Northern's rail line between Marcoux Corner and Warroad, options for improving track conditions and service.

Myles Koop Held On $100,000 Bond . . .

Attempted First Degree Murder Charge Is Filed

MYLES KOOP, pictured above as he presided at an organizational meeting of a men's rights group last January, has been charged with attempted first degree murder and first degree aggravated assault. Charges result from an attack on his former wife and two companions with a tire iron Wednesday afternoon. The charges were read in Pennington county court Friday, first appearance in district court was set for January 9 at 9:30 a.m., and he was ordered held under $100,000 bond.

Charges of attempted first degree murder and aggravated assault were filed Friday morning in Pennington county court against Myles Koop, 38, of rural Thief River Falls. Koop is charged with attacking his former wife, Aloma Koop, and two companions with a tire iron shortly after 4 p.m. Wednesday in the Northwestern hospital parking lot in Thief River Falls.

Koop was arrested at the scene by Thief River Falls police officers who were summoned by a telephone call from the hospital desk. Other victims of the attack were Connie Grandstrand of Thief River Falls and John Hesse of Circle Pines.

County attorney David M. Olin charged Koop with attempted first degree murder and aggravated assault in the first degree for the beating of Aloma Koop, and separate counts of aggravated assault in the second degree for the injuries inflicted on Connie Grandstrand and John Hesse.

In reading the charges, Judge J. A. Harren noted that attempted first degree murder carries a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison; first degree aggravated assault has a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison, a $20,000 fine, or both; and second degree aggravated assault carries a maximum sentence of five years in prison, a $10,000 fine, or both and a minimum sentence of one year and one day in prison.

The judge also explained to the defendant that the initial court appearance was to accomplish five objectives: (1) Inform him of the charges against him; (2) inform him of his rights as a defendant; (3) determine his representation by legal counsel; (4) set a time for his appearance in district court where all further proceedings would be held; and (5) determine his status between his county court appearance and the first appearance in district court.

Koop waived reading of the complaint against him, having been provided with a copy shortly after entering the courtroom and waiting for arrival of the judge. He requested a court-appointed attorney and, following completion of an affidavit which he filled out in the courtroom, he was assigned Dennis Murphy, assistant public defender, to serve as his legal counsel.

County attorney Olin requested that bond be set at $100,000, stating that he believed the defendant could possibly attempt further harm to Aloma Koop. Myles Koop suggested that a $20,000 bond be ordered, and after a $100,000 bond had been ordered, asked Judge Harren to reduce bond to $50,000, indicating he could raise that amount. The judge said that he had set the bond at $100,000 and that it would remain so, but that the defendant's counsel could request reconsideration.

In addition to setting the $100,000 bond, Judge Harren set the first district court appearance for 9:30 a.m. Monday, January 9.

Investigation report filed by officer Dennis O. Kiesow of the Thief River Falls police department reconstructed events leading up to the arrest. The investigation included questioning of the victims and several people who were witnesses to at least part of the incident.

No Charge Filed In Hulda Wold Traffic Death

What had originally been considered a hit-and-run accident that resulted in the death of an 81-year-old Thief River Falls woman Wednesday has been found through investigation to require no filing of charges.

Mrs. Hulda Wold died at Northwestern hospital Wednesday evening, after having been struck by a vehicle while crossing Third street about 140 feet east of the intersection with Horace avenue. She was reportedly crossing the street from south to north when the accident happened.

Local police were contacted by the hospital when an ambulance was dispatched to pick up Mrs. Wold at her apartment at 409 Atlantic av. N., less than two blocks from where the accident happened. Since no accident had been reported, it was assumed that the driver had left the scene.

Description received from witnesses at the scene resulted in the police later contacting Shawn Newland, 20, Thief River Falls, and impounding the vehicle she was driving.

Investigation of the accident and statements from witnesses revealed that the Newland vehicle had struck Mrs. Wold at about 5 p.m. and that Miss Newland had stopped, given her name to Mrs. Wold and asked if she wanted to be taken to the hospital. Mrs. Wold declined the offer, according to the police report, and asked to be taken home. Miss Newland gave her a ride to her apartment, and a resident of a neighboring apartment again heard Miss Newland provide Mrs. Wold with her name.

When Mrs. Wold's condition apparently worsened, the resident of the neighboring apartment called for an ambulance to take her to the hospital where she died about two hours later. Although Mrs. Wold sustained only a fractured arm as a result of being struck by the vehicle, the police department said, the death is being considered a traffic fatality.

Because of the actions of Miss Newland in offering assistance and identification, Police Chief Ken Froschheiser said, she could not have been considered as leaving the scene of an accident. There were apparently no other traffic violations involved in the incident.

"Our officers are aware that it is sometimes their duty to establish innocence as well as to determine guilt," Chief Froschheiser said, "and I'm convinced that this is one of those situations. If any charge were to be made in this case it would be a petty misdemeanor charge of filing to report an accident. It doesn't appear that the circumstances warrant such a charge being issued."

Lifeline Sets Celebration

Babson Forecast Predicts Continued Business Rise

By Babson's Reports Inc., Wellesley Hills, Mass., December 29, 1983. A year ago the American economy was mired in the trough of a recession which had dealt out severe punishment. The impact upon some regions reportedly was on a scale not seen in a half century. Understandably, therefore, the chorus of derision concerning the Reagan Administration's sustained hopeful views on prospects for the economy was multi-decibel, and — save for the pyrotechnics of the stock market — public sentiment seemed devoid of hope.

But undaunted by the deep gloom which enveloped the nation, Babson's Forecast indicated that a more hopeful view toward business for 1983 was in order.

The note of encouragement was predicated upon the handful of vital improvements which had developed during 1982. Chief among the clues of an impending healthier economy cited were the radically diminished levels of inflation and interest rates. Also, there were benefits to be reaped from corporate efforts to curtail overhead and operating expenses, improve productivity, wring out burdensome inventories, and rebuild financial strength. The upshot was an economy on sounder ground than in a number of years, presaging better business in 1983 than was generally perceived in the waning days of 1982.

Recovery Exceeded Expectations

While first quarter 1983 showed betterment along the lines the cautiously optimistic Babson forecast had envisioned, the business upturn seemed tentative and offered no hint of the impending surge of economic vitality. During the second 1983 quarter, strength in personal consumption expenditures and home building produced an incredible 9.7 per cent advance in the real GNP. While the pace of the uptrend tailed off somewhat thereafter, the economy's performance for the year as a whole clearly outstripped expectations.

Confidence, Credibility and Momentum

In viewing prospects for 1984, Babson's Reports rests its case for an extension of the business uptrend in 1984 upon three key considerations: confidence, credibility, and momentum. The strength of the economy throughout 1983 has rejuvenated business and consumer confidence, which is being translated into demand for goods and services, and more expansive — though still wisely guarded — inventory accumulation and capital-expenditure budgets in business circles. Furthermore, there has been a deepening conviction that the economic recovery has staying power. Unlike the state of public sentiment a year ago, and even as recently as mid-1983, fears that the uptrend in business is headed for an early demise are largely confined to those still unable to establish employment connections. In short, the economic recovery has now gained unquestioned credibility. Its forward thrust has been building for some time and there is still considerable momentum going into 1984.

1984 — Solid, Consistent Business Pace

Following the explosive display of vigor last spring, the tempo of economic activity tempered somewhat in the final two quarters of the year. In the third quarter real GNP advanced at an annual rate of nearly 8 per cent and our estimate for the final 1983 quarter is on the order of a 5½ per cent gain. While the distinct deceleration is viewed with discomfort in some circles, Babson's feels that the throttling down of the rate of business advance from the lofty 9.7 per cent pace of the second quarter was a good sign. The slower tempo renders the economic uptrend sustainable for a longer period of time than might have been the case had the convulsive upward vault last spring been succeeded by equally forceful advances. Such a scenario would have meant an overheated economy with resultant dangerous strains upon the nation's productive facilities, manpower, material resources, and financial structure, a condition disastrous to the vital task of keeping inflation and interest rates tolerable.

Hence, Babson's expects the economy to experience the second phase of its now year-long cyclical expansion in 1984. Our forecast is for economic activity to trend consistently upward

Karen Marie Berg Weds Ronald T. Seaworth

Karen Marie Berg and Ronald Theodore Seaworth, both of Fargo, N.D., exchanged marriage vows on Nov. 12, 1983 at 3:00 p.m., at Zion Lutheran church in Viking.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Berg of rural Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Ted Seaworth of rural New Windsor, Ill.

Rev. Robert Moberg officiated at the double ring ceremony. At the organ was Gloria Ness, a friend of the bride. She played "One Hand, One Heart," as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. During the ceremony, Jane Olson, a cousin of the bride, sang "God, A Woman and A Man," and "Love Grows Here."

Vases of blue and white carnations graced the altar. On either side were candelabra featuring candles in two shades of blue.

For her wedding, the bride wore her mother's wedding gown of satin and lace. The gown was styled with a Chantilly lace-over-satin bodice with long, fitted lace sleeves and a Queen Anne collar. Alternating tiers of lace and tulle complemented the skirt. Her figure-tip veil of bridal illusion, edged with lace, was held by a lace, cap-styled headpiece trimmed with pearls and iridescents. She carried five white rosebuds, surrounded by babies' breath.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Pam Boe, Ames, Iowa, a sister. Bridesmaids were Lynnae Rud, Moorhead, a cousin of the groom and friend of the bride, and Sandy Berg, Thief River Falls, a sister of the bride. They wore street-length gowns of silver-blue floral sateen, featuring blouson tops with bateau necklines, accented with gold necklaces. They carried three long-stemmed blue and white carnations.

Wearing a light blue satin, knee-length dress was the flower girl, Tonya Seaworth, Rockford, Ill., a niece of the groom.

Randy Seaworth, Rockford, Ill., attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Rory Lindquist, Grand Forks, N.D., a friend of the groom, and Chris Taylor, Thief River Falls, a cousin of the bride. Serving as ushers were Larry Rud, Warren, an uncle of the groom, and David Hanson, Moorhead, a friend of the couple. They wore medium blue tuxedos with cream colored shirts, vests and bow ties. Their boutonnieres were white carnations. The groom was attired in a navy blue tuxedo, white shirt and navy blue vest and bow tie. His boutonniere was a single white rosebud.

The mother of the bride was attired in a royal blue street-length dress with lace inserts at the neckline and on the long sleeves. Her corsage was a white orchid. A full-blown white rose, tipped in blue, complemented the navy blue and white print dress worn by the groom's mother.

Special guests were the bride's grandmothers: Lilas Klefstad, who wore a two-piece raspberry red suit, and Gertie Berg, who was attired in a dusty pink, long-sleeved, dress with an overlay of lace on the shoulders.

Lisa Judorsky, East Grand Forks, a friend of the bride, was the bride's personal attendant.

Approximately 100 relatives and friends attended the reception which followed in the church parlors. Host and hostess were Starr and Bill Gobtop, Rockford, Ill., sister and brother-in-law of the groom. Mrs. Nancy Lindquist, Grand Forks, a friend of the couple, registered the guests. At the punch bowl were Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hible, Grand Forks, cousins of the bride.

The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with blue flowers and topped with the same ornament that graced the bride's parents' wedding cake. The cake was baked by the bride's mother and was cut and served by Mrs. JoAnn Peters, Viking, godmother of the bride, and Mrs. Linda Seaworth, Rockford, Ill., sister-in-law of the groom. Pouring coffee were the bride's aunts, Mrs. Sharon Brahosky and Mrs. Judy Taylor of Thief River Falls.

The Best Western was the scene of the groom's supper hosted by his parents.

The bride is a 1980 graduate of Warren high school and a 1982 graduate of St. Luke's school of Nursing, Fargo, N.D. She is employed as a registered nurse in the intensive care nursery at St. Luke's hospital in Fargo. The groom is a graduate of Winola high school, Viola, Ill., and is self-employed as a body man.

Christmas Noted At Setesdal By Former Members

Setesdal Lutheran church, 14 miles northeast of Thief River Falls, was the scene of the fifth annual Christmas program at 5:00 p.m., on Tuesday, December 27.

Since the church has been closed for some time, except for Christmas and Memorial day services, lighting was entirely by candles placed in the windows, on the piano, organ, baptism fount, altar table, pulpit and Christmas tree. In recognition of the pioneers who settled in this area, the suspended wagon wheel decorated with Christmas greens was also graced with candles; and as in pioneer days, responsible individuals monitored the candles.

The program began with Courtney Mostrom Ose playing "The First Noel," as the prelude. Loiell O. Dyrud welcomed the group, which included former members of the congregation, neighbors and visitors. All joined in singing "O Come All Ye Faithful," with Mrs. Philip Dyrud playing the old pump organ.

Devotions were led by Steven Anderson. He read Psalm 24, stressing verse 1, "The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof; the world and they that dwell therein;" and verses 9 and 10, "Lift up your heads O ye gates, even lift them up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of Glory shall come in. Who is this King of Glory: The Lord of Hosts, He is the King of Glory." The devotional also included the Scandinavian hymn, "Deilig er den Himmel Bla," by Maren Dyrud with her brother Lars as pianist, and a Christmas meditation, written and read by Mrs. Steven Anderson.

During the lighting of the Christmas tree, as Mrs. Edwin Anderson lit the 20 candles, the audience sang "How glad I am each Christmas Eve," with every other verse sung in Norwegian.

The Christmas message, given by Harvey Dyrud, was based on Isaiah 9:6 "For unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given: and the government shall be upon His shoulder; and his Name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace." He concluded by reading Rev. 19:16 "He will be King of Kings and Lord of Lords."

The program concluded with a violin and accordion duet, "Silent Night" by Courtney and Nickolena Mostrom Ose and the Christmas carol "Angels We Have Heard on High," sung by Hope, Tamara, Heidi and Sarah Dyrud with Philip Dyrud as accompanist. The benediction was given by Rev. Les Galland.

A social hour with Christmas treats followed the program.

It was noted that the offering will be used for preservation of the church and upkeep of the cemetery.

'84 Forecast Predicts Rise In Business

throughout the year but, with pent-up consumer and business demand less compelling, the further upswing in business will proceed on a smoother basis, devoid of the out-sized bulge which had occurred in 1983's second quarter. Many hitherto laggard industries will join in, making for a sturdier, broader advance in 1984. Fundamentally, the steadier upward progression in business will be more tenable, albeit less spectacular due to the likelihood that the element of volatility will be diminished.

Look for New Sources of Upthrust

During 1983 home building, automobile production and consumer spending provided much of the upthrust for the economy's recovery. Now that recovery is giving way to expansion, it appears that fresh sources of impetus will provide the leadership for business in 1984. Babson's anticipates that new residential building will remain in a high range, through upward momentum from this sector waned in the later stages of 1983. After mortgage rates moved back upward there was a definite leveling off in home building. Thus 1984 is not likely to experience a fresh upsurge akin to 1983's first half.

Spurred by active demand at the retail level, automobile production was stepped up as 1983 progressed. This provided good upthrust to the economy. Babson's expects new car purchases to hold up well in 1984, production rates in the year ahead will not show much added acceleration from rates which have prevailed this past fall.

Except for a few soft spots early in the year, retail trade was an important fuel for the climb in business during 1983. This culminated in a very gratifying display of vibrance as the year drew to a close. However, whereas new home building and auto production seem destined to be bolstering influences for the economy in 1984, consumer spending can continue to generate fresh upward impetus for business over the year ahead. Additional vitality will likely be contributed by business capital spending, defense expenditures, and business inventory accumulation, although all will be of only moderate upward intensity.

Gross National Product

Babson's Reports forecasts that the nation's real gross national product (the value of goods and services produced, in 1972 dollars) will trend consistently upward in 1984, although there may be some tapering off late in the year. The rate of quarterly increases will probably range around 5½ per cent, slightly below the estimated 6.2 per cent average for 1983 due to the more moderate advance. Nevertheless, the steady, sustainable uptrek will have a good deal of substance and enable 1984's average quarterly reading of the real GNP to post a 5½ per cent year-to-year increment versus the estimated 3½ per cent average gain estimated for 1983.

Industrial Production

The Federal Reserve Index of Industrial Production is also expected to chalk up good gains in 1984. For this indicator — which measures physical volume (not dollar value) of output of the nation's factories, mines, and utilities — the further upward trek will be pretty consistent as was the case in 1983. Look for industrial production to average about 5 per cent above the past year. This year-to-year increase will only approximate the estimated gain for 1983, but in some respects the achievement may turn out to be more formidable. For example, production in 1983 snapped back from the low point for the recession and while an increasing number of industries did experience more vibrant operations as the year progressed, consumer-oriented lines and suppliers thereto led the rebound. We look for broader participation in 1984's advance as industries which normally lag turns in economic cycles commence to benefit from the expansion phase.

Business Inventories

Doubts concerning the probable vigor and durability of the business recovery were followed by surprise over the outburst of vitality in the second 1983 quarter. Consequently, businessmen were slow to shift their thinking on inventory policy and stockpiles were worked further downward through mid-year before some rebuilding took place in the second half. We forecast that inventory accumulation will be distinct and persistent in 1984. This development will figure prominently in the upward trends of both the gross national product and industrial production. The largely hand-to-mouth buying policies of 1983 will give way to increased emphasis upon forward buying. More comfortable inventory positions will be deemed necessary since productive capacity utilization is approaching the theoretical level of maximum efficiency and there is no sign of abatement in demand. However, memories are still vivid concerning the recent period of inventory liquidation and renewed accumulation will doubtless be approached gingerly.

Business Capital Expenditures

Business investment in new plant and equipment did not play much of a role in the recovery phase of economic activity in 1983. This was quite normal since there was a good deal of idle productive capacity available. However, capacity utilization rates overall have risen past 80 per cent, and the point of theoretical maximum efficiency is no longer far distant. Thus, in recent months, there have been increasing reports of planned boosts in capital outlay budgets. This trend should continue, and become more pronounced in 1984. Lending credence to this is the fact that business has been able to strengthen its financial position. Also, in recent years unprofitable, and only marginally profitable plants have been either closed or sold. Thus, business is better positioned to step up capital outlays. Still, we look for such projects to be selective and geared primarily toward productivity enhancement rather than large-scale expansions of production capacity. Our forecast is for a 10 per cent hike in 1984 business capital spending over 1983, after two "down" years in such investments.

Building and Construction

A stellar performer during portions of 1982 and 1983, new housing starts will likely be a sustaining influence at best to economic activity in 1984. While demand for housing is still compelling, the level of mortgage rates turned back upward in 1983. Although still well below the unbearable high rates of the late 1970s and early 1980s, and although the availability of mortgage credit is also better than it was then, the "affordability" factor is less of a plus for home buying than it was during much of the past two years. Hence, Babson's forecast is for new private nonfarm housing starts to average around 1.7 million in the year ahead, approximating the achievement for 1983.

Employment-Personal Income

During the first half of 1983 there was only a minuscule downward shading in the unemployment rate. This was a point of vocal discontent among the jobless and the Administration's critics. The unemployment rate was, and still is, serious indeed, but those who equated the painstakingly slow improvement with an emaciated economy blithely overlooked the healthy, unmistakable uptrend in nonfarm employment totals, month after month. Babson's foresees a continuation of the favorable employment climate. Look for nonfarm employment to move higher in 1984 on the strength of a broader roster of industries sharing in the economy's expansion. However, it will be difficult to duplicate the sparkling performance in which substantive and virtually uninterrupted monthly employment gains were racked up in 1983. The encouraging, and surprisingly distinct, reduction in the jobless rate over the second half of 1983 also will be difficult to repeat in 1984. However, some downward shading is likely, and the unemployment rate will average 7½ per cent.

High levels of employment and expected wage hikes should enable personal income to trend higher in 1984. Indeed, Babson's expectation is that the year-to-year gains in personal income will average higher than the achievements of 1983. Moreover, with the final part of the three-stage federal income tax cut for individuals in effect for full 1984 — versus only a half year in 1983 — the advance in take-home pay will be even more substantive. However, there is some question as to the degree of betterment in real buying power, as inflation is currently expected to be up at least moderately in 1984. Nevertheless, personal income should be a plus for consumer confidence.

Consumer and Government Spending

Although spotty at times early in the year, retail trade was a vital force helping to lift the economy in 1983. The superb Christmas selling season mirrored heightened consumer confidence. While some of the pent-up demand was satiated during the past year's buying, the optimistic personal income-employment scenario we envision for 1984 will be more than equal to the task of boosting retail trade 10 per cent over 1983.

Another source of vitality for the economy in 1984 will be government expenditures. An important aspect will be outlays for defense, which will spur demand for manpower and raw materials. But there will be increased expenditures for a wide range of basic services at the federal level also.

Corporate Profits—Dividends

The strong business recovery produced a snapback in corporate profits in 1983. However, benefits of cost-cutting and productivity-enhancement programs initiated during the recession heightened profitability, enabling the past year to rack up an estimated 15 per cent gain in corporate profits after taxes. We forecast an even more impressive advance in net corporate profits — up as much as 25 per cent in 1984. Babson's forecast is for more liberal dividend disbursements in 1984. There will be instances of dividend hikes and extras over the year ahead.

Farm Outlook

The nation's farm sector is still deeply beset by problems. However, a ray of light did appear in some sectors in 1983. With some easing in the ultra-strong U.S. dollar likely in 1984, slightly better farm exports could develop. This could nudge overall farm prices somewhat higher and make for further moderate recovery in farm incomes. But many farmers are still in deep financial trouble, and farm surpluses remain burdensome despite 1983's disastrous crop outturn.

Inflation — Prices

Despite the strong business recovery, inflation remained very tolerable and of the "creeping" variety in 1983. There were only upward shadings early on, but the trend bent more noticeably upward later in the year. However, brisker demand ranging from raw materials to finished goods is bound to spawn a wider array of price markups and boosts in costs over the coming year. Babson's predicts that monthly advances in the Consumer Price Index will average around 5½ per cent of 1984, less commendable than in 1983, but of only moderate intensity.

Still generally adequate supplies of materials and productive capacity will prevent runaway industrial prices in 1984, but quotes will be higher. Although key farm carryovers are still burdensome, the effects of the drought last summer presage hikes of varying degree in agricultural and food prices (particularly livestock and meat).

Interest Rates — Money & Credit

Early 1984 months, and perhaps to midyear could see some slippage in short-term interest rates of around 1 per cent to 2 per cent, but look for a flip back thereafter. Overall, not much change in either short- or long-term rates. Babson's expects the Federal Reserve to continue to balance its monetary policy between reasonable business credit needs and keeping the lid on inflationary pressures, a course dictated by prospects of substantial federal budget deficits in coming years.

Foreign Affairs

Stock and Bond Outlook

Despite an advance of more than 250 points on the Dow Jones industrial average during 1983, the stock market was sluggish at times and beset by strong crosscurrents. Over much of the year investors worried about the possible effects of looming massive federal deficits. Nevertheless, the stock market did advance into new high ground with plenty of room to spare. The DJIA paraded past the 1200 mark and near year's end had the 1300 level dead in sight. What can the market do for an encore in 1984? Basically, Babson's Reports is still optimistic over prospects for the year ahead. At this point, it is premature to think in terms of an imminent reversal of the uptrend which began in August of 1982. Babson's feels that there is still significant headway to be made over the year ahead. For the record, our forecast is for stock prices to trend higher in 1984 with the Dow Jones industrial average fluctuating between 1150 on the lower end of the year's range and 1450 on the upside. If stronger than currently expected momentum develops, the DJIA could even be thrust into the 1500 area. An important premise for our optimism is the forecast that investor confidence will be heightened by expectations that corporate profits will be heightened by expectations that corporate profits will experience signal betterment quantitatively and qualitatively. A strong re-election bid by President Reagan and reasonably well-confined levels of inflation and interest rates are also central to sustained investor confidence.

Thus, Babson's recommends adhering to an investment policy which is primarily optimistic. Investors can still find good values for growth, capital appreciation, and income to build and augment investment portfolios suitable for individual requirements. The bond market is not expected to experience material change in the year ahead.

SPRING SPORTS activities at Lincoln high school were presented with a $1,000 gift from the Lutheran Brotherhood allocation fund recently to help sponsor the activities for the coming year. One student from each of the sports was chosen to accept the check on behalf of the school and approximately 110 participants. In back is Dave Onkka, boy's golf, and in front (left to right) are Dan Imgrund, tennis; Bill Benedict, baseball, and Cindy Kain, girl's golf. Jan Nordin presented the check as a representative of the local board of directors of the Lutheran Brotherhood allocation fund. Thief River Falls school board has designated the four spring sports activities to be community funded, with approximately $7,500 needed to meet expenses.

New Business To Locate Here In February

for four years in California and three and one-half years in the Denver area before starting his own business about seven years ago. Linda had worked at the Hartz grocery store and Hartz Wholesale here after graduating from high school.

Announcement of the new business for Thief River Falls was made at a news conference called at the office of Jobs Incorporated in Thief River Falls. Mayor Bob Carlson welcomed the couple back to Thief River Falls and expressed his pleasure at another business locating here. Ev Ault, president of Jobs Incorporated, said he was glad to see the new activity for the community and Stan Upham, president of the chamber of commerce, encouraged the Magners to call on the organization if it could be of any assistance.

Mayor Carlson also commented to Jerry Sandstrom, executive vice president of Jobs Incorporated, that this is the type of activity that was anticipated when local government units authorized allocations to promote location of business here. He also noted that the greatest expectation for success lay in attracting a number of small companies.

The Magners said they are pleased to be back in their home community and excited about developing their business here.

Koop Charged In Attempted Murder Case

The report indicates that Aloma Koop and Connie Grandstrand had left the hospital where they work at about 4:15 p.m. and gotten into Aloma Koop's car which was driven by John Hesse — Aloma in the front passenger seat and Connie in the rear seat. At that time Myles Koop reportedly drove his pickup into the hospital driveway and blocked the path of the Aloma Koop car.

The report states that he got out of the pickup with the tire iron, smashed the window on the front passenger side of the Aloma Koop car and began jabbing at her with the tire iron. When Grandstrand attempted to put her shoe bag between the tire iron and Aloma Koop's head, she was jabbed under the right eye with the sharp end of the tire iron.

As Aloma Koop retreated to the middle of the seat, Myles Koop reportedly went to the driver's side and smashed that window. Aloma Koop opened the door and attempted to run into the hospital, the report states, but Myles Koop caught her, knocked her down near the hospital doors and continued the attack with the tire iron.

The report states that Hesse came up behind Koop and threw him aside, and then was struck a number of times with the tire iron before he managed to tackle Koop, get him on the ground and hold him there until Deputy Chief Duane Holland and officer Vern Cleven arrived.

It is noted in the report that Aloma Koop suffered multiple lacerations on her right eyebrow, her right eye was protruding, her left eye had a laceration, her right first finger and knee were lacerated, her hand had multiple fractures and she had suffered fractures on both the left and right frontal part of her skull. She was transferred to a Grand Forks hospital for further care.

Connie Grandstrand sustained a laceration near the eye and John Hesse sustained head injuries and a dislocated shoulder, the report indicates.

Following adjournment of the court appearance before Judge Harren Friday, Myles Koop asked to make a statement to the press. He stated that Wednesday was the breaking point in a 30-month battle for custody of his two sons (he had been awarded custody but no child support about two weeks previously) and other items related to his divorce. He said he had been under medication but had run out of the medicine a few days earlier.

He claimed a double standard in divorce proceedings, stating that local authorities would enforce court orders obtained against him by his former wife but would not enforce orders which he had obtained. On the day of the attack, the Koops had attended a hearing in conciliation court. Koop said he had gone to the law enforcement center to obtain assistance in carrying out a court order to have some of his furniture returned. When the assistance was refused, he said, "that's when I lost my mind".

Koop said until he read the complaint at the court appearance that morning he was unaware of what had taken place in the incident for which he is being charged.

Koop has been active in formation of the Northwest Family Rights association and an outspoken critic of the court system in divorce cases. He was featured in a Times article Dec. 29, 1982, as the start of a series on divorce court action and the beginning of a men's rights movement here. He was also featured with his sons, Ross, 10 and Ron, 15, in a Crookston Times article last week dealing with a Northwest Family Rights association meeting scheduled in that city.

Ceramics Is Featured At BSU Gallery

Between painting and pottery, in the realm between creating on a flat surface and shaping an object in space, is ceramics. From January 4 to 25, the Talley gallery will feature works in ceramics by Butch Holden, assistant professor of art at Bemidji state university (BSU).

Holden, whose work has been exhibited across the Midwest, stretches the boundary between pottery and drawing by creating orbs, animal shapes, functional and decorative items that combine the techniques of both disciplines into art giving shape to the imagination.

According to Holden, a work of art is a dialogue between the artist and the medium. As it is made, animation is brought to the work, the lifeless becoming alive as shape, color and tecture combine.

Public is invited to attend the opening reception for Butch Holden at the Talley gallery on Wednesday, January 4 from 7 to 9 p.m. with a gallery talk being given at 8 p.m.

For more information about the exhibit, contact the Talley gallery in the education-art building at Bemidji state university, or call 755-3939.

RLF Hospital Survey Forms Are Reviewed

Thirty-two per cent of people provided with survey forms for hospital service in the Red Lake Falls area responded to the effort by returning the completed forms, according to a report on the survey summary published last week in the Red Lake Falls Gazette. The survey had been undertaken as part of the effort to retain hospital service in Red Lake Falls.

The hospital is under ownership of American Healthcare Management, Inc., of Dallas, TX. Tony Schmitz, hospital administrator, told the Gazette he will meet with officials of the parent company at Crookston in January. It is expected the future of the hospital may be decided after that meeting.

A total of 2,845 survey forms were sent to residents of Red Lake Falls, Dorothy, Oklee, Plummer, Mentor, Brooks, St. Hilaire and Gentilly and only 924 were returned, including 583 from Red Lake Falls and Dorothy, 95 from Oklee and 51 from Plummer.

Of the people returning the questionnaire, 172 were 70 years of age or older and 171 were in the 31-40 age group. Third largest return (517) was from people in the 61-70 age group.

Seven hundred and forty people indicated that they or a member of their family had been a patient of a Red Lake Falls physician at some time in the past. In response to the question of what would encourage them to see a Red Lake Falls doctor, 75 said only an emergency situation, 67 said the assurance that present physicians would stay in Red Lake Falls and 60 said they were satisfied with the present alternative.

The survey also asked information on visits to specific physicians and response indicated general satisfaction and a willingness to see the same doctor again.

Slightly less than 45 per cent (495) of the respondents listed Red Lake Falls as the place where they regularly see a physician. Another 307 listed Thief River Falls and 154 specified Crookston as the place they receive regular medical treatment. Convenient location was listed as the top reason for selection of a specific doctor, followed by previous experience with seeing the same physician.

Responding to a question on why they would choose a certain hospital, 63 listed closeness of hospital to home, 34 listed quality of the hospital building and rooms, 28 said recommendation by doctors, 18 cited reputation of the hospital for services provided and only two listed cost of procedures needed.

REFLECTI NS

My neighbor complained because his kids were ruining his lawn with their vigorous games. I went home and cried . . . because I have lost a son and I would dearly love to see him scampering around the bases in back of our house again. I would care little about the appearance of my grass, the sight of my boy playing happily again would be a far more beautiful sight. My neighbor's priorities are not mine, but then he has not felt the pain of loss that I have experienced. Enjoy your children now while they are with you.

Child Narrowly Misses Injury From Grader

A near mishap on Thursday has prompted city crews to issue a warning to parents of young children in the community regarding children playing in piles of snow pushed up by city snow removal crews.

A grader operator Thursday reportedly narrowly missed striking a child while moving snow in the Northwestern Trailer court area on Frist street. The youngster, estimated to be about 10 years old, had apparently tunneled into the bank pushed up by the plow in clearing the street and was playing in the tunnel when the plow came by to move the snow again.

"The plow must have missed him by inches and he came tumbling out of the hole," a street employee said. He added that often children tunnel into the snow banks from the side away from the street which makes the tunnels even more difficult to detect.

The employee urged parents to advise their children of the dangers of playing in areas where equipment is or will be operating, especially near the street where snow removal is accomplished whenever time and conditions permit.

UNSUNG HEROES

AMERICA'S FARMERS

The American farmer is the world's most productive. He is helped in his work by a host of remarkable crop protection chemicals.

When you hear the word "farmer," do you picture "American Gothic" or Old McDonald? Here's a more accurate image: the American farmer of today is likely to be a highly-educated executive, an international businessman equipped with computers and sophisticated production and marketing skills that would put many non-farm businesses to shame.

The American farmer is the world's most productive. Each farm worker raises enough food to feed not only himself, but 78 other people.

Helping the farmer of the 80s get the most out of his crop yields are a variety of agricultural chemicals from companies such as Du Pont—chemicals to protect crops from insects, nematodes and fungus, chemicals that control weeds and brush and guard seeds from decay and blight.

One of the newest crop protection chemicals from the company is Glean, a selective, environmentally safe chemical that kills weeds and grass while leaving crops like wheat and oats unharmed. It is also non-toxic to mammals.

Its most distinctive feature: less than one ounce is needed for one acre of crops, compared to several pounds for conventional herbicides. Farmers can choose whether to use it before the crop germinates or shortly afterwards.

It's yet another tool that America's farmers are using to help us remain the best fed nation on earth, while contributing importantly to the food supply of millions in other nations as well.

WMB Issues Hazardous Waste Management Draft

New state programs to encourage Minnesota industries to reduce their hazardous waste generation and to assist in the development of new hazardous waste treatment facilities — as well as long-term goals for hazardous waste reduction in Minnesota — are among key recommendations of the draft hazardous waste management plan, issued by the waste management board (WMB) December 21 at a meeting at the State Capitol in St. Paul.

In addition to issuing the draft hazardous waste managemement plan, the board also issued the draft certificate of need for hazardous waste disposal. Rather than determining the need for a hazardous waste disposal facility — a facility was mandated by the legislature in 1980 — the certificate of need will define the types and volumes of hazardous wastes that will require secure disposal in Minnesota through the year 2000.

Both "draft" documents have been issued by the board for public comment, and will be the subjects of a public hearing beginning at 9 a.m. January 16, 1984, in Room 112, State Capitol Building, St. Paul. Following the hearing and a public comment period the board will further revise the draft plan and draft certificate of need before forwarding the two documents — and their specific recommendations — to the 1984 session of the legislature.

The board has termed the hazardous waste management plan its "most important responsibility," and board chairman Robert Dunn added that the plan is designed to provide Minnesota with long-term overall policies for managing Minnesota's hazardous wastes "through the remainder of this century, and beyond."

The issuance of the draft hazardous waste management plan is one of the board's three primary hazardous wate management responsbilities. In August the board completed it "inventory of preferred areas" for hazardous waste processing facilities, and the board is expected to select at least one hazardous waste disposal or retrievable storage site by early 1987.

The draft hazardous waste management plan, as required by state law, emphasizes "feasible and prudent" alternatives to the land-disposal of hazardous wastes, including waste reduction, pretreatment, separation, resource recovery, recycling and retrievable storage.

In the draft plan the board sets a long-term goal of "high waste reduction" for Minnesota, calling for a 31 per cent overall reduction in Minnesota's hazardous waste generation by that date. The goal is based on the board's estimates of the fullest extent to which hazardous wastes could be reduced in Minnesota through changes in industrial processes and "feedstock" substitutions in manufacturing and industrial operations.

To further promote hazardous waste reduction the draft plan recommends five specific programs:

+ A program of technical assistance by the state — possibly operated, the board suggests, through the University of Minnesota — that would provide industries with information on waste reduction practices and techniques.

+ A related program — which also might be undertaken through the state's university system — to research and investigate new ways of applying waste reduction measures and practices to Minnesota industries.

+ Grants — not to exceed $30,000 each — to fund feasibility studies of applying waste reduction techniques to existing industrial processes in Minnesota.

+ A program of special government awards to single out and publicize special achievements in waste reduction by Minnesota industry.

+ Tax credits for the installation of equipment needed to reduce hazardous waste generation from existing processes.

The draft plan also recommends programs to encourage the development of new hazardous waste treatment facilities as alternatives to land-disposal, including:

+ A program of grants of no more than $50,000 each to fund studies of the development of new processing or treatment facilities in Minnesota, and

+ A program of state grants and low-interest loans to fund up to 75 per cent of the costs of equipment and construction of new treatment and processing facilities.

The draft certificate of need for hazardous waste disposal, as required under state law, severely restricts the land-disposal of hazardous wastes. The law requires the board to certify need for disposal for a hazardous waste only to the extent it has determined there are no "feasible and prudent" alternatives to disposal — such as waste reduction, treatment or recovery — for that waste.

Using a "high waste reduction" projection, the board in the draft certificate of need estimates that between 1987 — the earliest possible year a hazardous waste disposal facility could be sited in Minnesota — and the year 2000, there will be 662,000 tons of hazardous waste treatment residuals, untreatable wastes and solidified hazardous wastes requiring secure disposal, for an annual total of hazardous wastes requiring disposal of 29,200 tons in 1987 to 36,300 tons in the year 2000.

"The significant elements of the draft certificate of need are its limitations on the land-disposal of hazardous wastes," Dunn added. "In the long term, the certificate of need will provide a strong, effective incentive for companies to reduce their hazardous wastes and utilize alternatives to landfilling."

Citizens interested in copies of the draft plan and draft certificate of need (for a nominal fee), copies of public hearing procedures or other information can contact the board at 1-800-652-9747.

The draft plan will be further revised following the 1984 legislative session. The board will adopt the final hazardous waste management plan and certificate of need just prior to the expected selection of a hazardous waste disposal site in 1987.

Grants Being Accepted For Sr. Services

Northwest regional development commission is currently accepting grant proposals for the establishment of services and facilities for older persons residing in region one. Grant proposals will be accepted from units of government on non-profit corporations.

Categories are: access (transportation); in-home services (home health aide); senior citizens centers (facilities) and community self-help projects. The self-help category is new in 1984.

These projects are to be initiated by or with older persons to establish a service or resource that will enhance their well-being and support them in maintaining their independence in the community. Funding sources are Title IIIB of the older Americans act and the McKnight foundation.

HEALTH INSURANCE CHECKUP

DISABILITY INCOME INSURANCE

Q. What is your most valuable economic asset?

A. The first reaction of most people would be to say their home or their savings. Actually, neither is. Far more valuable than these is your ability to produce income. After all, your income provides everything you and your family depend on . . . your home, car, food, clothing, education, vacations, retirement, etc. Think about it. Every three seconds someone is disabled by an accident . . . one out of every 10 breadwinners will suffer a disability serious enough to significantly affect their family income. If you were to become disabled and have to quit your job, how long would your family be able to survive without a regular income coming in?

Q. Is there anything you can do to protect your income in case you become disabled?

A. Most definitely. The best thing you can do, according to financial experts, is to protect yourself with disability income insurance. This insurance helps replace earnings lost by providing regular monthly benefits should you become sick or hurt and unable to work. These benefits, which are tax-free under current federal income tax laws, can be used in any way you see fit — to pay grocery bills or doctor bills, make house payments, car payments, etc.

Q. How can I select the best disability plan for me?

A. The service provided by a knowledgeable agent with a recognized company name can be important and certainly worth your time. Premiums for individual policies differ according to several factors. Such things as the waiting period (the time between the start of a disability and the beginning of the payment period) can also effect the premium. The longer the waiting period, the lower the premium. For a businessman age 35, a Mutual of Omaha guaranteed renewable policy with a 90-day waiting period and payable to age 65 could provide up to $1,250 a month for less than $300 a year when tied in with Social Security benefits.

Q. Do I have to be a business person to qualify for a plan?

A. No. There are companies that provide the same benefits for a variety of different occupations. A few even offer homemakers a special disability income insurance plan.

Q. What are some other features that can be found in disability income insurance policies?

A. Some disability plans have a "money back" feature. With this type of plan, if you stay healthy and keep your coverage in force to age 65, it is possible to receive a complete refund of your premiums. Some policies include rehabilitation benefits to help the disabled person seek vocational assistance and evaluation or establish a trial work program.

For more information on disability income insurance, write Mutual of Omaha Insurance Company, Consumer Affairs Department, Mutual of Omaha Plaza, Omaha, NE 68175.

Farm Markets To Be Listed In Directory

Once again the Minnesota department of agriculture will be publishing directories of farmers' markets, roadside stands, orchards and "pick-your-own" farms. Directories guide consumers to outlets where they can buy fresh, Minnesota grown produce directly from the farmer.

During the 1983 fresh produce season, more than 120,000 regional directories were distributed.

Department is now compiling the 1984 directories. Any farmer who sells Minnesota grown produce directly to consumers is eligible for a free listing in the 1984 directories.

To receive a directory entry form in the mail, contact Lynn Schwartz, Agricultural Trade Division, Minnesota Department of Agriculture, 90 West Plato Boulevard, St. Paul, MN 55107 or 612-296-2259.

All forms must be returned by January 27 to be included in the 1984 directories.

Three Cheers For The PO

If there is a more thankless occupation than newspaper publishing, it has to be the postal service (being in politics doesn't count). The service gets blamed for a myriad of ills, most of which can be attributed to the people who put the item "in the mail".

One of our readers told us about a recent experience here. An envelope containing small bottles of medicine was being sent from a Grand Forks physician's office and was expected here the next day. The recipient lived on a rural route and the medicine was subject to freezing.

It didn't arrive as expected the following day and a call was made to the clinic. A clinic employee assured the caller that the shipment had been made the previous day. Local postal enployees searched in vain for the envelope. The next day it again failed to appear. It was a Saturday and the clinic was closed. Again an appeal was made to the local postal authorities to search for the missing and needed medicine.

Sure enough, the padded envelope was found. It had been shipped a day later than the clinic employee said, as recorded on the clinic's own metered postage label. And instead of carrying a route number and box number as provided by the patient, it was addressed only to a box number. Therefore, the envelope had been placed in the post office box in accordance with the address listed, rather than being placed with the rural carrier's mail.

The common practice would have been to believe the clinic employee and blame the postal service. In this instance, however, the employee lied about the shipping date and the sender incorrectly addressed the label. The post office was 100 per cent accurate and prompt, but still a postal employee was inconvenienced to conduct a search which required no little time.

A recent editorial from the St. Peter Herald points out that complaining about the U.S. post office is something Americans seem to love to do. It's a monopoly and also provides a scapegoat for human error. A bill that a person forgets to pay or is overlooked or ignored is frequently claimed to be "lost in the mail".

The editorial continues as follows:

"Here at the St. Peter Herald, we have a huge postage bill, over $1,000 each week. The record on losing things is phenomenal. We go weeks without having a single complaint about a single newspaper being lost in the mail.

Very few businesses can point to a record like that of the post office. Only very small fractions of a single per cent of the pieces of mail do not arrive on time.

"Canada is reputed to have the second best postal service in the world. When hockey writers vote for their all-star team, it has to be done weeks in advance because of the 'slow' Canadian postal service.

"So, seeing this is the time of year for giving, we'd like to take our hats off to the unfairly derided mail carriers. This is their busiest time of the year and they should be recognized for a job well done."

We agree with the Herald editor's assessment, and we admit to being among those who complain about postage rates and mail movement from time to time. But when it comes right down to it, the postal service does a pretty darn good job of moving the mail and most of the employees are concerned about how they get the job done. We'll join in giving the three cheers so well deserved.

Who Will Feed Us?

Cliff Markuson, manager of the American Dairy Association of Minnesota and a visitor to Thief River Falls every Dairy Day and ADA regional meeting, writes a column in the Minnesota ADA's "Dairy Center News". A recent column dealt with dairy support prices and presents an insightful viewpoint on dairy legislation. This is what he wrote:

In the last couple years I have read one editorial after another about agricultural price supports and the unfairness of these programs to the taxpayer. While the words may differ the thought conveyed is always the same. Farmers are getting rich at taxpayers' expense.

The most recent editorial of this nature to cross my desk called the dairy surplus a "national scandal." The author explained that "the dairy dragon of over-generous price supports must be slain." He admitted price cuts will be a hardship for many dairy farmers, but he quoted the director of a consumer affairs group who said, "some people are going to have to go out of business."

What is really ironic about this situation is that, as suggested, if farmers go out of business — and it will be more than just "some" — these same people will turn around and write editorials about the government's inability to control the high cost of milk in the grocery store.

How much does it really cost? What are taxpayers spending for programs that mean the continued success of not only fairy but all of agriculture? What is a fair price for programs that mean stable prices not only on the farm but also in the grocery store?

We are told that in the fiscarl year for 1984 the federal government is going to spend 919.5 billion dollars; 10.1 billion dollars is earmarked for price support programs for all agricultural commodities. More specifically it is estimated dairy price supports will cost about 2.5 billion dollars.

What does this mean? This "national scandal" of agricultural price supports is going to cost the federal government just a little more than one per cent of the total federal budget. If we look just at the "Dairy dragon of over-generous price supports" the cost to taxpayers will be a shopping three-tenths of one per cent of the total budget.

Is that really too much for our nation's most precious commodity? In my mind this is still one of the best investments of taxpayers' money.

Farmers are not getting rich at taxpayers' expense. The combination of farmers' production skills and government programs allows Americans to put food on the table for only 13.3 per cent of their personal income, less than is spent by any other country in the world.

We cannot allow shortsighted thinking to put us in a situation where people do "get out of the business." If this happens the question then becomes — who will feed us?

Looking At Lotteries

Gov. Rudy Perpich has said he will go to Michigan, Massachusetts and Maryland next month to look at how lotteries are run in those states. Some people would say he could get the same information by a phone call or letter, but that's immaterial at this point. We would suggest he stop off in Washington, D.C., and discuss with the U.S. postal service its regulation on sending material on lotteries through the mail.

There is a postal regulation which states that material on lotteries may not be sent through the mail. We have heard that state lotteries have been exempted from that regulation. Somehow it must be reasoned that state lotteries involving millions of dollars are less offensive than a senior citizen quilt raffle to raise a couple of hundred dollars. The logic of the exemption escapes us, but the situation remains extremely frustrating.

For years we have had to turn down news and advertising items that have involved lotteries of one type or another for one cause or another — nearly all charitable, relatively harmless fund-raising efforts. We have turned them down because the postal service says we must, and frequently at the expense of some cherished customer relationships. Far too many papers it would seem, are unaware of the regulation or ignore it.

We wish Gov. Perpich would tell the postmaster general in his inimitable straight-forward manner that the regulation stinks. He should repeat the message to every other governor, U.S. Congressman and U.S. Senator he comes in contact with on his travels. Until they get involved, no changes are likely to be forthcoming. And you can bet (can we say that?) your bottom dollar that we'll give a state lottery the same consideration for publicity that we are compelled to give our local efforts. If they have to rough it, the state can stuff it.

Borrowed Nonsense:

According to a secret report, this is the real reason for the recent Soviet grain deal with the United States. Andropov called in his minister of agriculture and asked for an update on the status of the Russian grain supply.

"Comrade Yuri," the minister replied, "if we but put all of our grain into one pile, it would reach up to the feet of God."

"Comrade minister," Andropov admonished. "In Russia, there is no God."

"Comrad Yuri," the minster replied, "in Russia there is no grain, either."

"Certainly sir," the shoe department manager replied to the customer. "We do indeed have a large selection of loafers. Just a moment and I'll see if I can get one to wait on you."

Courses For Educators Are Set At Bemidji

Two courses designed specifically for educators have been scheduled for early February weekends at Bemidji state university (BSU).

Teacher effectiveness training, a one-credit offering, will be held on February 3 to 4 while a two-credit class on educator survivor skills will be conducted over consecutive weekends, February 10 to 11 and 17 to 18.

The early course is based on Madeline Hunter's principles of effective teaching using transfer, motivation and practice theory. It would prove valuable to teach individuals interested in general education, special education, as well as vocation education.

Effectiveness training workshop will be led by Dr. David Kingsbury from the BSU center for vocational education. Assistance will be provided by Dr. Julie Jochum from the Bemidji state special education program and Ann Kitts, director of vocational education for Osseo high school. Registration is recommended by January 27 for this session, which has a cost of $26.35 for undergraduate credit or $32.90 for graduate credit.

Educator survival skills enables teachers to examine the daily stressors in their lives and to develop skills for the understanding and combating of stress. Covered during the class are conflict management, breathing techniques that help maintain control in tense situations, and other tools to use as antidotes to stress.

Registration for this course, which is instructed by Prapti Elliott, is recommended by February 3. Cost is $46.70 for undergraduates and $59.60 for graduate students.

More information on both offerings can be obtained by contacting the Center for Extended Learning, Deputy hall, Bemidji state university, Bemidji, MN 56601 (218-755-2068).

Northern Farm Show Slated In Minneapolis

Hundreds of farm equipment companies are in the midst of preparing to exhibit their newest products at the Northern farm show in the Minneapolis auditorium on January 20 and 21.

"Equipment specially designed for livestock and crop farmers of the Midwest remains the feature of the show," says William Ryden, show director. With minimum tillage and electronic equipment leading the charge, equipment companies see the show as their opportunity to present their newest products to Midwest farm customers.

Back by popular demand is the farm computer section called "The Computer Fair" where farm customers may investigate what computers can do for their farm operation. Another attraction is a special exhibit for ladies which includes exhibits and demonstrations on floral arranging, quilting, food and "The Country Store."

Northern farm show will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday, January 20 and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, January 21.

Northern farm show is sponsored by "The Farmer" magazine and the Farm equipment association of Minnesota and South Dakota, comprised of over 800 farm equipment dealers. These dealers ask their farmer-customers to stop at their local dealership for information and free Northern farm show exhibit tickets.

Coping With Cold No Problem For Adapted Animals

Around this time of year, many people in the northern hemisphere realize the truth of what scientists have been telling us all along.

"Humans, like all other primates, are essentially tropical creatures," says Dr. Benjamin B. Beck, a research zoologist at the Smithsonian's national zoological park in Washington, D.C. "We have been able to expand our living range because of cultural adaptations. But given their druthers, people prefer warmer climes." In fact, so does the majority of animals on earth, for these animals evolved and live in the tropics.

Numerous animals have developed strategies for living in colder climates. Some creatures, notably many birds and such marine mammals as whales and dolphins, head south for the winter, and who can blame them?

But the real admiration, even envy, must be reserved for our furred, feathered and fatted friends in the animal kingdom who shiver and slumber their way through winter. Birds and bears, woodchucks and wolves, squirrels and seals — indeed, a whole menagerie of animals is superbly suited for coping with cold.

Temperature profoundly influences all living organisms, but animals in particular can survive only when their body temperatures remain within a very narrow range. This constraint creates special problems for cold-blooded animals such as reptiles and amphibians, since their body temperatures directly reflect the temperatures of their environments.

Reptiles and amphibians have a real advantage over warm-blooded animals," Dr. Dale Marcellini, curator of herpetology at the national zoo, notes. "They don't have to go through the same major physiological changes that mammals do to adapt to the cold." On a chilly day, for example, a lizard can run on a rock to raise its body temperature.

There is a rather serious drawback," Marcellini says. "If it gets too cold, they freeze up and die." Not surprisingly, these creatures cannot survive in the Arctic or Antarctic; relatively few even live in areas near these vast regions.

Prevent freezing, reptiles and amphibians living in cold climates seek a sheltered spot in winter. Temperate-climate turtles and frogs bury themselves in the mud, toads seek out solitary land burrows and snakes "den up," sometimes in groups of 100 or more.

Surrounding temperatures drop, the animals' body temperatures and metabolic rates also plummet. These "true hibernators" spend most of the winter in a state close to death. In fact, many appear to be dead until warm weather revives them.

Like their cold-blooded brethren, many warm-blooded animals seek shelter from the cold. Small birds in cold climates often roost in dense vegetation, crevices in snow or cavities in rocks or trees, Guy Greenwell, curator of birds at the national zoo's conservation and research center, says, "Starlings are notorious for roosting under the spans of bridges, which hold the heat and create a cozy 'microclimate.'" And birds of a feather — partridges and quails, to name a few — flock together to minimize heat loss. An individual bird, Greenwell adds, can achieve the same effect by fluffing its feathers.

Though they can't compete with a condo in Florida, burrows, caves, rock crevices, hollow trees and excavated depressions under fallen trees or brush piles are welcome winter lodgings for a wide range of mammals, including tiny field mice, skunks and opossums. Bears rarely den up in large groups, but raccoons seem to prefer company. In Minnesota, as many as 21 raccoons have been found in one den, a record-sized "slumber party."

Birds and mammals also have a host of special adaptations aimed at helping them weather the worst. As their name implies, warm-blooded animals do not depend on external termperatures to maintain a constant, relatively high, body temperature. Instead, they have evolved sophisticated physiological mechanisms that control internal heat production.

Whether in birds or bears, body termperature is maintained by heat energy released internally through the breakdown of chemical bonds found in food, especially carbohydrates, fat (triglycerides) and protein. By burning up more food, additional heat is generated.

In emergencies, warm-blooded animals can do a kind of muscle flexing — it's called shivering. When the temperature drops, certain muscles in the body contract simultaneously, releasing energy internally. Scientists believe that some small birds, such as the common American goldfinch, shiver continuously all winter to generate heat.

For most animals, shivering is not an effective or long-term solution to coping with extended periods of cold weather, which are almost always accompanied by scarce food supplies. "Most mammals have a survival strategy that is controlled by changes in day length and is thus set in motion long before the first hint of chilly weather," William Xanten, collections manager of small mammals at the national zoo, explains.

One common strategy, Xanten says, is employed by such animals as deer, which are active year-round foragers. Typically, these animals eat a lot in late summer and early fall when food is plentiful. By late summer, most put on fat layers and grow thick fur coats to provide extra insulation.

Winter, however, temperate-climate deer and moose show decreased appetites. "They're actually biologically programmed to go on a 'reducing diet,' to live off their fat," National Zoo nutritionist Dr. Olav Oftedal explains, "so they don't waste so much valuable energy foraging for food that isn't readily available. In captivity, these animals don't eat much in the winter, even if food is offered."

Second technique, employed by chipmunks in particular, involves hoarding food in burrows or dens. These energetic critters are capable of stashing thousands of nuts in their burrows before cold weather sets in. Since it does not put on a thick layer of fat, the chipmunk spends much of the winter in its burrow, falling into periods of shallow sleep, but awakening every few days to consume part of its larder. Squirrels also stash food, but in many geographical areas they are year-round foragers.

Third strategy involves lengthy periods of dormancy or slumber. Animals which use this strategy also tend to put on fat layers and grow thicker fur coats. At the onset of cold weather, they retreat to a den and fall asleep in the process lowering their metabolic rates substantially. In a very few cases, the sleep is similar to the hibernation experienced by reptiles and amphibians. The body temperatures of bats and Arctic ground squirrels, for example, drop from around 100 degrees Fahrenheit to the temperature of the surrounding environment.

Other slumberers, including bears, woodchucks (groundhogs), ground squirrels and some prairie dogs, are deep sleepers. The body temperatures of woodchucks may drop to surrounding temperatures, but only for short periods of time. They are also easily aroused during warm weather breaks in the winter, when they may emerge from their burrows and dens, forage around and retreat to sleep when the cold returns.

Bears, on the other hand, are not "true hibernators." Their body temperatures, normally around 100 F, rarely fall below 88 degrees when sleeping. The black bear in northern climates may sleep for as long as seven months without eating or drinking; by the time it emerges, it may have lost 15 to 30 per cent of its body weight.

Incredibly, the black bear even gives birth — in the middle of January — to two or three cubs, awakening only during the actual birth. Then, the female resumes her deep sleep, waking occasionally to tend to the cubs' needs while the infants suckle and snuggle.

Humans, of course, have managed to cope with cold by cleverly adopting some of Mother nature's techniques. We wear coats of fur and jackets of down (an extremely effective insulating material), and we've managed to build all kinds of warm shelters. Some people would probably like to sleep through most of the winter, but so far this notion — along with the grey seal's penchant for developing a thick layer of blubber — hasn't developed a following.

There are a few tricks left for us to learn from those animals that not only survive the cold, but actually seem to enjoy it. Recently, scientists may have learned the secret of the polar bear's ability to lie about contentedly on ice floes. It turns out that each hair in this arctic denizen's thick fur coat has a nearly hollow core. Scientists now believe that the core might act as a kind of "light pipe," or solar cell, transmitting energy absorbed from the sun into the bear's hide.

Tournament Is A Success

From all reports, the first Thief River Falls Christmas Classic high school basketball invitational tournament was a big success during its just-completed three-day run in the Lincoln gym.

Eight participating teams, the large number of fans who turned out for the doubleheader sessions each afternoon and evening and the program officials felt the tournament ran smoothly, and are already looking forward to doing it again in 1985.

"We're very pleased with the way things have gone," said Thief River Falls athletic director, the tournament chairman. "The coaches seemed pleased, and I can't help but think its good for the community when additional people are brought into town."

"We enjoyed it," offered Kennedy coach Louis Deere after his team completed a consolation championship tournament performance. "We thought it was great. The hospitality has been great. We're looking forward to next year."

"It was a super deal for us," explained Middle River coach Eldon Sparby, whose Skippers won the seventh place game. "Three games just 20 miles down the road against good competition — you can't beat a deal like that."

Tournament offered coaches a great opportunity to get in three games against good competition under a playoff format. It was a chance to experiment a little without the risk of losing a conference game that might come back to haunt you later when tournament seeding meetings are held.

Only disappointment was the fact that so many of the games weren't close on the scoreboard. Match-ups looked like a number of close games were in store, but only Friday night's finals and third place games proved exciting in that department. And the fans loved it. It was a real tournament atmosphere as Fertile-Beltrami and Argyle battled down to the final seconds before the Falcons emerged the winner. Thief River Falls' third place game win over Marshall County Central, although not as well-played as the title game, was nevertheless exciting at the end.

Financial impact that a tournament of this sort has on a community should not be overlooked. A number of fans were in town all day during the Tuesday-Thursday-Friday series, and there was ample time for them to shop and eat in Thief River Falls between games.

Impact that a tournament can have on a town was mentioned by Warren Strandell of the East Grand Forks Exponent as he talked about the money that was expected to be generated during a youth hockey tournament in that city. President Lynn Stauss of the sponsoring Blue Line Club referred to it as a $100,000 tournament.

To arrive at that figure, he pointed out that the 24 teams participating in the Thursday-through-Saturday tournament include 20 out-of-town teams. Figuring 20 players, managers and coaches for each team, that's 400 people.

If four kids are assigned to a motel room, 100 rooms will be needed at an average of $30 per night for two nights. That's $6,000.

Those kids are likely to spend about $5 per day for junk food and other items for each of the three days, or about $6,000. Meals, at an average of $7.50 per day for three days would mean $9,000.

That's just for the kids. Moms and Dads usually follow their hockey-playing kids everywhere they go, so that means there could be up to 800 adults coming in, requiring 400 rooms at $30 per night for two nights. That's $24,000.

Parents are likely to spend more in meal and "fun money" than kids. Say it's $10 per day for fun and another $10 for meals. That's conservative, figures Stauss, but it still comes out to be $48,000. Add in some miscellaneous shopping and the total goes up even more.

Then, there's gasoline. If those 20 visiting youth teams came in 10 different buses, they'd probably put on close to $100 each in fuel before leaving. Another $1,000. The cars of the parents, figuring four to a car and $30 a tank, would ring up another $6,000.

If you've been keeping track, notes Strandell, that total is an even $100,000. The $100,000 figure, considering that a lot of the teams coming in for the tournament are within daily driving range, is not likely to be reached, admit officials, but even if you cut that total in half or even more and its still a pretty good weekend for the city.

Thief River Falls, having already staged the preseason Section 8 hockey jamboree and the basketball Christmas Classic, will have additional sporting events to draw people into the community when the Section 8 hockey tournament is played here Feb. 24 through March 2; a Squirts hockey jamboree will be held here Feb. 25-26; the cross country snowmobile world series races will be staged here Feb. 25-26; and the McDonald's Pee-Wee hockey invitational tournament will be held here March 24-25.

Miscellaneous

+Moorhead high school hockey player Steve Dorsey was injured in the Dec. 22 Moorhead vs. Fergus Falls game and has been listed in serious condition at St. Luke's Hospital in Fargo. A junior at Moorhead, Dorsey suffered a break in the fourth vertebrae in his spinal column after falling and sliding head-first into the end boards during the third period of the game. Moorhead coach Terry Shercliffe recently told the Fergus Falls Journal that Dorsey is conscious, has some movement in his arms, but is paralyzed over the lower half of his body. "We're all praying that Steve will pull out of this, Shercliffe added.

+That same night Thief River Falls was getting off just 11 shots on goal in a 5-1 loss to Roseau last Tuesday, Bemidji fired 73 times at the Detroit Lakes netminders in an 11-1 rout. Chad Meyhoff started in goal for the Lakes and was pulled after one period in favor of Aaron Burnside. "Chad made some beautiful saves early and then Bemidji scored on two or three lucky bounces, and you can't fault a goaltender for allowing a team to get as many shots as we did," said Detroit Lakes coach Duane Earnest. Meyhoff kicked out 21 first period shots and Burnside had 41 saves over the final two periods.

Fertile-Beltrami Wins TRF Tournament Title

Best was saved for last Friday as Fertile-Beltrami edged Argyle 56-52 in a wildly exciting championship game finish to the first Thief River Falls Christmas Classic high school basketball invitational tournament played at the Lincoln gym.

After ten games in which the closest margin of victory was eight points, and most were by a much wider margin, the Friday evening finale for the three-day, eight-team tournament provided the most entertainment when the down-to-the-wire title game was preceded by an even closer 47-45 Thief River Falls third place game victory over Marshall County Central.

While it may not lend itself to very pretty basketball, Thief River Falls' nondescript agressive defense once again proved to be the Prowlers' most effective tool Friday as they muscled their way to a 47-45 third place game win over Marshall County Central.

"They just batter you out of your offense," noted coach Ron Ueland of the normally smooth-looking Nordics. "They made you look bad."

It was quite a turnaround for the Prowlers after an embarrassingly poor performance the night before in a 53-32 semifinal loss to Fertile-Beltrami.

"I'm awfully proud of the kids to be able to come back after the game they had against Fertile," noted Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "They showed a lot of heart. At times I thought we played well. Defensively I thought we did an excellent job on their perimeter shooters, and the kids did a really good job handling their pressure defense."

It was nip-and-tuck all the way. Both teams had five-point leads for the biggest spread of the game that featured Thief River Falls leads of 16-13 at the first quarter stop and 28-24 at halftime. Marshall County Central led 36-34 after three quarters, but still, the Prowlers were successful in working the ball for a last shot to close each period. Scott Fowler took a quick look at the clock and threw up a 15-footer from the side with two seconds left in the first quarter; Randy Erickson canned a short turnaround jumper with four seconds left in the half; and Ryan Drees dropped in a short running jump shot from the side with five seconds to go in the third quarter.

Marshall County Central scored the first five points of the fourth quarter to open up a 41-36 lead with 6:49 remaining. Thief River Falls, though, then scored seven straight to go back on top 43-41 on a pair of Drees free throws with 3:41 to play.

See-saw battle continued down the stretch when the Nordics' Randy Dahl made the front end of a bonus free throw opportunity; Drees pulled up on a drive and hit a short jumper; and Ken Krohn of Marshall County Central came up with a field goal and a free throw for a 45-45 tie with 1:26 remaining.

There was plenty of excitement the final 86 seconds, but the only points came on a pair of free throws by the Prowlers' John Brandt with 1:03 on the clock. Marshall County Central's final chance came when the Nordics grabbed the rebound as Drees missed the first of a 1-and-1 free throw opportunity with 11 seconds left. But Chad Swan missed the shot on a drive into traffic in the middle.

Brandt led the Prowlers with 12 points and Erickson had 10. Krohn scored 15 and Swan 13 for the Nordics.

In a role-reversal, Thief River Falls had a better shooting night, hitting 18 of 41 shots (44 per cent), while Marshall County Central was just 16-for-54 (30 per cent). The Prowlers were 11-for-15 at the free throw line (73 per cent) where the Nordics hurt themselves with a 13-for-23 showing (57 per cent). Marshall County Central showed a 30-29 rebound edge and Thief River Falls topped the turnover chart 24-15.

"We're very, very disappointed in the loss," said Ueland. "They played well defensively and shot a lot better than we expected them to. Our shot selection wasn't good — they pushed us out of our offense."

Thief River Falls improved its record to 2-5 with the win. Marshall County Central is 3-2.

Fertile-Beltrami . . . . . . 56
Argyle . . . . . . . . . . . . . 52

Fertile-Beltrami surprised most observers, including head coach Tom Ledding, in upsetting pre-tournament favorite Argyle 56-52 in the tournament finals before an enthusiastic crowd.

"They are undoubtedly one of the best teams around," said Ledding about Argyle. "We were very fortunate to win. I think we played above our heads tonight."

It was the one-two punch by Fertile-Beltrami leaders Karl Lisburg and Jeff McCollum that supplied the knock-out blow to the Eagles. Lisburg, a sharp-shooting 5-10½ senior guard, hit nine field goals, many in clutch situations, for an 18-point night, while McCollum, a strong 6-1 senior center, had nine free throws by drawing the fouls inside en route to a game-high 21 points.

"Our two mainstays really came though for us," smiled Ledding.

"The kids we felt we had to stop defensively — Lisburg and McCollum — we didn't stop," admitted Argyle coach Warren Keller. "That Lisburg is a real money player. Every time they needed a basket, he got it for them. We didn't play well defensively."

But, Fertile-Beltrami did. After successfully working the ball inside for close-in shots by center Dave Durand in earlier wins over Middle River and Marshall County Central, Argyle was forced to shoot from the outside against the Falcons' defense that was stacked to close down the inside. A 60 per cent shooting team in the quarterfinals and semifinals, Argyle shot just 38 per cent from the field for three quarters before finding the target in the final period to finish 22-for-55 (40 per cent). Only effective scorer for the Eagles was guard Donnie Magnusson with 16 points. Ray Safranski contributed 10, but Durand was held to 8.

It was close throughout. Argyle led 18-14 at the end of the first quarter but fell behind 30-28 at halftime when Fertile-Beltrami reserve forward Gary Larson took a feed underneath from guard Brad Jagol and scored at the buzzer. McCollum slipped inside to score with just one second left in the third quarter to give Fertile-Beltrami a 42-38 edge going into the final eight minutes.

When McCollum opened the fourth quarter with a three-point play, the Falcons enjoyed the game's biggest lead, 45-38, only to have Argyle hit three straight baskets to pull within 45-44 with 6:09 still to play.

Argyle, though, was never able to wrestle the lead away from Fertile-Beltrami. Back-to-back jumpers from the side by Magnusson and Safranski pulled the Eagles to within 53-52 with 2:32 left, but Lisburg took a drive to the baseline, pulled up and hit a short jumper for a 55-52 edge with 2:05 to play, and while the excitement was building, the only other points came on a free throw by Jagol, who made the front end of a bonus situation, with 12 seconds on the clock.

Argyle controlled the rebound and Magnusson drew a foul for a chance to put the Eagles back in the game with a two-shot opportunity with seven seconds still to play. But he missed them both.

"We could never get a snurt on them because Lisburg kept getting the big basket for them," reflected Keller, who also indicated the Eagles might have felt the pressure of a close game. In running up a 6-0 record, the Eagles have never won by less than 15 points. "We haven't played under pressure," he mentioned. "This was our first close game, which is exactly what we wanted in a tournament situation like this."

While Argyle's shooting was off, Fertile-Beltrami was definitely on, 23-for-38 (61 per cent). Argyle was 8-for-14 at the free throw line (57 per cent), including an 0-for-6 second half. Fertile-Beltrami was 10-for-18 at the line (56 per cent). The Eagles had a 24-22 rebound edge, with the Falcons topping the turnover department 22-13.

"I was worried about their pressure defense, but I think we handled it pretty well," explained Ledding. "That was probably the key to us winning." The Falcons are now 6-1.

The Falcons beat the Prowlers 53-32 to reach the Friday night finals against Argyle.

Consolation Title Won By Kennedy Over Rams

Kennedy won the consolation title and Middle River was a winner in the seventh place game Friday afternoon to complete the loser's bracket results in the Thief River Falls Christmas Classic high school basketball invitational tournament.

A first-round loser to Thief River Falls, Kennedy finished the tournament with two wins, including a 65-49 consolation championship game victory over Roseau, while Middle River, beaten in two earlier starts, came up with a 54-46 decision over Mahnomen in the seventh place game, leaving the Indians as the only winless team in the three-day eight team event played at the Lincoln gym.

Mahnomen . . . . . . . . . . 46

Guard Kevin McKeever had a good game, but center Tom Neumann didn't when Middle River lost a first-round 71-39 game to Argyle Tuesday. Neumann was effective, but McKeever wasn't when Middle River lost a consolation semifinal 67-50 decision to Roseau Thursday. Friday they were both finally on at the same time, combining for 36 points in the Skippers' 54-46 seventh place game win over Mahnomen. McKeever scored 19 points and Neumann had 17 as the Skippers improved their season record to 3-3. Middle River trailed 10-8 at the end of the first quarter and was down 24-21 at halftime before taking a 38-34 third quarter lead.

"We played a pretty good second half," pointed out Middle River coach Eldon Sparby, who had special praise for McKeever and Neumann, the two recognized Middle River leaders. "Both kids played well today, and Brian Cwikla did an excellent job for us, too. He had nine rebounds, played a good floor game and played good defense on (Charlie) Stock."

Stock was held to 10 points after getting 20 and 17 the first two games. Erick Hedman led the Indians with 17 points. Mark Agnew matched Stock's 10-point game.

Deere followed in 40-point Thursday performance with 23 against Roseau, while Johnson, regaining top form after coming off an injury, scored 20.

"We were pleased with our effort," mentioned Kennedy coach Louis Deere, who said it was Johnson's best game of the year. He also praised the play of sophomores Jim Hagen and Jim Langen, who were starting for the second straight day. "They did a super job for us, especially at the start when they hit a couple and took some of the pressure off Scott and Tommy," he noted.

Kennedy led at the quarter stops 15-6, 39-18 and 53-36.

Gregg Welin scored 16 points to lead the Rams, with Jeff Endrizzi getting 13 and Craig Singer 12.

Lincoln high school hockey team bounced back from a poor showing in a 5-1 loss at Roseau earlier in the week to post a 6-0 shutout over host Grand Forks Red River Thursday night.

"We played very well defensively," reported Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "The kids did a good job, particularly on defense."

Eagles Handle Nordics; Falcons Defeat Prowlers In Semifinals

Argyle and Fertile-Beltrami were surprisingly easy semifinal winners Thursday night in the second round of the first Thief River Falls Christmas Classic, an eight-team, three-day high school basketball invitational tournament played in the Lincoln gym.

In what was expected to be a close struggle between top-rated District 32 contenders, Argyle ran past Marshall County Central 61-46, with Fertile-Beltrami joining the Eagles in the finals by beating cold-shooting Thief River Falls 53-32.

Argyle . . . . . . . . . . . . . 61
MCC . . . . . . . . . . . . . . 46

Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland had conceded Argyle might have an edge in quickness, but he felt his Nordics' excellent shooters could make the much-talked about Thief River Falls Christmas Classic semifinal encounter interesting.

Well, Marshall County Central shot 83 per cent from the field in the first quarter and trailed by 10, and wound up shooting 54 per cent from the field for the game and lost by 15.

Argyle's aggressive attack, the Eagles' definite edge in quickness over a Marshall County Central team that in its own right has good foot speed, and 58 per cent shooting for the game made it a rout of even bigger proportions than the final score might indicate.

While Marshall County Central was going 5-for-6 from the field in the first quarter, Argyle was 8-for-12, plus a couple of free throws, for an 18-10 lead. It was over at halftime, 41-18, with Argyle spreading things out in the second half in settling for a 55-34 third quarter cushion. Trailing 59-38 with 5:32 left in the game, the Nordics made the final score a little more respectable with a string of seven straight points down the stretch.

Individual standout within Argyle's strong team concept was Dave Durand, a 6-0 junior center who played a near-perfect game inside with 26 points. Guards Don Magnusson and Ray Safranski added 11 and 10, respectively. Guards Kevin Boe and Chad Swan scored 13 and 11 points, respectively for Marshall County Central. But while a bulk of the Nordics' points came from the outside, the Eagles got nearly everything inside as they continually beat Marshall County Central defenders to the base line for easy close-in shots.

"We executed our offense well," confirmed Argyle coach Warren Keller, who had special praise for Durand. His biggest asset, said Keller is his sure hands. He takes passes inside in traffic and gets the shot off. "He doesn't fumble the ball away," pointed out Keller.

Key to the game came early, said the Argyle coach, when the Eagles turned four first quarter Marshall County Central turnovers directly into points, and wound up scoring on 12 of 16 first half mistakes by the Nordics.

"We were too tentative," explained Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "We can't be tentative and be effective, especially against a team like Argyle. "We have to go after them. Northing falls your way when you're tentative."

Marshall County Central's experienced players might have tensed up under the tournament format in front of a large crowd, hinted Ueland, who said Argyle's post-season success, including a state tournament trip for several members of this year's team two years ago, gave them a definite edge in the composure department.

Argyle was 25-for-43 from the field and 11-for-17 from the free throw line. Marshall County Central was 21-for-39 from the field and 4-for-8 at the line. With shooting percentages like that, there weren't many rebounds to be had. Argyle had a 16-15 edge on the boards, which included six offensive rebounds of the ten boards they had in the first half. Marshall County Central topped the turnover charts 16-10.

Fertile-Betrami . . . . . . 53
TRF . . . . . . . . . . . . . . 32

Poor shooting, including a bundle of close-in misses, made for a ragged Thief River Falls showing Thursday in a 53-32 semifinal loss to Fertile-Beltrami.

Thief River Falls was just 5-for-25 from the field in the first half when the Prowlers trailed 11-7 after one quarter and 26-11 at intermission. They finished with a shaky 27 per cent figure for the night.

"We just missed a number of high percentage shots," admitted Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "We played okay defensively; the kids hustled, they played hard; we moved the ball pretty well; and we had pretty good shots. We just didn't hit them, that's all."

Even with the poor offensive showing, Thief River Falls, after trailing 33-21 through three quarters, still had an outside shot at making a game of it at the start of the final period when Tim Kruse hit a long jumper and then followed a few moments later with a single free throw to pull the Prowlers within a still-catchable 33-24 with 5:14 left.

But two free throws by reserve forward Jon Broden, a short jumper by Broden that broke Thief River Falls' press, then a couple of free throws made for a six-point run by the Falcons as they matched their biggest lead of the game to that point, 39-24, with 3:20 remaining.

Ten of the winners' final 14 points came at the free throw line as the Prowlers fouled playing aggressive defense in an effort to get the ball back down the stretch. Fertile-Beltrami scored the game's final 10 points.

"We played a real good game defensively," mentioned Falcons' coach Tom Ledding, "and I thought for our size we did well on the boards."

Guard Karl Lisburg and forward Chad Mosher scored 14 and 12 points, respectively, for the winners, who weren't all that sharp offensively themselves in the face of Thief River Falls' usually solid defensive play. No Thief River Falls scorer broke double figures.

Thief River Falls was 14-for-51 from the field and 4-for-11 at the free throw line. Fertile-Beltrami was 17-for-54 from the field (31 per cent) and a productive 19-for-33 at the free throw line. The Prowlers had a 34-31 rebound edge, but also topped the turnover figures 22-12.

DNR hotline

1. Is camping allowed on public accesses?

Camping is not allowed at any DNR-controlled access facility except those managed as part of a DNR-forestry campground. Public access activities are governed by a specific set of commissioner's orders adopted in 1971 and amended in 1980. Commissioner's orders No. 1828 and 2066 specifically prohibit, among others, camping, shooting, building fires and consumption of alcoholic beverages. These rules and regulations are enforceable by the Area Conservation Officers and county sheriff's officers. Violators should be reported immediately to the local law enforcement center. Richard Kimball, regional water access specialist.

2. What is the magnitude of the Department of Natural Resources water access program in Region I?

In Region I, which covers all or parts of twenty-two northwestern Minnesota counties, there are 274 DNR-controlled water access facilities. To ensure that Minnesota boaters and fishermen have access to all desirable recreational lakes and rivers, the Minnesota Legislature, in 1979, established the accelerated water access program. The program is divided into three different, but closely related segments: acquisition, development and maintenance. Acquisition of lands for public access is based on a priority list. All lakes over 150 acres have been inventoried for access adequacy or inadequacy based on several criteria, including lake size, clarity, and type, plus proximity to population centers and areas of high demand. The 1984 acquisition priority list has on it 114 lakes with inadequate or no public water access. The development program is divided into three types: development of new sites, major rehabilitations of existing access sites, and small projects such as ramp installations and road regravelling. Since the accelerated program began in 1979, 50 projects have been completed in Region I. Future plans are to complete 10 to 15 projects per year of the three development types. The majority of the DNR-controlled access facilities are maintained through contracts with private individuals and youth groups. Maintenance includes, but is not limited to, mowing and litter pick-up. Richard Kimball, regional water access specialist.

Deere Gets 40 Points In Consolation Semifinals

Kennedy out-scored Mahnomen 80-60 and Roseau beat Middle River 67-50 in the Thursday afternoon consolation semifinal round of the Thief River Falls Christmas Classic high school basketball invitational tournament.

Kennedy . . . . . . . . . . . . 80
Mahnomen . . . . . . . . . . 60

In the first year of the Thief River Falls Christmas Classic, Kennedy's Tommy Jon Deere had himself a scoring effort that may remain in the tournament record books for some time as the 6-4 junior center-forward poured in 40 points to lead the Rockets past Mahnomen 80-60 in the consolation bracket opener.

Kennedy was held in check offensively in a 53-39 first round loss to host Thief River Falls Tuesday when Deere had 16 points. But it was a different story against Mahnomen as the Rockets ran up quarter leads of 21-16, 46-31 and 65-44.

While Deere was scoring exactly half of the Rockets' points, teammate Scott Johnson, a 6-1 junior forward, had his second double-figure game of the tournament, too, with 11 points despite running into foul trouble.

Erick Hedman paced Mahnomen with 19 points, while Charlie Stock had another double-figure game with 17 and Kevin Gish scored 11.

Middle River . . . . . . . . . 50

Roseau broke open a close game in the second half as the Rams beat North Border Conference rival Middle River 67-50 in the second half of the Thursday afternoon consolation round doubleheader.

A surprise 44-37 winner over the North Border preseason favorites in the 1983-84 regular season opener back on Dec. 2, Middle River challenged the Rams again in the first half Thursday before losing ground after intermission.

Actually, it started in the final stages of the second quarter. Trailing 19-13 at the close of the first quarter, Middle River shooters were 5-for-9 from the field and 10-for-15 at the free throw line as the Skippers crept within 21-20 2½ minutes into the second quarter. Back-to-back long jumpers from the side by Sheldon and Darrin Peterson put Middle River ahead 26-23 with 3:18 left.

But Roseau scored ten straight points to finish the half with a 31-28 edge the Rams opened up a 47-26 third quarter cushion.

"Roseau played an extremely good third quarter," acknowledged Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "Our first half was pretty decent, but (Gregg) Welin killed us in the third quarter."

Welin, a 6-2 senior center, had 10 of his 22 points in the third quarter. Lonnie Kompelien added 15 to the Rams' point total, with Jeff Endrizzi getting 14 and Craig Singer 10. Tom Neumann, a 6-2 sophomore center, had a game-high 23 points for the Skippers, with 5-10 sophomore Darrin Peterson playing well in a 10-point effort.

Poster Contest Is Underway

In a significant change from past contests, the 1984 National Hunting and Fishing (NHF) Day poster contest will be held and the winners announced during the current school year. This change was made to give more students the opportunity to participate in the poster contest and be eligible to win one of 52 national prizes including a $1,000 U.S. Savings Bond. The deadline for entries in the national contest will now be May 1, 1984.

Theme of the 1984 NHF Day poster contest, "How Sportsmen's Duck Stamp Dollars Help Wildlife," spotlights the important role funds from federal duck stamp purchases play in conserving wildlife. The theme was selected to coincide with the 50th anniversary of the federal duck stamp program. National prizes that total $5,200 in U.S. Savings Bonds will be awarded to students who best illustrate the 1984 contest theme.

National Hunting and Fishing Day poster contest is open to all students in grades 5-12. So that youngsters can compete on a more equal basis, there is a Junior Division for grades 5-8 and a Senior Division for grades 9-12.

In addition to the Grand Prize of the $1,000 savings bond, national prizes include $500 savings bonds for first place, $250 in bonds for second place and $100 bonds for third. First, second and third prizes will be awarded in both the Junior and Senior Divisions. There will also be 10 honorable mention prizes of $75 savings bonds and 35 Merit Awards of $50 savings bonds.

In order to be considered for national awards, posters must first be winners in a locally sponsored National Hunting and Fishing Day poster contest. On the local level, contests can be organized by schools, sportsmen's clubs, conservation or civic groups, newspapers, etc. To give youngsters time to research and prepare their posters, it is preferable that contests be organized as soon as possible.

For information on how to sponsor or participate in a local National Hunting and Fishing Day Poster Contest, write: NHF Day Poster Contest, P.O. Box 1075, Riverside, CT 06878.

DNR NEWS

Lands Transferred

Nine patents to eleven tracts of federal land, totalling more than 335 acres, were presented by G. Curtis Jones, Jr., Eastern States Director of the U.S. Bureau of Land Management, to Joseph Alexander, Commissioner of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, on December 14 in the Centennial Building in St. Paul.

These patents begin the transfer by the BLM to the state of more than 1,000 parcels of federally owned land.

Nine tracts transferred are located in Cass, Hubbard, Isanti, Itasca, Crow Wing and Koochiching counties and are among the 41,000 acres identified for transfer to the state in a BLM plan completed in September, 1982. Jones said he anticipates steady progress in turning over the balance of the lands to Minnesota within the next few years.

Alexander noted that the Department of Natural Resources sought the land for a variety of uses:

+Three tracts will be included in state wildlife management areas for diverse wildlife habitat.

+Four tracts will be used in the state water access program for boat launching ramps.

+Three tracts will be included in the state's scientific and natural areas system for protection of unusual plant species.

+One tract will be designated for the wild and scenic rivers program to complement existing access and provide shore fishing opportunities for the public.

According to Jones, "The BLM policy is to dispose of its surface acreage in the eastern half of the United States through transfer or sale. Wherever feasible, management responsibilities are transferred to other federal, state, or local agencies that can do a more efficient and inexpensive job of on-site management. This transfer of small, widely scattered parcels of public domain land in the east is just good sense."

Titles to the eleven tracts is being granted under the Recreation and Public Purposes Act, which provides for federal land grants to state and local governments and to non-profit organizations for uses including recreation, education and health.

Winter Trails

With the arrival of winter and the long lasting snow season, the DNR is readying its northeastern state trail facilities for use. Recreational opportunities on these trails are varied and offer several combinations of activities and settings from which to choose, said officials.

North Shore State Trail runs 153 miles from Duluth to Grand Marais. It offers snowmobiling, cross country skiing, snow shoeing and winter camping trips of both long and short duration. Trail grooming for snowmobile use is underway, but has been slowed due to poorly frozen soil conditions resulting from the early and deep snow cover.

Users of the North Shore Trail will find eight new shelters this year, bringing the total for the entire length to 15. Parking facilities will be available for use at the Martin Road trail terminus in Duluth this year and several new bridges have been constructed. Large bridges spanning the Cross river along the trail and on a connector trail to the Cross river wayside area are planned for construction next spring.

Other state trail open for use is the Taconite, running 130 miles from Ely to just north of Grand Rapids. As with the North Shore Trail, all winter trail uses authorized by law are allowed on the Taconite Trail.

Potential for enjoying a remote setting is great on the Taconite, with several grant-in-aid trails intersecting and forming loop routines. Recent trail improvements include correction of wash out problem areas, improvement of the Starke river bridge, direction and location signs and improvements on the Highway 63 bridge for better grooming.

Acquistion and development of the final 25 miles of the Taconite Trail into Grand Rapids is in progress; however, identifying a route that satisfies local citizens, user groups and land owners is requiring detailed research and negotiations.

It is planned to select a route this winter so that the final segment of the trail will be extended into Grand Rapids next summer.

Tower-International Falls Trail is the newest state trail in northeast Minnesota. At present, route selection and acquisition is taking place, along with development such as shearing through swamp areas. A crossing site over the Rat Root river has been tentatively selected that will require a 70 foot bridge.

DNR has spent over $160,000 for improvements, development, operations and maintenance on these 300 plus miles of trails since the end of the last winter recreation season. The expenditures are regarded by officials as investments in the recreational opportunities available in the region and as a benefit to all Minnesotans.

Further information and maps can be obtained from either the DNR Region 2 Trails and Waterways Office, 1201 East Highway 2, Grand Rapids, Minnesota 55744; 326-1755; or the DNR Trails and Waterways Central Office, P.O. Box 52, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155, 612-296-6699.

Carver Translates Trophy Thoughts Into Replicas

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

When deer season comes along, Mitchell Peterson of rural Strathcona puts away his carpentry tools for a few days and spends the time in the woods. And when the deer season is over, he takes out his carving tools and translates his thoughts of trophy bucks into wooden replicas.

A whittler at heart, Peterson has been carving items to keep, sell or give away for the past 10 years. He started out with whimsical totem poles, including one eight-foot oak creation which he cut in the woods because of its unusual shape and took home to carve.

About three and one-half years ago he started carving deer. His tools are quite basic, including a hand coping saw and a few assorted carving knives, but his technique is improving and the life-like qualities of his full-bodied carvings show a familiarity with his subject. He studies the animals whenever he can and plans to take additional photos to help record their poses and conformation.

His basic wood has been pine, although he would like to try basswood if he can find a source of suitable blocks. He carves the entire animal from a single piece of wood, including the racks of antlers with their slender, fragile tines. For plaques to mount carved heads he often uses locally-cut woods such as oak and aspen (popple).

Peterson is in a good area to study his subjects. He lives just off the ridge road about nine miles northeast of Middle River. When he and his wife, the former Linda Hanson of Strathcona, moved their mobile home to the site, a doe and her fawn came into the yard and hung around to be photographed. But addition of a dog to the family has eliminated visits by deer to the yard.

"I've worked next to deer in the field for a whole summer," Peterson said. "They get used to having a tractor running and they don't seem to get very excited by it. You get to recognize the same animals in the same area and know what to expect from them. You can learn a lot by watching."

Peterson also would like a telephoto lens for his camera and the use of a good riding horse. "You can ride right up to within a short distance from deer," he said. "They don't run from a horse. If you keep down wind and keep the horse between you and the deer you can get right in close. I'd like to see what pictures I could get doing that."

Mitchell is originally from Greenbush but he graduated from high school in 1971 at Mayer Lutheran high school in Minneapolis. He has done farm work and then turned to the carpentry trade, working with his father, who is in the contracting business. After spending seven years in Greenbush, he moved with Linda to the present location two years ago. They have a four-year-old son Carl who

WOOD CARVER Mitchell Peterson of rural Strathcona specializes in carving deer with impressive racks of antlers, but his current project is to create a stagecoach with six horses. As he began carving the horses late last week, he attracted the interest of his four-year-old son Carl. Mitchell does his carving in the entryway to the family's mobile home where the wood shavings accumulate rapidly.

Tasa Again Chairs Pennington Board

Veteran fifth district commissioner Glenn Tasa of Trail was elected chairman of the Pennington county board of commissioners to succeed Roger Hoffman of Goodridge at reorganization of the board Tuesday in the county courthouse. Commissioner Don Grabanki of Thief River Falls was elected vice chairman to succeed Tasa.

The board approved use of $14,183.88 from its community health services grant of $39,206 to subsidize the new Life Star Ambulance service which has purchased the business from Northwestern hospital. Bruce Christensen of Life Star attended the meeting and accepted the $14,183 subsidy offer for 1984, also noting he would accept the type of contract which had previously been used by the county. A contract is to be prepared for signature by county attorney David Olin.

Of the total health services grant, the board has also allocated $23,523 to the Tri-County nursing service and $1,500 to the local Hospice program at Northwestern hospital.

The board also commented on damage done to county roads by grain hauling after the spring break-up and decided to encourage farmers to haul grain before the warmer temperatures of spring. The advisory, coupled with a plan for stricter enforcement of spring load limits, is intended to reduce damage to roads and save cost for the country's taxpayers and inconvenience to users of the roads.

Approval was given to a policy to permit county sheriff's department deputies to work dances in uniform during off-duty hours, to a contract with the Hospice program at Northwestern hospital, and to declaring all unpaid mobile home taxes as collectible. Allocations were made of $450 for the Red River Valley winter shows and $3,396 for the Tri-Valley bus service.

At its reorganizational meeting Tuesday, the board set the second and fourth Tuesday of each month as the regular meeting dates, designated elected and appointed county officers as representatives in their respective state associations and authorized the auditor to set aside from the revenue fund money for payment of postage, freight, telephone,

Peterson-Graeber Vows Reaffirmed Here Dec. 27

Marriage vows were reaffirmed on Tuesday evening, December 27, at the United Methodist church in this city by Mr. and Mrs. William Graeber of El Toro, Calif.

The bride is the former Cam Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman P. Peterson of 240 North Pine avenue. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Dan Graeber of Hemet, Calif.

Rev. Melvyn Budke officiated at the reaffirmation of the vows. Jeanne Harger was the organist and Nancy Prichard, a family friend of the Petersons sang. Mrs. Prichard also sang when the couple exchanged marriage vows at 11:30 a.m., October 8, 1983, at the United Methodist church in Laguna Hills, Calif.

Officiating at that double-ring ceremony was Rev. Will Hildebrand. The church organist, Ted Johnson, played "Trumpet Voluntaire," as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. He also accompanied Nancy Prichard as she sang "God, A Woman and A Man," and "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee."

Forming the chancel setting at the California ceremony were floor candelabra with white tapers and Queen Annes lace. On the altar was an arrangement of Nerine and Star Gazer lilies, Queen Annes lace and tuber roses. White bows and streamers marked the pews.

For her wedding, the bride selected a gown of oyster white peau de soie fashioned with a fitted, long-waisted, bodice and cathedral-length train. Delicate blush-tinted seed pearls highlighted the sweetheart neckline and in matching design cascaded down the leg-of-mutton sleeves. A spray of matching seed pearls held her double-tiered veil of bridal illusion. She carried a cascading bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis and white roses, accented with alstroemeria.

Matron of honor was Sue Reimers, St. Paul, a friend of the bride. Other attendants were Tanna Anderson, Torrance, Calif., a friend of the bride; Barry Wilson, Fountain Valley, Calif., a sister of the bride; and Ivy Ongla, Newport Beach, Calif., a friend. Their gowns of eggplant taffeta were styled with off-the-shoulder sweetheart bodices and fully gathered skirts. Each attendant carried a nosegay of Star Gazer and Rubrum lilies with heather accents.

Wearing a pink taffeta dress and white ballerina slippers was the groom's seven-year-old niece, Meridith McCurdy, San Ramon, Calif., who served as flower girl. Her pleated dress with a self-ruffled hem, was accented at the waistline by a cummerbund. She carried a white basket filled with burgundy carnations, pink roses and white daisies.

Acolytes were Kendel Wilson, niece of the bride, and Becky Rhay, a niece of the groom. Their floor-length gowns of pink taffeta featured fitted, sweetheart bodices with off the shoulder puff sleeves. Self fabric roses complemented the front and back. To correspond with the bride's floral theme, they wore head wreaths of burgundy carnations, heather and ribbon streamers.

Best man was Dave Frazier, San Jose, Calif., a friend of the groom. Dan Graeber, Riverside, Calif., a brother of the groom; Bob Bryde, El Toro, Calif., a friend; and Paul Peterson, Acton, Mass., a brother of the bride, were groomsmen. The ushers were Eric Wilson, Fountain Valley, Calif., and Mark Kennard, Dana Point, Calif. All wore classic gray cut-away jackets, and gray trousers, vests and ascots. The groom had a stephanotis boutonneire, the fathers, pink roses; and the ushers and groomsmen had burgundy carnations pinned on their lapels.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Peterson was attired in a floor-length, navy blue chiffon gown designed with a lace bodice, sheer, accordion pleated sleeves and an overskirt of accordion pleated sheer. Her crescent designed corsage was of white roses centered with a Rubrum lily. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's mother, who was attired in a dusty pink gown with sheer chiffon sleeves and an accordion pleated skirt. A sheer scarf cascaded from the rolled collar.

Honor guests were the groom's aunt and uncle, Edith and Tim Ellis of Hemet, Calif., and the bride's sister-in-law, Kate Peterson, Acton, Mass., who was the bride's personal attendant.

Other special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis Prichard of Thief River Falls, Dr. and Mrs. George Van Rooy of Thief River Falls and Arizona; Jim and Deb Puder of Walnut Creek, Calif., and Perry and Amy Coles, Phoenix, Ariz.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception at the La Chinoise restaurant for 120 guests. Hosts and hostesses were Dr. and Mrs. Van Rooy and Judy and Rich McCurdy of San Ramon, Calif. Nancy Sass of Hermosa Beach, Calif., was at the guest book, and JoAnn Clemens, Fountain Valley, Calif., arranged the gifts.

Fresh flowers, corresponding with the flowers at the wedding, surrounded the four-tiered wedding cake, and also topped each tier. The cake, iced with lily of the valley frosting, featured four different flavors.

The bride's parents also hosted a reception in Thief River Falls at the Best Western following the ceremony here at United Methodist church.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Minnesota and is an interior designer principal for Interlink Design group. The groom is a graduate of Cal Poly, Pomona, Calif., and is an architect with Coleman Caskey architect.

Following a wedding trip to Europe, touring Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Italy and Greece, the couple is at home at 25885 Trabuco Road, K11, El Toro, CA 92630. Photo, Green photography, San Juan Capistrano, CA.

The bride, escorted to the altar by the groom, was attired in a sheer polyester gown with a chapel-length train. The fitted bodice, enhanced with seed pearls, featured nylon lace sleeves and a U-neckline outlined in lace. Corresponding lace appliques complemented the skirt. At the neckline, she wore the gold watch which the groom's grandmother had received as her wedding gift. Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion, edged with lace, was held by a lace headpiece, matching her gown. She carried a bouquet of red and white roses, red carnations and babies' breath.

Geraldine Stennes, Thief River Falls, attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Margaret Lefrooth, Thief River Falls, a friend of the bride. They were attired in pink polyester knit gowns with Venice lace trim fashioned with slightly raised waistlines and draped front and back necklines with bow trim at the shoulders. The attendants carried long-stemmed pink roses, surrounded by babies' breath.

Flower girls were Jodi Lehrer, Red Lake Falls, and Shauna Wuggazer, Urbandale, Iowa, nieces of the groom.

Dr. Kenneth Etterman, Sturgeon Lake, a friend of the groom, was best man. Joel Lehrer, Red Lake Falls, a brother, was groomsman. The groom and his attendants wore gray three-piece suits with red rose boutonnieres.

Serving as ushers were Douglas Sorenson, Warren, a cousin of the bride, and Robert Wuggazer, Urbandale, Iowa, a brother-in-law of the groom.

The mother of the bride was attired in a long-sleeved, street-length dress of purple and lavender sheer print. The groom's mother wore a lavender polyester, long-sleeved, street-length dress. Their identical corsages featured two lavender roses with babies' breath. Their flowers, like all the flowers at the wedding were made by Margaret Lefrooth of Thief River Falls.

Honored guest was the groom's grandmother, Maria Erdmann of Red Lake Falls.

A reception followed in the church parlors with approximately 150 guests in attendance. Host and hostess were Charles and Fern Kranz, Thief River Falls, uncle and aunt of the bride.

The pedestal, all-white, three-tiered, Lady Windermere wedding cake was cut and served by Carol Borchert, Thief River Falls, and Sharon Wuggazer, Urbandale, Iowa, sisters of the groom. Marge Law, Beltrami, cousin of the bride, and Shirley Lehrer, Red Lake Falls, a sister-in-law of the groom, poured the coffee.

Lori Lehrer, Red Lake Falls, and Gayle Borchert, Thief River Falls, served the punch. The guests were registered by Karl Lehrer, Red Lake Falls. All are nieces of the groom. His nephews, Paul Borchert and Jon Wuggazer, were gift bearers.

The wedding programs, designed by Vanette Pettis, Karlstad, were distributed by Kaye Sorenson, Warren, a cousin of the bride.

Hearing On Hazardous Waste Set In St. Paul

Minnesota's draft hazardous waste management plan and draft certificate of need for hazardous waste disposal — two documents issued by the Minnesota waste management board (WMB) December 21 which would set long-term state policies and recommend specific programs for managing the state's hazardous wastes — will be the subjects of a public hearing beginning at 9 a.m. Monday, January 16, at Room 112, State Capitol Building, St. Paul.

The hearing is being conducted to gather comments from the public on the two draft policy documents. The hearing will be conducted by a state hearing examiner from the office of administrative hearings, with a majority of the waste management board members attending, and will continue until all present have had an opportunity to testify.

The draft hazardous waste management plan recommends long-term goals for managing Minnesota's hazardous wastes, stating that Minnesota should take a "high waste reduction" approach to hazardous waste management. Such an approach calls for reducing Minnesota's hazardous waste generation to the fullest extend through the year 2000, through industrial process changes and the substitution of materials in industrial processes, to achieve a projected 31 per cent overall reduction in Minnesota's hazardous waste by that date.

The draft hazardous waste management plan also recommends specific programs to encourage hazardous waste reduction — including tax credits, grants and technical assistance for hazardous waste generators — as well as programs to encourage the development of hazardous waste treatment facilities in Minnesota as alternatives to land-disposal, including a program of grants and low-interest loans to help finance the construction of new facilities.

The draft certificate of need for hazardous waste disposal — as required by state law — severely restricts the land-disposal of hazardous wastes in Minnesota. The legislature has determined that the board should site a hazardous waste disposal or retrievable storage facility. In issuing the certificate of need for hazardous waste disposal, the board — rather than determining the need for a specific facility — is required to define the types and volumes of hazardous wastes that will require secure disposal or retrievable storage in Minnesota through the year 2000.

At the January 16 hearing members of the public will be given an opportunity to make oral statements, offer written documents for the record of direct questions to waste management board staff or the hearing examiner. Members of the public will also have 10 working days following the hearing to submit additional documents and written comments to the waste management board.

Within 15 days of the close of the hearing comment period the Minnesota pollution control agency will issue a pollution control report to the Minnesotaa legislature; 30 days after the comment period closes the waste management board will revise the draft plan and certificate of need and submit the revised documents to the legislature.

Copies of the draft hazardous waste management plan and the draft certificate of need have been distributed to regional libraries throughout the state;courthouses in counties containing potential hazardous waste disposal sites; public libraries and city offices in cities within the vicinity of potential hazardous waste disposal sites; and city offices and public libraries in communities containing or near "preferred areas" for hazardous waste processing facilities.

The board is currently considering four candidate hazardous waste disposal sites in Carver county, near Cologne; Scott county, near New Prague; Aitkin county, near Hill City; and Marshall county, near Strandquist.

Also under consideration are four "study areas" for a crystalline bedrock hazardous waste disposal facility in St. Louis County, 28 miles southeast of International Falls; in Stearns county, near St. Cloud; in Redwood county, near Belview; and in Yellow Medicine county, near Echo.

In addition, the waste management board has selected "preferred areas" for hazardous waste processing facilities, for either chemical waste treatment facilities, hazardous waste incinerators or "transfer and storage" facilities for hazardous wastes, in or near 21 Minnesota communities. Areas in or near Cottage Grove, Duluth, Inver Grove Heights, Mankato, Ramsey, Rosemount and Shakopee are suitable for all three types of facilities.

Areas in or near Forest Lake, Fridley, Lakeville, Minneapolis, Owatonna, Plymouth, Roseville and St. Paul are suitable only for chemical waste treatment or transfer and storage facilities, while areas in Crookston, Fergus Falls, Rochester (Stewartville), Waite Park and Willmar are suitable for transfer and storage facilities only.

In addition to libraries and government offices in these communities, the draft plan and draft certificate of need are also available — for a nominal fee — from the board offices: 7323 58th Avenue North, Crystal, MN 55428, phone 1-800-652-9747.

Residents interested in testifying are also encouraged to consult the board's hazardous waste management report, issued earlier in December, which provides a detailed picture of the hazardous waste problem in Minnesota. The report has also been distributed to libraries or government offices, and is also available for a nominal fee from the waste management board.

SLIDING down the river bank was just one of the activities which area youngsters were able to enjoy as a result of the unseasonably warm weather which got 1984 off to a great start this week. Although the hill required a little work, and had to bounce over ruts left by some inconsiderate four-wheeler, they didn't seem to mind, and made the most of the break from sub-zero temperatures to play outside.

Truck Weight Increase OK During Winter

All authorized trucks will be allowed to carry up to 10 per cent more gross weight than the legal weight limit when hauling on all state trunk highways beginning January 1, the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) announced.

Extra weight can be allowed because freezing conditions strengthen the highway roadbed, said Curt Christie, Mn-DOT state maintenance engineer.

Annual permits costing $60 for increased weights on interstate highways are available at Mn-DOT permit offices to trucks licensed to carry as much as 88,000 pounds gross weight. Permits will not be required on non-interstate routes.

Increased weight limits will remain in effect statewide until March 7, he said, unless otherwise determined by the commissioner of transportation.

Christie advises truckers, mobile home movers and other haulers to move heavy loads now while the frozen roadbeds allow such movements.

"By moving heavy loads during the winter months," he said, "truckers can legally carry extra weight and avoid reduced loan limits that become effective in March with the onset of spring weight restrictions."

Tasa Chairs Pennington County Board

water, lights and other utility expenses of the county.

Among appointments made were Roger Hoffman and chairman Tasa to the county extension committee, Don Grabanski to the law library committee, Albert Koop to the Thief River Falls regional airport commission and airport zoning commission, chairman Tasa on the OEO board at Oklee, Grabanski on the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce board, Koop and K. E. Gigstad on the Headwaters RC&D board, Otto Stenberg and Joyce Fox to the Inter-County nursing service board, Grabanski to the transportation committee of the Northwest regional development commission, Koop to the Northwest Apartments, Inc., board and Stenberg to the Pennington county committee on aging.

The board will serve as a committee of the whole on the road, bridge and culvert committee, county welfare board and inter-governmental affairs committee.

Dr. F. W. Hazard was appointed county livestock inspector, the Thief River Falls Times was designated the official newspaper for publication of county legal notices and Northern state bank, Norwest bank and the St. Hilaire branch of the Plummer state bank were named official depositories of county funds. Approval was given to submitted securities of $925,000 by Northern state bank and $3,605,500 by Norwest bank with the FDIC guarantee approved for the Plummer state bank.

Commissioners Stenberg and Grabanski, along with auditor Ken Olson, were named to the courthouse building and maintenance committee. Sheriff Charles Richards is to oversee matters pertaining to the law enforcement center and administrator Sherryll Irvine is to oversee building matters at Oakland Park home. Sheriff Richards was also appointed to the board of the Minnesota Juvenile Training center with offices in Bemidji.

Resolution authorizing the department of transportation commissioner to act for the county in highway construction was approved, as was a resolution authorizing the county to administer social services for the state of Minnesota. State funds for 1984 under the program total $217,000.

The county board also authorized Sheriff Richards to increase the cost charged to other counties for boarding prisoners at the Pennington county law enforcement center from $15 to $18 per day. The increase will become effective February 1 to allow time for notification of the other counties.

The county will again participate in the state cost allocation plan whereby the state determines the amount of work provided by county officers in behalf of the state — primarily in the welfare area — to pro-rate cost reimbursement from the state. Reimbursement has generally exceeded cost allocation program cost by several times.

It was noted that bids could be let in 1984 on First street bridge widening if plans could be prepared in time. The county highway engineer was authorized to discuss with Northwestern hospital officials the right of way for bridge approach on the west end of the bride.

The meeting was adjourned to January 17 at 10 a.m. Hearings will be held that same afternoon on housing rehabilitation grant and revenue sharing.

Farmers May Be Eligible For SBA Assistance

Farmers in the state of Minnesota who are ineligible for financial assistance from the Farmers Home administration as a result of excessive rain, hail and high winds on August 15, in Wabasha county; excessive rains and heat during the summer months of 1983 and wind damage on August 25, in Pennington and Red Lake counties which delayed planting and harvesting of most crops, may be eligible for assistance from the U.S. Small Business administration.

"Under new legislation signed by President Reagan in November, SBA has been directed to provide financial assistance to farmers who suffered crop and-or livestock damage as a result of a disaster beginning between January 1, and September 30, 1983," said Celso C. Moreno, SBA's Minneapolis district director.

FmHA declared Pennington, Red Lake and Wabasha counties a disaster area on November 18, as a result of excessive rain, hail, high winds and excessive heat.

Moreno cautioned, however, that only those farmers who did not receive assistance from FmHA due to ineligibility reasons and have a letter of referral from FmHA are able to apply to SBA.

"Only those farmers who, by reason of their status as aliens, corporations, partnerships and cooperatives not primarily engaged in agriculture, and absentee landlords, or similar reasons, are eligible to apply to SBA," said Celso C. Moreno. Farmers who were declined by FmHA for credit reasons are not eligible to apply, Moreno said.

SBA disaster loans to farmers are limited by law to 85 per cent of the cost of repairing or replacing the damaged property, and may not exceed $500,000.

Moreno said the interest rate to be charged will be either 11 per cent or eight per cent, depending upon the individual applicant's ability to recover from the disaster without federal assistance.

If the loan is made at the 11 per cent rate, the maximum maturity allowed by law is three years. If the loan is made at the eight per cent rate, the maximum maturity may be up to 30 years.

Applications for SBA disaster loans must be filed by the close of business on February 13. Information and applications may be obtained by contacting the SBA at the Disaster Assistance Office, 75 Spring street SW, Suite 822, Atlanta, Georgia 30303.

Mr. and Mrs. Dutcher will both work in the news department of the newspaper at Roseau, Tom handling the advertising department and Jan serving as office manager. They have purchased a home in Roseau and are moving there.

Adams married Maggi Vaughan in Rome, Italy in 1966 and they have both worked on the Times-Region since that time. During their years in Roseau the Adams have won 16 state and national newspaper writing awards, including the Herman Roe editorial award of the Minnesota Newspaper association.

Farm Price Index Rises From Year Ago

Mid-December index of prices received by Minnesota farmers at 138 increased one per cent from November and 12 per cent above the index a year ago, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Meat animal prices rebounded strongly, and poultry and egg prices continued to climb, more than offsetting a decline in crop prices. Prices received by farmers for calves were the lowest since March of 1978; turkey prices were the highest since November of 1980; egg prices were record-high.

The crops index fell three per cent to 139 during the month. This was 32 per cent above the index a year earlier. The mid-December prices and the changes from last month are: All wheat, $3.68 per bushel, down 15 cents from the revised November estimate; corn, $2.92 per bushel, down seven cents; oats, $1.69 per bushel, up six cents; barley, $2.32 per bushel, down nine cents; soybeans, $7.45 per bushel, down 30 cents; flaxseed, $6.33 per bushel, down 25 cents.

Potatoes averaged $4.60 per hundredweight for all grades, up 20 cents. All hay was down $3 per ton to $69; alfalfa hay, $75 per ton, was down $5 and other hay at $52 per ton was down $7. All sunflowers at $13.70 per hundredweight were down 50 cents from the revised November price. Dry edible beans were up $1.50 to $26.60 per hundredweight.

The meat animal index at 131 was 13 per cent above last month but five per cent below a year ago. All hogs at $45.40 per hundredweight were up $7.80 from a month earlier. Beef cattle averaged $46.60 per hundredweight, up $3.10. Calves were down $3.40 to $50.50 per hundredweight. Sheep brought $14.10 per hundredweight, up $2. Lambs were up $2.60 to $58.50 per hundredweight.

The dairy index fell three per cent during the month to 146. This was three per cent below the index last year. The preliminary milk price at $12.90 per hundredweight was down 37 cents from the revised November price.

The poultry and egg index at 142 was up 18 per cent from last month and 54 per cent above a year ago. Turkeys were 43 cents per pound liveweight, up eight cents from a month earlier. Table market eggs brought 72 cents per dozen for all grades in mid-December, up nine cents from mid-November and 31½ cents above a year earlier.

SOME OF THE ITEMS carved by Mitchell Peterson of rural Strathcona are shown by Mitchell, his wife Linda and their son Carl in this photo. Peterson makes his own plaques or trophy cases for his carved deer, often using native woods such as oak and aspen. A carpenter by trade, he uses the quieter winter months to do the bulk of his carving. Some of his work will be on display at the gun show February 4 and 5 in the Thief River Falls national guard armory. Other work is exhibited at Pine to Prairie gallery in Thief River Falls.

Carver Turns Trophy Dreams To Replicas

shares his parents' outdoor interests.

In the past three and a half years Mitchell has carved about 20 miniature deer heads and a dozen full-bodied deer. A few have been sold, some given as gifts and a few more decorate the Peterson mobile home. A set of fighting bucks and some other items are on display at the Pine to Prairie art gallery in Thief River Falls. He has also shown his work at an art gallery in Shakopee and will have some of his work on display at the gun show February 4 and 5 in the national guard armory in Thief River Falls.

He estimates that the fighting bucks took more than 50 hours each to create and they are mounted on a board with a carved background. The carved deer are varnished, then stained to the color of live deer and varnished a second time to seal the stain.

Peterson is taking a break from carving deer to work on a stagecoach and six-horse hitch. Even an avid outdoorsman and deer hunter can get a little tired of the same subject once in awhile. But he has plans for some future carvings, including a doe with young fawns, just as he remembers having seen them a few springs ago.

"I like to draw," Mitchell says about his art interest, "but I prefer to carve. The place gets full of shavings most of the time but carving shortens up these winter days and nights when there is no carpentry work going on. I like to go out in the woods, too, but when it's way below zero I'll just stay inside and carve."

Some people have suggested to him that the racks of antlers on his deer are too large to be entirely realistic. Mitchell disagrees. "I haven't shot one with a rack like that yet, but I've seen 'em," he insists. "There are some huge racks out there. Some day I'll be in the right place at the right time."

Until he is, the avid hunter can reproduce the buck of his dreams in wood and share the illusion with others who have similar dreams.

Dances Being Held To Help Heart Health

Improved cardiovascular health through exercise-dancing is the goal of the American Heart association, Minnesota affiliate's dance for heart program. Throughout the month of January, Minnesota dance instructors and students will be participating in the promotion.

"The dance for heart program, a four-hour exercise dance event, is part of a nationwide effort to raise money to combat heart disease," said Vicky Plaster, 1983 Miss Minnesota. Plaster, the 1984 honorary dance for heart chairman, explains her involvement with the heart association because of her long-time interest in dance and physical fitness.

"Our goal for the 1984 dance for heart program is $100,000," added Shelly Fahning, the 1984 dance for heart state chairman. Fahning of St. Peter coordinated a very successful dance event last spring. "Last year was the first year for the dance program and we raised over $40,000 from 48 separate events," she said.

Individuals participating in a dance for heart event will seek pledges for every minute of exercise dancing they are able to complete during the event at local dance studios, high schools and other locations.

Funds raised by the various dances will enable the Minnesota affiliate to increase its efforts in heart research, community service programs and professional and public education to reduce death and disability due to heart disease.

News Council Finds Against Star & Tribune

Minnesota news council has determined by a unanimous vote that a December 2, 1982, Minneapolis Star and Tribune story on the Eagan city council's handling of the city's land development projects unfairly implied that Federal Land company got preferential treatment from city council members.

The complaint was brought to the news council independently by two parties, Eagan mayor Bea Blomquist and Eagan city councilman Thomas Egan, and by Martin Colon, a principal owner of Federal Land company. The complainants said that the December 2 article made it appear as though both Blomquist and Egan consistently favored Federal Land company over other developers in awarding land development contracts.

Frank Wright, Star and Tribune managing editor, maintained that the article was accurate and balanced and that two corrections regarding the story had been published.

The news council's determination was based not on the accuracy of individual pieces of information, but on the manner in which the reporter chose certain facts to build the story while ignoring other pertinent facts.

The determination said that while the council recognizes the right of a newspaper or broadcast station to decide what facts and quotes to include in news reports and features, there is a problem if "inferences are drawn from circumstantial evidence," especially when a report selects "only those circumstances which support the inference."

It pointed out that news stories, particularly when they concern serious charges affecting a person's reputation, should be fair, balanced and thorough. "These requirements apply with no less force to stories that characterize the action of public officials than to others," the news council determined.

The news council is an independent nonprofit group whose volunteer members hear and evaluate complaints against the news media in Minnesota. Its informal determinations are publicized throughout the state. Copies of the full determination can be obtained by writing to the news council.

Prowlers, Lumberjacks Meet Friday

Bemidji will provide a tough assignment for Thief River Falls when the Lumberjacks and Prowlers square off in a North Sub-Region 8AA high school basketball game Friday at the Lincoln gym.

Thief River Falls' aggressive defensive play enabled the Prowlers to win two of three starts in the recent Thief River Falls Christmas Classic, an eight-team, three-day invitational tournament completed Friday, but Bemidji's defense was even more news worthy when the Lumberjacks shut out a strong East Grand Forks team for a full quarter en route to a 69-50 championship game win over the Green Wave in the four-team, two-day Lumberjacks Media Classic.

East Grand Forks opened with a 17-10 first quarter lead in the Friday finals, but Bemidji outscored the Green Wave 22-0 in the second period. A switch from a 1-3-1 zone to a 2-1-2 zone closed down the inside game for the tall Green Wave, with the visitors 0-for-9 from the field that quarter.

Joe Edlund, a 6-2 junior, scored 23 points and grabbed 8 rebounds for the winners, while Scott Kerick added 12 points and Jeff Leyendecker had 10. Dave Vonesh, a 6-6 sophomore, scored 20 points for the Green Wave, but he was their only double figure scorer. Despite the size disadvantage, Bemidji wound up with a 44-32 rebound edge.

Bemidji will bring a 5-1 record to Thief River Falls. The Prowlers came up with a rare two-game regular season sweep over the Lumberjacks last year, winning by a 44-37 margin in the first meeting at Bemidji and adding a 52-44 victory here later in the year. That latter decision snapped a six-game Bemidji win streak the Lumberjacks had compiled in the Lincoln gym.

Thief River Falls will have to continue its strong defensive work to be successful against Bemidji, considered a North Sub-Region 8AA contender this winter.

LHS Girls End String of Road Games

Lincoln high school girls basketball team, after having played just one of its first eight games at home, will be playing seven of its final 11 regular season games in the Lincoln gym.

Thief River Falls opened the 1983-84 season at home Nov. 29, but the Prowlers have since played seven straight games on the road, including two games in the Marshall County Central holiday invitational tournament.

That string of road games finally ends Saturday, though, when Thief River Falls host Red Lake Falls. There will be a Monday trip to Bemidji for the Prowlers, but then comes a string of home games sprinkled with just two road assignments to nearby East Grand Forks and Crookston before the schedule ends Feb. 21 at Fergus Falls.

Miscellaneous

+Lincoln high school graduate Ann Goodrich is a junior forward on the Northwestern College women's basketball team in St. Paul.

+Minnesota 1984 District 32A basketball tournament semifinals and finals are tentatively scheduled to be played in Thief River Falls, providing the Prowlers are not seeded high enough to host a North Sub-Region 8AA game those nights. Coaches will make those seedings based upon regular season results for the post-season games that will start Mon., Feb. 27, at the various sites of the higher-seeded teams. District 32 semifinals and finals have been held at Newfolden and Roseau in recent years.

+Bemidji, having already knocked off defending Section 7 champion International Falls, pulled off another surprise last week with a 4-3 overtime high school hockey win over defending Section 2 champion Columbia Heights. The Lumberjacks had an 8-1 shots-on-goal advantage in overtime before Scott Johnson finally got the game-winner at 5:58.

EAST GRAND FORKS goalie Chris Pagnac smothered the puck as Thief River Falls forward Rick Spong (19) looked for the rebound during the second period of Tuesday's Section 8 high school hockey game played in the sports arena. The Prowlers out-shot the Green Wave 39-4, but Pagnac stopped 36 of those shots as East Grand Forks edged Thief River Falls 4-3. The Prowlers visit Lake of the Woods Saturday, then host Crookston Tuesday.

Prowlers Host Bemidji Friday

Area high school basketball teams resume their 1983-84 schedules this weekend, including the renewal of the long-time Thief River Falls vs. Bemidji rivalry Friday when the Prowlers host the Lumberjacks in the Lincoln gym. Junior varsity game will start at 6 p.m., with the varsity contest to follow, at approximately 7:45.

Thief River Falls is 2-5 for the year after the Prowlers' third place finish in their own eight-team Christmas Classic completed last Friday. They were winless in four starts going into the three-day tournament, but opened with a 53-39 win over Kennedy, lost to eventual champion Fertile-Beltrami 53-32 in the semifinals and bounced back to edge Marshall County Central 47-45 for third place honors.

Elsewhere on Friday, Marshall County Central (3-2) faces a stiff test when the Nordics visit East Grand Forks, Grygla (2-4) will be at Lake of the Woods and Plummer (5-2) will host Climax. The Cardinals' most recent outing was a championship finish in the eight-team Goodridge tournament completed Dec. 20, where Plummer edged Goodridge 57-55 in the finals. Grygla beat Strandquist 49-39 for third place in that same tournament.

Games scheduled Saturday will find Goodridge (3-3) at Central Valley and Middle River (3-3) hosting Hallock. The Skippers beat Mahnomen 54-46 in the seventh place game at the Thief River Falls tournament.

Prowlers Defeat Spuds 55-48 Tuesday . . .

Lincoln Girls Earn First-Ever Basketball Win Over Moorhead

An athletic milestone was reached Tuesday for the Lincoln high school girls basketball team as the Prowlers recorded their first-ever win over Moorhead, beating the Spuds on their home court 55-48.

"We're very excited about the win over Moorhead," said Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "This has to really give us a boost."

For the first time this season, three Thief River Falls scorers hit double figures, taking the scoring load off junior Michelle Olson, who has been supplying a bulk of the Prowlers' points to date. But last night sophomores Michelle Puetz and Connie Grovum combined for 35 points, while Olson got 14. Puetz had a 19-point, 11-rebound game, with Grovum enjoying her best game ever, according to Schafer, with 16 points.

Center Kathy Sheets, a 5-9 junior, led Moorhead with 18 points, but she was the Spuds' only double figure scorer.

It was a 12-12 first quarter standoff, with Thief River Falls going into halftime with a 25-22 edge and entering the final quarter with a 40-34 advantage. Moorhead, 1-5, did cut the gap to three points with about three minutes left after a series of Thief River Falls turnovers, but the Prowlers then broke the Spuds' press with a couple of baskets to regain control.

"I was very pleased with the way we kept our poise near the end," pointed out Schafer, whose team is now 6-2 for the year. "We played very well. If we had played like this in our two losses, we would be unbeaten."

Thief River Falls shot 39 per cent from the field (20-for-51) and 47 per cent at the free throw line (15-for-32). Moorhead shot 26 per cent from the field (17-for-66) and 52 per cent at the line (14-for-27). The Spuds owned a 43-37 rebound edge and the Prowlers topped the turnover figures 23-22.

"We had a good all-round team effort," said Schafer.

Thief River Falls will host Red Lake Falls Saturday and will be in Bemidji Monday.

Prowlers Out-Shoot EGF, But Green Wave Wins 4-3

Thief River Falls out-shot East Grand Forks 39-9 Tuesday but still wound up on the losing side of a 4-3 Section 8 high school hockey game played in the sports arena.

Saddled with a frustrating 2-5 record, the Prowlers held the Green Wave without a shot on goal in the first period, scoring once themselves on 11 shots. Thief River Falls then out-shot East Grand Forks 19-5 in the second period, but came out of it trailing 3-2.

A power play slap shot from the point by defenseman Jim Geatz just 42 seconds into the final period gained the Prowlers a 3-3 tie, but East Grand Forks football standout Steve Ristau scored on a quick, hard, ice-hugging shot from the slot at 3:47 for the game-winner against Thief River Falls senior netminder Lee Genereux, who didn't enjoy the success he had in a 6-0 shutout of Grand Forks Red River in his last start five days earlier.

East Grand Forks goalie Chris Pagnac, a junior, was the game's busiest player as he kept the Green Wave in the contest in the face of near-constant Thief River Falls pressure for two full periods.

"We've been waiting for one of our goaltenders to take over," noted East Grand Forks coach Tony Palmiscno. "Chris really did a nice job. It's very obvious he was the spark for us."

Depsite numerous scoring opportunities, Thief River Falls' only lead was 1-0 in the first period when freshman center Scott Novak came from behind the net and tried to stuff the puck past Pagnac. The goalie made the initial save on the play, but Novak stayed with it and poked it in with just 45 seconds left.

"We should have scored a few more goals," offered Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "I certainly think we by far had the better scoring opportunities, but we just weren't able to finish."

Instead, East Grand Forks scored three straight goals. On the first Green Wave shot-on-goal of the night, Chad Grassel was camped in front and he tipped the puck past Genereux on a power play at 1:01 of the second period.

One that really hurt, said Grand, was a shorthanded job by Ristau at 6:12 of the period. East Grand Forks had managed to hold off yet another Thief River Falls assault when Ristau broke down the right wing and beat Genereux cleanly to the far side as he skated across the blue line.

It became 3-1 when Todd Benson sidestepped a check along the boards and fed the puck to Bill Zeller in front at 10:07.

Mitch Semanko got Thief River Falls back into the game at 11:29 when he pulled in a loose-lying rebound in front and pushed it by Pagnac for a 3-2 game.

Geatz' slap shot then tied it, but Ristau's second goal of the game won it in the third period.

"We very obviously were out-shot," admitted Palmiseno. "Their forwards just out-quicked us in our own end. They were really buzzing on their forechecking."

While disappointed in the outcome, Grand took solace in the Prowlers' play. "We're encouraged with the kids' efforts," he sai. "We feel they worked hard enough to win the game. Our goals-against — outside of two goals — is low enough to be winning. Certainly we put on enough pressure tonight to win."

Thief River Falls will play Lake of the Woods Saturday in Baudette, with the Prowlers looking for their first win in Section 8 play after four losses. East Grand Forks is 4-3 for the year.

LHS Swimmers See Grand Forks Team Thursday

Home opener for the 1983-84 Lincoln high school swimming team will take place Thursday when the Prowlers host Grand Forks in a 5 p.m. dual meet at the Franklin middle school pool.

Thursday's meet against the cooperative swimming programs from Grand Forks Central and Red River high schools, is a make-up date from a Dec. 15 season opener that was postponed by weather.

Thief River Falls also had a Dec. 22 appearance at the Park Rapids triangular postponed by weather. No make-up date has been announced for that one. Thief River Falls' lone outing to date, then, was a Dec. 17, appearance at the Bemidji Relays, where the Prowlers finished third in a five-team field.

A triangular meet in Detroit Lakes Saturday awaits the Prowlers, who will be joining the Lakers and Fargo South for the 1:30 p.m. event.

Northland Teams Return To Action

Northland community college athletic teams, idle during much of the holiday break, will swing back into action this weekend.

Coach Tony Dorn's Northland hockey team will host Rainy River in a Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) weekend series at the Thief River Falls sports arena. Games will be played Friday at 7:30 p.m. and Saturday at 1 p.m. The Northmen are 3-2 for the year, opening with a single 5-4 win over the University of Minnesota-Crookston, then sweeping Mesabi 10-5 and 9-8 before losing a pair of one-sided games to Hibbing 12-2 and 10-2 in their last action Dec. 16-17.

Both the men's and women's basketball teams will be playing the Bemidji State University junior varsity this weekend in Bemidji.

Coach Deb Jacobson's Northwomen, 5-3, will be in Bemidji Friday for a 5:30 p.m. game. Northland has been idle since a 61-49 loss at Itasca Dec. 20.

Coach Chet Engelman's Northmen, also 5-3, will be in Bemidji Saturday for a 2 p.m. game. Bemidji State junior varsity defeated Northland 69-53 in Thief River Falls earlier this season. Northland's last outing was a 72-58 loss to host Minneapolis community college in the finals of a two-day, four-team invitational tournament completed Dec. 20.

Booster Club Plans Meeting

Weekly schedule of 12-noon Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club luncheon meetings, suspended during the holidays, will resume Thursday in the basement of the Rex Cafe.

Northland community college basketball coach Chet Engelman will be this week's guest speaker.

Skippers Push Record To 8-0

Middle River ran its record to 8-0 Tuesday with a one-sided 66-27 girls high school basketball win over visiting Strandquist.

Six Strandquist players fouled out of the game as the Warriors sent the Skippers to the free throw line 43 times. They made 20 of them, but missed the front end of 14 bonus opportunities that could have pushed the totals even higher.

Middle River owned quarter leads of 23-5, 36-13 and 46-21.

Diane Black led the Skippers with 24 points, getting 18 of them in the first half, while Jody Christofferson scored 17 and Paula Rantanen 13. No Strandquist scorer hit double figures as the Warriors collected more fouls than points.

Middle River will host Roseau Thursday.

by John Michael Anderson

All four Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA) teams brought home trophies from East Grand Forks last weekend.

Coach Tim Engelstad's Eagles Pee-Wee A team won second place in their division. In the opening game of the tournament, Thief River Falls defeated Moorhead 3-1 behind single goals by Wade Jorde, John Seaverson and Aaron Bruzek. Ten players scored goals as Thief River Falls won its second game against West Fargo 11-2, out-shooting their opponent 42-5. Fargo North defeated Thief River Falls 10-5 in the championship game with five unanswered second period goals. Corey Poole's hat trick and single tallies by Jorde and Robbie Coltom weren't enough as Thief River Falls finished 1983 with a fine 8-3 record.

Pee-Wee B team also took second place honors at East Grand Forks. In game one, Thief River Falls defeated Fargo North 6-2 with Jerold Kolden scoring twice and Roger Anderson, Jay Opdahl, Paul Kezar and Paul Borchert adding singles. In game two, seven played scored goals as Thief River Falls overwhelmed Moorhead 9-1, outshooting them 35-9. Thief River Falls lost the championship game 5-3 to Fargo South, getting single goals from Anderson, Jeff Shafland and Kezar. Their record is now a fine 10-2.

VFW Bantam A team captured third place honors in East Grand Forks. Thief River Falls got a pair of goals from Jason Boughton and Jon Matson on the way to a 7-1 opening game victory over Moorhead. Steve McGann scored the game's first goal, but that was all the Thief River Falls scoring in a 7-1 Crookston second round victory. Goalie Kraig Anderson got the shutout and Troy Hanestad collected the hat trick as Thief River Falls took third place with an 8-0 victory over Fargo North. Thief River Falls out-shot Fargo North 59-19 and completely dominated play throughout the game in improving its record to 6-7.

Coach Scott Bergland's Bantam B team won third place honors with a pair of weekend wins. In game one, Thief River Falls got two-goal performances from Grant Larson, Mitch Wilebski and Chris Johnson in a 10-6 win over Fargo North. Moorhead defeated Thief River Falls 7-4 in game two as Wilebski scored twice while Shoan Nelson and Lynn Skibicki scored once each. Thief River Falls then overwhelmed host East Grand Forks 11-1.

Thief River Falls In-House Pee-Wees played a four-game series against East Grand Forks last week, splitting a pair of doubleheaders. On Tuesday, Thief River Falls won the first game 6-3, with Barry Koch scoring twice while Ryan Haugen, Wade Soiney and Darren Bakke scoring single goals, but East Grand Forks won the second game 5-4 despite a three-goal hat trick performance by Haugen and a single goal by Darrin Tele. On Thursday, Thief River Falls opened with a 4-2 win as Haugen scored twice and Monty Boreen and Lucas Soiney scored once each, but East Grand Forks again won the nightcap, 6-4, with Troy Coltom getting two goals while Jack Sculthrop and Terry Wahl each scored once.

Loons Appear On Income Tax Forms In 1984

There's something new on Minnesota's 1983 income tax and property tax forms — the loon. The state bird marks the line where taxpayers can make a donation to the nongame wildlife fund, note Department of Natural Resources officials.

Donations to the DNR nongame wildlife fund are used to fund over 50 wildlife conservation projects in Minnesota, including restoration of peregrine falcons and trumpeter swans, comprehensive planning for nongame wildlife and special projects to help bluebirds, bald eagles and loons.

During the past three years, Minnesota has been able to establish one of the most progressive nongame wildlife conservation programs in the nation thanks to the generous support of its citizens.

During 1983, 11 more states passed nongame checkoff laws. This brings the total number of states with a nongame wildlife checkoff to 31. Many of these states are now using the nongame wildlife program in the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources as a model for development of their own state nongame wildlife programs.

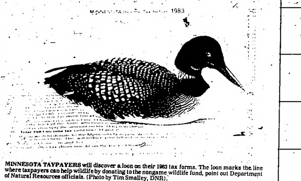
Taxpayers in Minnesota can personally help continue these vital efforts preserve our wildlife by looking for the loon on their income tax and property tax forms, and giving generously to the nongame wildlife fund, note officials. Donations are tax-deductible on the following year's return.

Good Hunting Is Reported At Agassiz Refuge

Deer and moose hunters had excellent success during the recent season in the area that includes Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge and the Elm Lake, Eckvoll and Mud Lake state wildlife management areas. Located 20 miles northeast of Thief River Falls, the 103-square mile area supports 3,000 deer and 350 to 400 moose, say wildlife officials.

In the November 5-13 deer firearms season, an estimated 1,025 hunters harvested almost 500 deer, more than doubling the harvest of the recent years. This is the most deer harvested for the area since 1961 when 742 deer were taken. Increased harvest in 1983 resulted from a change in the season framework permitting 9-day concurrent hunting of buck and antlerless deer, compared to the more restrictive, split season framework of the past several years, officials explained.

Thirty-five out of 36 moose hunting parties (one moose allowed per party of 4 hunters) succeeded in bagging a moose during the December 3-11 season, a 97 per cent rate of success. Of the 35 moose taken, 27 were bulls and 8 were cows. Unlike previous years, no calves were harvested. Good snow cover and mild weather contributed to the success of the moose hunt.



MINNESOTA TAYPAYERS will discover a loon on their 1983 tax forms. The loon marks the line where taxpayers can help wildlife by donating to the nongame wildlife fund, point out Department of Natural Resources officials. (Photo by Tim Smalley, DNR).

Considering each city resident breathes in 420 cubic feet of air every day, hardy, smog-resistant trees, like dogwood and Norway maple, that absorb polluted air and give off clean air, have quite a useful virtue.

Deer Season Harvest Sets New Record

Minnesota firearms deer hunters took approximately 146,000 deer for the 1983 season, Commissioner of Natural Resources Joseph Alexander announced.

That figure exceeds the 1982 take by about 40 per cent and establishes a new record for the state. The previous highest take was 127,000 in 1965.

A preliminary count of firearms deer licenses sold this year produced a figure about the same as the final tally of 372,128 sold in 1982.

Returns for the bow and arrow and muzzleloader deer season have not been compiled yet, but are expected to carry the total 1983 harvest over the 150,000 mark.

Alexander said the DNR is very pleased with the season results.

"This season indicates the success of the antlerless quota system," he said. "Considering the severity of the winter, it is good the take was high.

"During severe winters such as this, we expect some overwinter loss. Had we failed to meet our harvest objectives, this loss would have been even higher."

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls water utility announced today that the State maximum allowable limit for turbidity in drinking water is being exceeded.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity levels do not create any health hazard because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with State Health Department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen Lamm at the Water Plant, phone number 681-3809.

WATER dripping off the roof at Washington elementary school proved irresistable to two little girls waiting for their bus on Tuesday afternoon, and they just had to try and catch a few drops in their mouths. Mothers most likely wouldn't have approved of the activity, but when spring weather arrives in January, almost anything can be forgiven, including soggy clothes.

Tax Packages To Be Sent To Minnesotans

An estimated 1.7 million federal tax packages will be delivered to people in Minnesota in the next two weeks, according to C.D. Switzer, director of the IRS in Minnesota. Tax agency will be sending out 1.2 million 1040 packages and 517,990 1040A-1040EZ packages.

Forms are "tailored" to the taxpayer's needs in that they are based on the type of form the taxpayer filed last year. "However, if there has been a change in life-style such as a marriage, a divorce, or a spouse going back to work for example, a form may be needed that is not in the tax package," Switzer said.

After January 3, additional forms are available at IRS offices. New this year is an IRS "forms only" number you can call to leave a recorded message to order forms and publications. The "forms only" number is (612) 224-7461 and is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week. People outside the Twin Cities calling area will be charged a long distance fee for the call. When itemizing deductions, the cost of the call may be used as a "miscellaneous deduction" on the tax return.

Taxpayer information lines will also accept form orders. In the metro area call 291-1422 or from anywhere else in the state call toll-free 1-800-424-1040. These lines are open during business hours Monday through Friday.

Eye Injury From Exploding Auto Batteries Rises

Eye injuries caused by exploding automobile batteries rose to record highs in 1982, reports the National Society to Prevent Blindness (NSPB). According to the society, an estimated 14,238 people were treated in hospital emergency rooms for wet cell battery-related injuries. Almost three-quarters of those injuries were to the eyes.

"Most battery explosions occur when jump-starting a car battery," says Dennis Hirschfelder, director of the society's eye safety program. "Injuries have reached the highest level ever reported by the consumer product safety commission, source of the society's injury estimates. Unless people are aware of the basics of battery maintenance and correct jump-starting procedures, this trend will almost certainly continue."

A lighted match or cigarette, a spark from a dropped tool, booster or charge cables can ignite a battery. The resulting explosion can send a stream of battery acid into the eyes, causing severe burns or even blindness.

To minimize eye injury risk, the society urges that drivers keep goggles in their vehicles at all times, and wear them whenever working around a car battery.

"All batteries, including maintenance-free types, should be checked periodically to assure peak performance," Hirschfelder says. Here are the things to watch for:

—Water level. Water lost through evaporation overcharging should be replaced.

—Corrosion. Inspect battery terminals on a regular basis and clean as needed. Any corrosion on terminals should be removed with a cleaning solution of water and ammonia or baking soda. Clean terminals can be coated with petroleum jelly after attaching cable terminals to battery. Replace any severely corroded terminals.

—Charge. The charging system should be checked annually — particularly before cold weather season.

—Manufacturer's instructions on batteries and in car's operating manual should be followed.

The society urges that safety goggles be worn whenever performing any of these tasks. Drivers of vehicles equipped with sealed maintenance-free type batteries should consult their local service station for assistance.

"Don't be deceived by the words 'maintenance free,'" Hirschfelder adds. "Although more easily handled, maintenance-free batteries need some attention as well. And, despite their sealed appearance, these batteries do have ventilation areas for explosive vapors. Keep all flames away from them!"

Should motorists have to jump-start a dead battery, the society recommends the following procedures:

Before attaching cables:

—Put out all cigarettes and flames!

—Make sure cars don't touch. Set both cars' parking brakes and automatic shifts to "Park" (manual transmissions to neutral). Turn ignition (and all other electrical accessories) off.

—Add battery water, if needed. Replace caps, cover with damp cloth. Don't jump-start if fluid is frozen!

—Do not jump-start unless both batteries are negatively grounded and the same voltage. American cars are either 12-volt or 6-volt. Check owner's manual.

Attaching the Cables (do in order listed):

—Clamp one jumper cable to positive (+) terminal of dead battery. Then clamp cable's other end to positive (+) terminal of good battery.

—At good battery, clamp second cable to negative(-) terminal. Then clamp cable's other end to dead car's engine block on side away from battery.

—Start car with good battery — then start the disabled car.

—Remove cable from engine block and other car's negative terminal. Then remove cable from positive terminals.

"Safety goggles should be worn at all times when jump-starting a dead battery," Hirschfelder adds. "No attempt should be made to recharge or jump-start if the battery fluid is frozen. The battery should be removed and placed in a warm area and allowed to thaw. Otherwise battery damage may occur."

The society recommends that a professional service person be called if the battery does not respond after a jump-start attempt. Several new types of jumper cables are now on the market which are designed to reduce the risk of sparking. They are available at many automotive supply stores, the society adds.

NSPB has available a bright yellow vinyl sticker that lists its recommended jump-start procedures. The sticker can be kept in the glove compartment of the car or affixed onto a clean surface under the hood. To order a copy, send 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped, business-sized envelope to the National Society to Prevent Blindness, 79 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10016.

A Report Card On The Nation's Schools

By Archie A. Lapointe, executive director, National Assessment of Educational Progress

Parents of American school children can't help but be confused. And concerned. Studies and reports recently issued on the condition of the nation's schools are dreary and conflicting. Most speak in terms of national trends, providing little of relevance to local communities. That situation is about to change.

This year, 90,000 students ages 9, 13, and 17 are participating in the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP). This is not another research project nor is it a massive testing program, but rather the creation of a practical information system to provide lay people and policymakers data on the relationship between how children are being taught and how much they're learning.

A congressionally mandated survey, the National Assessment is a unique, cooperative effort of the educational community and the federal government. The program is managed by the Center for the Assessment of Educational Progress, an activity of Educational Testing Service (ETS) of Princeton, New Jersey, on behalf of the National Institute of Education in Washington, D.C.

The national sample involves youngsters in more than 1600 schools in 600 to 700 school districts throughout the United States. In fact, there's a good chance that either your school-age children or others near you are participating in this program.

The 1983/84 assessment will focus on reading and writing. Students will answer a series of multiple-choice questions and demonstrate their ability to write letters and essays. They will also be asked a series of questions on the amount of time they spend on homework, their study habits, reading preferences, television viewing, and other aspects of their daily lives.

Whether or not your child is directly involved in the assessment, you, as a parent, have a responsibility to get involved in charting the course of education in your community. Attend local school board meetings, discuss the published findings of educational reports with your neighbors, and, above all, encourage a learning atmosphere in your home.

In all that you do, reject "minimal competency" and "back to basics" expectations that emphasize just getting by. In today's increasingly high-technology world, the minimum is not sufficient.

The new NAEP is not setting out to reform or revolutionize education. Rather, it is seriously committed to providing parents with solid information about the skills and abilities their children should develop as they mature into adult members of our society. This information will also be highly useful to the many levels of decision makers who are charged with the management and improvement of education. Ultimately, the goal of NAEP is to have an impact on the interaction between two human beings — a teacher and a student.

For a free brochure that answers many questions about NAEP, write the National Assessment of Educational Progress, P.O. Box 2923, Princeton, New Jersey, 08541.

Members Are Selected For Tourism Group

Minnesota office of tourism director Hank Todd recently announced the membership of the statewide Tourism advisory committee. Over the past few months, the office of tourism has been screening applicants for the committee, to be chaired by Lt. Gov. Marlene Johnson. More than 200 persons in the industry applied and 36 were selected.

Tourism advisory committee counsels the office of tourism on its marketing programs to improve the effectiveness of activities and to assure better results in the marketplace. Committee will review major advertising campaigns for the office, as well as individual program support from motorcoach marketing to functions of the travel information center.

Committee members represent the various components of Minnesota's tourism industry and all geographic areas of the state.

Confidence Of Consumer At High Level

by Walter W. Heller
University of Minnesota

As 1983 ends, what's the mood of the consumer? Retailers have just enjoyed a cabbage patch doll of a Christmas season. But will the Christmas cheer last into the new year?

The odds are that consumers won't be the cutting edge of next year's expansion but will still put in a good solid performance.

There is no doubt that they are still well-heeled. Look at the evidence:

— Consumers' liquid assets are at an all-time high.

+ Consumer net worth has jumped by more than a trillion dollars in the past two years.

— Consumer debt is still very low relative to income.

— Consumer income is rising nicely as jobs grow, work weeks lengthen, corporate dividends expand and taxes continue to ease somewhat.

— Consumer confidence remains high.

What more could one ask? Contrary to all supply-side doctrine, one could ask consumers to keep their savings rate low and their spending rate high. That's exactly what they have been doing — with record low savings of around 4 per cent of disposable income — thereby propelling expansion, much to the delight of the Reaganites and much to the embarrassment of the super-supply-siders.

What consumers do in the coming year will depend on considerable part on whether they maintain their high level of confidence in the face of huge deficits and high interest rates.

Michigan survey research center's confidence index, after zooming from 65 in August of last year to 94 in July of this year, has gone nowhere since. Why? Because people are worried about high interest rates. Last March, two-thirds of consumers expected interest rates to fall, but now two-thirds expect them to rise.

Michigan Survey reveals an interesting trend: In the 1960s, the consumer spending mood responded to changes in income, in the 1970s, to changes in prices and now, in the 1980s, to changes in interest rates.

On the eve of the new year, consumers are a little worried about high interest rates but are still in good shape to their share in keeping the recovery rolling in 1984.

Japanese Teens To Study In United States

Forty-seven Japanese teenagers appointed by their perfecture (state) governors will live and study in the United States for a year beginning August 1984 as part of President Reagan's international youth exchange initiative.

Called the Japan prefecture program, the new exchange is being funded by the U.S. information agency and administered by youth for understanding, a private not-for-profit international exchange organization. The students, selected through prefecture-wide competition, will stay with American families and attend high schools throughout the United States.

The program complements the Japan-U.S. senate scholarship program, begun by the Japanese government two years ago, which sends 100 American high school students to Japan for the summer. Appointed by their U.S. senators, the students are chosen on statewide competition.

USIA Director Charles Z. Wick said of the new exchange, "During his recent visit to Japan, President Reagan reinterated the importance of expanding exchanges of young people between our two counpries. The Japan Prefecture Program is the U.S. response to the generous Japanese Government program which has benefited so many young Americans over the past two years. We look forward to welcoming their Japanese counterparts next August and helping to further advance U.S.-Japanese friendship."

The Japanese students will meet with their prefecture governors and other Japanese government officials before coming to the United States. On arrival, they will learn about the U.S. system of government through a four-day orientation in Washington, D.C. During their year in the United States, each student will also meet a U.S. senator from the state where he or she is living.

During the first two years of the Japan-U.S. Senate Program, the American participants were received by Japanese Prime Ministers Zenko Suzuki and Yasuhiro Nakasone, as well as by many of the governors of the prefectures where they were staying. The Japan-U.S. Senate Program has been so successful that several nations including Finland and the Federal Republic of Germany are modeling programs after it.

President Reagan proposed his International Youth Exchange Initiative in May 1982. The program aims to greatly increase the number of young people exchanged between the United States and the Versailles Economic Summit nations: Japan, Canada, the United Kingdom, the Federal Republic of Germany, Italy and France.

"Oh Give Me a Home"

Last night a miracle occurred. It happened on the night Johnny got a guitar and all of us joined in a family sing along.

When Sam came to live with us over a year ago, he didn't even talk. Raised in a sub-standard home, he was a mighty unhappy little boy with problems galore.

He didn't like us at first—he wasn't glad to be with us. But, gradually, as the months wore on, he began to trust us, and believe in our love.

That night as the family sang together—Sam suddenly began to sing with us. The miracle had occurred. He was now one of the family.

You see, the Church had taught us that the love of God accepts us completely and unconditionally. We had learned that we could love and accept Sam in the same way. In becoming a part of God's family, we had discovered how to create a new family of our own.

BACK TO BASICS COOKING

Creole cooking, an American original, is a distinctive combination of French, Spanish and Anglo-Saxon cuisines. Hot red pepper, onions, garlic, green pepper and tomatoes provide the piquancy of this extremely varied cuisine. Also typical of Creole cooking is okra—for flavor and for thickening. Not so typical is the addition of soy sauce. The characteristic flavor and aroma of naturally brewed Kikkoman Soy Sauce enhances and brings out all the rich taste of Louisiana Chicken Creole, without overpowering. The result of a slow, natural fermentation process, Kikkoman Soy Sauce makes a tasteful contribution to many of the world's most popular dishes. Served over a bed of fluffy rice, this spicy dish will warm the winter's chill.

LOUISIANA CHICKEN CREOLE

- 3-pound broiler-fryer chicken, cut-up
- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 medium onion, coarsely chopped
- 1 medium green pepper, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 can (28 oz.) tomatoes, quartered
- ½ cup Kikkoman Soy Sauce
- ¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen okra, thawed and drained
- Hot cooked rice

Brown chicken pieces on all sides in hot oil in large deep skillet or Dutch oven over medium heat; remove. Add onion, green pepper and garlic to same skillet and sauté until onion is translucent. Stir in tomatoes, soy sauce and cayenne; bring to boil. Arrange chicken pieces in sauce. Cover and simmer 50 minutes, turning chicken pieces over once. Stir in okra; cover and simmer 10 minutes longer, or until okra is tender. Serve chicken and sauce over hot rice. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Fixing What They Broke

If it wasn't so tragic for so many people, it would be funny watching the legislative contortions of our elected officials in Washington as they try to undo what they did in fouling up the nation's telephone service.

These champions of the common man, amidst much publicity and finger pointing rescued us from the greedy clutches of a monopolistic giant which had us at its mercy. Never mind that the giant was actually quite gentle and because of its size was able to provide us with alot of services.

Convinced that anything big had to be bad, the giant-killers boasted that they had triumphed and assumed the role of consumer heroes. It didn't take long for the sweetness of victory to turn sour and the severed carcass of the giant to emit offensive odors. The giant killers hurriedly came to realize that their deed perhaps had not been as good as they first believed.

They couldn't breathe new life into the dead giant so they attempted the next best thing — cover up the remains to reduce the smell. Meanwhile, some of the services which the giant had provided were attempted by others, with a corresponding lack of results and at a much higher cost. Little people just couldn't do what the giant had been able to do for the same amount of money.

Now Congress is scrambling to patch up through second-thought legislation the fractures made by initial actions. The greater the government attempt at righting the wrong, the more the error of the original act will be apparent and the less significant the apparent intentions of the act will be.

Local telephone rates had been kept low by subsidizing local operations with revenues from long distance charges. This was all accomplished by the phone company and worked extremely well. Service was excellent, costs were moderate, the system was unequalled in the world, technological advancement was rapid, access was available to nearly everyone. It was too good an operation for the government to leave alone.

It was wrong, the giant-killers reasoned, to use long distance revenues to subsidize local rates. People should pay for their service in proportion to what it costs to provide that service. The rationale seemed good to them.

So what did Congress pass to right the wrong? You guessed it. It developed a formula which involves the government to subsidize local service and local access to long distance service to be partially reimbursed from a fund charged to long distance companies. In other words, the government is going to do with legislation and considerable expense what the company did voluntarily at no cost to the taxpayer all along.

We've said it before and we'll say it again, this is a classic case of the government trying to fix something that wasn't broken and breaking it in the process. Trying to patch up the pieces now by wrapping them with red tape is a feeble attempt at correcting the mistake.

Political Business As Usual

Following editorial by Bob Johnson is from the Wadena Pioneer Journal:

What a difference a couple of decades make — or did they?

We first entered private publishing nearly 20 years ago when John Kennedy occupied the White House. With the 20th anniversary of Kennedy's assassination prompting an all-out review of his days in power, an illusion of Camelot was recreated for those of us who were around during those theatrical times in the early 1960s.

Against the realities of the present, however, such an illusion was no more substantial than a puff of smoke. By any numerical comparison one makes of the federal government, the differences between the early 1960s and the early 1980s are enormous.

Take Congress. The size of House and Senate personnel and committee staffs has more than tripled. The total is now well over 16,000.

During the same time span, the cost of running Congress, including Library of Congress expenses, the government printing office and the capitol architect, has increased by more than eight times, from $120.8 million in 1960 to $1.158 billion in 1980.

Meanwile, base salary for members of Congress have gone from $22,500 per year to $69,800 now and another five per cent hike is set next year.

Federal spending, likewise, has soared. Total annual federal outlays hit $100 billion in 1962 and now are topping $800 billion. The annual federal deficit has clihbed from a mere $7.137 billion in 1962 to a horrendous $194 billion for the fiscal year just concluded. The federal debt has risen in the same period from $303.3 billion in 1962 to nearly $1.5 trillion today.

But some things haven't changed. Political rhetoric seems much the same now as it was then, except now more politicians are talking about the dangers of deficit spending than was the case in the days of Kennedy's Camelot.

Back then, only a few lonely voices were raised about the threats posed by inflation and deficit spending. Back then, a billion dollars was still a respectable chunk of money. A trillion dollars was still virtually an unthinkable sum.

Nowadays even some of the spend-and-spend, elect-and-elect liberals are beginning to worry — or at least say they are — about the debt we are passing on to future generations. But, for all the handwringing, one thing hasn't changed between then and now.

Getting re-elected is put ahead of everything else. In Washington (and in St. Paul) it's still political business as usual.

The System Is Changing

Following editorial was written by Ann Andersen, editor of the New Hope-Plymouth Post:

They said it couldn't be done. That society can't — won't — change. But society is changing its course regarding drunk driving.

The changes that have occurred in just the past two years in Minnesota are amazing.

—The impetus for change began at the grass roots. Mothers Against Drunk Drivers (MADD), organized in California in 1980, is now active nationwide including eight chapters in Minnesota. Filled with outrage at the ease with which drunk drivers are allowed to maim and kill victims without penalty, members of MADD launched a campaign for change.

—The Minnesota Legislature took heed in the 1982 session and toughened the state statutes on DWI (driving while under the influence of alcohol or drugs).

—Hennepin County judges decided to impose mandatory two-day workhouse sentences for first-time offenders in addition to other penalties.

—The Office of Alcohol and Other Drug Abuse Programming (AODOP) at the University of Minnesota launched a flurry of creative ideas that could be implemented by the liquor dealers associations, by city councils, by private individuals.

(AODOP said how about training bartenders to better monitor their customers' sobriety before serving another drink? How about having a 'call a cab' policy? How about posting charts in liquor stores to remind customers that the safe ratio of alcohol-to-body-weight-to-time-of-consumption is only one drink per hour?

(How about tougher city council scrutiny each year when liquor licenses are approved, including a review of police calls at each establishment? For example, New Hope Council member Marky Williamson asks each owner how he checks the age of his customers, what is the procedure if the customer is underage, whether bartenders and waitresses are trained to cut off customers who have had too much to drink.

(How about offering attractive unalcoholic drinks, priced so that the establishment makes the same margin of profit and therefore is willing to promote them? The introduction of unalcoholic wines and beers and attractive nonalcoholic cocktails makes this procedure relatively easy.)

Jim Schaefer, director of AODOP, says his goal is having it be standard procedure for a bartender or a waitress to ask "Who is driving?" when any group orders cocktails.

For sure, society hasn't done a total about face on the problem of driving while under the influence. But progress is being made in numerous subtle and not-so-subtle ways.

The progress to date comes none too soon in terms of anguish and death. Intoxicated drivers in 1981 caused 500 deaths, 7,000 serious injuries and $180 million in property damage on Minnesota highways.

The jolly old adage of "Have one more for the road!" is turning into "I'll drive you home, my friend."

Wright Brothers Were Engineers In Flight Study

by William G. Schulz
Smithsonian News Service

Dayton, Ohio is an unpretentious city — Midwestern and hardworking. People there take enormous pride in the city's history. Along most every major road or highway, from the airport to downtown office buildings, signs proclaim Dayton as "The Birthplace of Aviation."

Dayton's Midwestern work ethic and the inventive drive of the industrial era in the early 1900s no doubt had their share in helping two of its citizens, Orville and Wilbur Wright, to develop the first powered, controllable flying machine. Emerging from the obscurity of their small bicycle shop, they became known as world-class thinkers — "engineering geniuses," according to Dr. Tom D. Crouch, curator of aeronautics at the Smithsonian institution's national air and space museum, in Washington, D.C.

"What set them apart," Crouch says, " was a collection of circumstances." Foremost, perhaps, their symbiosis as brothers led to a working relationship "far superior" to those enjoyed by most scientists or inventors. "Their father said about them, 'They're like twins,' " Inovette Wright-Miller, the brothers' niece and oldest living relative, recalls. "They were inseparable." Without that relationship, Crouch and other think, the two men may never have gained the necessary insight for their historic flight that took place just 80 years ago, on Dec. 17, 1903.

Of course, many people before the Wrights had attempted the then preposterous act of powered flight. (One distinguished astronomer of the day emphatically stated that powered flight was nonsense and could not be achieved.) It was an 1894 magazine article about Otto Lilienthal, a German who had been experimenting with gliders, that first sparked Wilbur Wright's interest in flying. Orville soon became interested, and before long the young brothers were transfixed by the subject.

"They read everything that was printed about gliding," says Rosamond Young, a columnist for the Dayton Journal Herald and author of "Twelve Seconds to the Moon," a book chronicling the lives of the Wright brothers.

"Understanding pitch, roll, yaw (motion in three dimensions) and wing warping (control of these motions) was the basic breakthrough made by the Wright brothers," Young adds. "That was what nobody else in history had been able to do."

The names for these motions are strange, but their meanings are actually quite simple. "Pitch" is the up or down movement of the plane's nose. "Yaw" refers to right or left movement of the plane and "roll" is a banking movement similar to the motion a bicycle makes as it goes through a turn. The Wrights recognized that yaw and roll can occur in two spatial planes of motion. Pitch comes into play only in three planes of motion — usually above the earth's surface. Airplanes and birds can take advantage of this freedom of movement.

In fact, many early aviation enthusiasts studied the flights of birds to obtain ideas for their designs. Attempts to build birdlike machines led to some crazy, not to mention dangerous, contraptions. The Wrights also studied birds, but they saw through the false promise of outright, mechanical imitation.

One such imitation was the "dihedral," or V-shaped, angle achieved in the wings of buzzards in flight. Some experimenters thought this angle was the secret of the birds' "lateral stability," preventing them from being dumped over to the right or left in gusting winds. These inventors believed the use of this angle would give their designs the same stability. The imitators, though, lacked the keen eye of Wilbur Wright. He noticed that buzzards also bend their wing tips down to regain stability in a gust. To give a glider pilot similar control, which the brothers thought paramount to built-in stability, the Wrights introduced "wing warping" in their craft.

Wires connected to each wing tip and to the pilot's seat allowed the pilot to shift from side to side, pulling one wing tip down in relation to the other, and to regain control of the craft. Later, the brothers discovered that, with the addition of a fixed tail fin, wing warping could be used to make turns.

The Wrights' famous 1903 Flyer evoled from earlier experiments with gliders. One distinct different between the Flyer and its predecessors was the "negative dihedral," or drooping angle, of its wings. Interestingly, seagulls — plentiful at Kitty Hawk, N.C., where the Wrights tested the gliders and the Flyer — also use the negative dihedral angle to float almost motionless in the area's gusting winds. "I suspect strongly that the Wrights noticed this situation with the gulls," says Dr. Howard Wolko, a technical advisor at the air and space museum.

The Wrights' work with bicycles, also inherently unstable machines, gave them invaluable experience. "It eliminated their fear of instability in an aircraft," Wolko says. The Wrights believed that a practiced pilot, like a bicyclist, would develop almost intuitive responses for control of the machine.

To achieve even greater fusion of stability and control, the Wrights addressed the problem of stalling — loss of lift — which was followed by often-fatal dives. Their tests had shown that two connected horizontal surfaces, called an "elevator," needed to be placed at the front of the plant to control its pitch in the event of stalls. To them, the device was analogous to the handlebars of a bicycle.

Other aviation pioneers insisted on having the stability provided by a rear elevator, but because it was fixed and they could not monitor its action, they were helpless when a gust of wind caused a stall. The Wrights did not forget that this was how Otto Lilienthal plunged to his death in 1896.

Later studies demonstrated that the horizontal surfaces of the elevator actually act like small wings. At the very beginning of a dive, they are able to gather enough lift, before the rest of the plane, to pull out of a stall. Films of early Wright planes with this feature show a characteristic "hop" as they moved through the air. By 1910, a controllable rear elevator had been perfected, and the front elevator was abandoned.

For the early flights, another "plus" of the elevator was the extra wood and fabric in front of the pilot which would hit the ground first in a crash. The Wrights were extremely concerned with safety — yet another factor in their flying success. "They were both very, very cautious," their niece says. "But they were never afraid."

Proepller technology was another area of major innovation by the Wrights. Inventors who had tried to adapt propellers to planes incorrectly thought they would work in the air as they work at sea — that, as propllers move ships forward by pushing water backwards, propellers would also push air backward to move the plane forward. Again, the Wrights saw through the "too obvious" and realized that propellers actually function as small wings traveling in circular motion. Essentially, they pull the airplane through the air. "The Wrights developed blade-element theory," the science behind propellers, Wolko says.

For some time, a popular misconception about the Wright brothers held that they were merely "tinkerers" who stumbled upon powered flight. Nothing could be more untrue.

Consider just one example of their expertise: After extensive experimentation with gliders at Kitty Hawk, they found existing tables for determining lift and drag against wings to be seriously in error. At that point, Miller says, Orville threw his hands up and remarked, "I don't think man will fly for 1,000 years."

Yet the Wrights persisted. They went back to their shop in Dayton and began wind tunnel tests on airfoils — models of wings — and they recalculated the tables. The new figures were crucial in getting the 1903 Flyer — and every plane since — off the ground.

Wilbur Wright died in 1912 and with him the relationship that gave birth to so much innovative genius. Yet, for all of their engineering talent and hard work, the Wright brothers' achievements will probably always be summed up in one word — flying. Milller's remembrance of her first flight with her uncle Orville, when she was 15 years old, illustrates why: "I looked out over the wings carrying us up and the ground falling away and realized that we were right up there in mid-air. Our feet were braced on the strut in front of us and there we were — in mid-air!"

City Told $280,000 Is Third St. Share

At a special noon meeting with Minnesota department of transportation officials on Friday, Thief River Falls city council cleared up a number of questions relating to costs on the Third Street improvement project, receiving an extension until February 1, to determine whether they would prefer to have the bridge redecking done in one year (closing it to traffic) and accept $100,000 from the state for construction of a railway underpass at Greenwood Street, or have the bridge done half-at-a-time, keeping one lane open to traffic at all times.

With a total project cost of approximately $1.1 million, excluding the bridge, the city's share would be about $280,400. MnDOT assumes complete responsibility for cost of the bridge widening and redecking, estimated at $525,000 if done all at once. Cost of doing the bridge in two stages to maintain an open traffic lane was estimated to be 20 per cent higher.

Cost of installing storm sewer for the project was a major share of the city's expense, at $175,700, and several questions were raised regarding the fairness of assessing property owners and justifying those assessments based on improvement to their property.

Pat Hughes, district engineer for MnDOT explained that the assessments for storm sewer were based on contributing flows (as determined by the state's hydraulic engineer) noting that although the highway actually formed a very small percentage of the area drained, since it was hard surfaced it contributed a greater amount of runoff per square foot, which was figured into the calculations. With a total estimated cost of $268,000 for storm sewer installation,

Gonsorowski Is Named To Chair Marshall Board

Mrs. Leonard (Marcella) Gonsorowski of Newfolden became the first woman to chair the Marshall county board of commissioners in its 105-year history when she was elected to that office at the board's annual reorganizational meeting Tuesday.

Nominated by commissioner Delray Larson of Gatzke, Mrs. Gonsorowski was elected on a 4-0 vote with commissioner Leonard Stoltman of Argyle absent. She is in her fourth year of service on the board.

Board Rejects GEA Contract At Goodridge

Despite tentative agreement reached between the Goodridge school board negotiating team and the Goodridge Education association negotiators on a contract for 1983-84 and 1984-85 school years, the full board of education rejected the proposal at a special meeting January 4.

Bob Sweeney, president of the Goodridge Education association, said that negotiations between the school board and faculty had suffered a "serious setback" by the proposal rejection. He said the association had given its tentative approval to the board's offer which he said was approximately $1,100 per teacher below the state average settlement.

Rick Nelson, chief negotiator for the GEA, said the contract proposal had "reflected nine months of arduous negotiations and mediations". Because of staff changes and reductions from the 1982-83 year to the 1983-84 years, he said, the proposal if approved would have resulted in an increased cost to the district of only two per cent this year. In 1984-85 the increase would have been six per cent, he added.

The proposal had called for an average salary increase per teacher of $1,372 for 1983-84 and $1,251 for 1984-85.

City Council Meets Tuesday

Farm Disaster Meet Finds Problem But No Answer

GAVELS WERE EXCHANGED Saturday evening at the annual Thief River Falls chamber of commerce dinner at the Best Western inn of Thief River Falls. Roger Tunberg (left) received the gavel of the presidency of the organization for 1984 from retiring president Stan Upham, and in return presented Upham with a past president's plaque including a gavel.

Tough questions for which there seem to be no acceptable answers were asked at a meeting of several area farmers, small businessmen and Farmers Home administration supervisory personnel Thursday at the Best Western motel in Thief River Falls. Topic of the meeting was the economic condition of area farmers and businessmen due to the three to five years of crop disasters.

Russ Bjorhus, director of the Farmers Home administration (FmHA) in Minnesota and who has been a frequent visitor to this part of the state in recent months, was again on the hotseat as farmers and businessmen looked for relief from their problems. And again Bjorhus insisted that all that can be done under existing regulations is being done for this area.

"That's our problem," interjected Cecil Anderson of Anderson Power and Equipment of Thief River Falls. "We have an unconventional problem here and it can not be treated with conventional methods. What we need to know is how the system can be modified to allow for these special circumstances."

Bjorhus didn't have an answer to the question, nor did any of the other people assembled at the meeting. Anderson suggested that U.S. secretary of agriculture John Block could modify regulations "with the stroke of a pen". Bjorhus countered that such action would have to come from the Congress. Others were of the opinion that whether Block has the authority or not, he would not exercise it without push from the administration.

When the meeting ended, not much more had been accomplished than providing a forum for some people to tell about their problems and frustrations. No new awareness was created because everyone present was aware of the situation. No definite action was contemplated because no direction could be determined. And no satisfaction was obtained because the system has been strained to its limits and beyond.

"I'm throwing everything I have to you," Bjorhus told the group. "The office managers in this area have instructions to go the extra mile with anyone. We're not tightening up on anybody, we're not putting the screws to any operation. Nobody gets turned down without a very thorough look. But we just can't go

Koop Pleads Not Guilty In Court

Making a first appearance in Pennington county district court at 9:45 a.m. today, Myles Koop of rural Thief River Falls entered pleas of not guilty to one charge of attempted first degree murder and three counts of assault.

Public defender Dennis Murphy, representing Koop and appearing with him in county court, told Judge Warren A. Saetre that two pleas would be entered to each count — not guilty and not guilty by reason of mental illness. He said he would ask the court to order a mental examination by an "outside" source rather than the day-night unit at Northwestern hospital.

Koop's charges result from his alleged attack on his former wife, Aloma Koop, and two companions, Connie Grandstrand and John Hesse, with a tire iron in the Northwestern hospital parking lot December 28. The charges include those of attempted first degree murder and first degree aggravated assault involving Aloma Koop, second degree aggravated assault involving Connie Grandstrand and second degree assault involving John Hesse.

Pennington county attorney David Olin requested that bond of $100,000 ordered in county court be continued, if bond was to be considered at all, because of potential danger to the victims if the defendant was released. Public defender Murphy asked that bond be reduced to $20,000, stating that the defendant is a long-time resident of the community and not likely to abscond.

Judge Saetre continued the bond at $100,000 and said it must be a corporate surety bond or cash and would require personal approval by the court. If the bond is raised, Judge Saetre added, he would attack conditions to the defendant's release under that bond. He also added that raising of the bond in the amount of either $20,000 or $100,000 may raise the question of the defendant's indigency and right to representation by a public defender.

Attorney Murphy said there was no question of jurisdiction or venue at this time in regard to the case. Judge Saetre ordered that the case be placed on the trial docket for the district court.

40 Attend Meeting For BN Railroad Discussion

EXPLANATION of how the state's rail development plan works was presented at a meeting of Burlington Northern railroad shippers and other interested people Thursday evening at the city auditorium in Thief River Falls. Charles Sanft (standing), director of the rail planning and program development section of the Minnesota department of transportation, and Melvin Loesch (seated at left), rail technician analyst with the division, presented the information.

Approximately 40 people, nine of whom indicated they represented shippers on the Burlington Northern railroad line between highway 2 and Warroad, heard discussion on potential for physical improvement on the line at a meeting Thursday evening in the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

Following presentation of information by Charles Sanft, director of rail planning and program development section of the Minnesota department of transportation, and Melvin Loesch, the section's rail technician analyst, Buzz Marvin of Warroad was selected to head organization of a shippers' association. He will contact other shippers along the line with a view toward conducting an organizational meeting early in February.

Sanft strongly recommended formation of the shippers' association as a means of dealing with the state of Minnesota and the railroad company in any future efforts to improve the line under the Minnesota rail improvement act. He said that an organization of shippers which was legal status as an entity would be in a better position to act. It will require the selection of strong leadership, he noted, and whoever takes the leadership role will have to be prepared to spend some time and do some traveling.

It was pointed out, at the meeting that condition of the line in question has been allowed to deteriorate to the point that most of it is now rated for five miles per hour train movement. An objective of the shippers should be to raise that rating to 25 miles per hour.

"Burlington Northern has been aggressive in getting rid of marginal lines, Sanft told the group assembled Thursday evening. "The railroad has indicated to us (department of transportation) at this point that it will listen to what we have to say. I believe it is important to have an organization of shippers to meet with the department and the railroad and that the more people involved in the shippers group the better."

Sanft and Loesch estimated the cost of a line improvement project to range between $6 million and $12 million. Under the Minnesota rail improvement act, if the project qualifies and funds are available, the railroad, state and shippers would share in cost of the original improvement with the railroad to repay the shippers and state out of revenues from the line.

On the Morris to Beardsley rail line project, Sanft said, the shippers put up 10 per cent of the $3.9 million project cost, the state provided 40 per cent and the railroad provided the rest. The shippers' "up front" money was in the form of an interest-free loan to the railroad as an inducement to provide improved service.

RAIL SHIPPERS on the Burlington Northern line from Marcoux corner to Warroad were among approximately 40 people who attended a meeting with Minnesota department of transportation officials in Thief River Falls Thursday evening. Plans to organize a shippers association were initiated and Buzz Marvin of Warroad (front row, third from right) was named temporary chairman to contact shippers and arrange for an organizational meeting in early February.

Sanft openly referred to the effort as a "carrot and stick" proposal. The railroads are looking for an incentive to stay around, he said, and "hanging this sort of proposal in front of them may be what it takes to get the desired action". On the Morris to Beardsley line which he mentioned, he expects the shippers to be paid back by next summer through rebates on carload shipments and the state to be repaid in 10 years.

While little mention was made of involving the Burlington Northern in discussions, it was noted that the proposal is totally dependent on the BN because they own the line". Assurance that the BN officials are willing to listen was encouraging to the MnDOT officials, Sanft said.

Asked if the work by shippers to organize might not be easted effort if the railroad doesn't want to improve the line, Sanft said it is the type of

Mutnansky-Herried Vows Recalls The 1920's Era

Mr. and Mrs. William George Herried, Jr., are at home in Willmar following an exchange of marriage vows at St. Anne's Catholic church in Goodridge. The wedding theme, reminiscent of the 1920's era, was carried out in the attire, music, flowers, decorations and chauffeured car.

The bride, the former Mary Agnes Mutnansky, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mutnansky of Goodridge. Parents of the groom are Rose Clark of Sioux Falls, S.D., and the late William Herried, Sr.

Rev. Dave Super officiated at the double ring ceremony with Joe Schmit, Kandiyohi, a friend of the couple, as reader. Altar boys were Ricky Neuschwander, Grygla, a cousin of the bride, and Richard Troska, Goodridge, a friend. Marian Marquis and Patrick Troska, friends of the bride, were pianist and assistant. Vocalist and song leader was Jodi Mutnansky, sister of the bride. Another sister, Bonnie Mutnansky, served as accompanist. All are Goodridge residents.

In keeping with the wedding theme "Roses Love Sunshine," was played as the prelude, and "The Charleston," as the recessional. The processionals were "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring", and "My Heart Ever Faithful". Selections during the Mass were "Come To Me", "Prayer of St. Francis", "One Day at a Time", "God, A Woman and A Man", and "Here I Am".

Huge bouquets of asparagus greenery graced the altar for the three o'clock wedding.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a long-sleeved gown of the 1920's period, styled with a long torso and tea length skirt. Fashioned of ivory satin rib lace, the gown was enhanced by Venice lace motifs and Schiffli embroidered lace. Attached at the shoulders was a chiffon floating train. Her headpiece was an ivory pillbox hat trimmed with silk flowers and a blusher of Russian netting. To correspond with the theme, "Roses Love Sunshine, Violets Love Dew," the bride carried a bouquet of white roses tipped in blues and violets, accented with asparagus greenery and cascading strings of gold and antiqued pearls. To complete her ensemble, she wore pearl earrings and a long pearl necklace, her gifts from the groom.

Bonnie Mutnansky, Goodridge, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Other attendants were Patty Skibicki, Goodridge, sister of the bride; Marilynn Wigand, Plymouth, sister of the groom; and Paula Mutnansky, Goodridge, sister of the bride. Their dresses, designed and sewn by the bride's sisters: Bonnie and Jodi Mutnansky, were in various shades of purple, in knee-length style with dropped waistlines, accented by ruffled navy blue yokes and sashes. To complement their attire, they wore purple hoisery, navy blue tap shoes, and long strings of white pearls. To depict the 1920's, their upsweep hairstyles were secured by sashes. Each attendant carried a white long-stemmed rose, tipped in blue.

Waring similar attire, was the flower girl, Mandy Brandt, Goodridge, a cousin of the bride. She scattered white rose petals from an oversized basket. The rings were carried by Anthony Kassa, Thief River Falls, a nephew of the bride. Favor distributors were Eric Mutnansky, Goodridge, nephew of the bride, and Patrick Herried, Sioux Falls, a son of the groom. They wore ivory shirts with tucked sleeves, navy blue bowties, navy blue pants cropped at the knees, and navy blue stockings. Their pants and shirts were designed and sewn by Paulette Kassa, sister of the bride. The rings were carried on an ivory pillow, made by the bride's sister, Diane Kalsness. After the ceremony, candies, wrapped in purple and ivory lace, were distributed as favors.

Attending the groom as best man was Darrell Buol, Sioux Falls, a friend. Groomsmen were Stanley Skibicki, Goodridge, a brother-in-law of the bride; Rick Wigand, Plymouth, and Rod Erfman, Denver, Colo., brothers-in-law of the groom. All wore dark colored pin-striped business suits. The groom's attire included an ivory colored wing-tipped shirt and an ivory ascot. His boutonniere was a blue-tipped white rose surrounded by violets. The groomsmen had violets pinned on their lapels.

Ushers were Billy and Bobby Neuschwander, Grygla, and Bruce and Ronnie Kiesow, Goodridge, all cousins of the bride.

Communion gift bearers were Jim and Arletta Mutnansky, Jennifer, Amanda and Melanie, Goodridge, the bride's brother, sister-in-law and nieces. The wrist corsages worn by the nieces featured white roses, tipped in blue.

The mother of the bride wore a maroon dropped-waist dress styled with capped sleeves and a high neckline. Her accessories were black seamed hoisery and black pumps. The groom's mother was attired in a maroon two-pieced suit accented with a pearl necklace. Their corsages were of blue tipped white roses and white violets.

Honor guests were Clayton Clark, Sioux Falls, stepfather of the groom; Jerome Mutnansky, Goodridge, uncle of the bride; Lester and Carolyn Larson, Viking, uncle and aunt of the bride; and Paulette Kassa, the bride's sister, who served as personal attendant.

The bride's parents hosted a reception in the church dining hall for approximately 150 guests. For the occasion, gold glittery cupids hung from the ceiling and gold metallic, navy blue and purple streamers graced the tables.

The pillared, three-tiered wedding cake, iced in ivory, was topped by a porcelian bride and groom, backed by a purple satin heart, trimmed in white. White cherubs and clusters of purple and white sweet peas graced the other tiers. The cake was baked and decorated by Margaret Rupprecht and was cut and served by Phyllis Neuschwander, Grygla, aunt of the bride, and Harriet Kiesow, Goodridge, a cousin. Pouring coffee were Elaine Peterson, New London, a friend of the couple, and Sharron Belfrage, Sioux Falls, sister of the groom.

Hosts and hostesses were Lou Ann and Charlie Kiesow, Goodridge, aunt and uncle of the bride, and Mary Ann and Roger Canon, Willmar, friends of the couple. Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Kalsness, Thief River Falls, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, registered the guests. At the punch bowl were Arlyne Neuschwander, Grygla, aunt of the bride, and Jill Erfman, Denver, Colo., sister of the groom. The flowers were pinned by Jane Mutnansky, Bemidji, sister of the bride, and Lori Buol, Sioux Falls, a friend of the bride.

Waitresses were Jodi Adams, Goodridge, friend of the bride; Shelley Cullen and Ruthie Pittman, Goodridge, cousins of the bride, and Stacey Herried, Sioux Falls, a daughter of the groom. All wore white mini dresses featuring long sleeves, button fronts, flared skirts and winged collars, accented with black vests, neckties and hoisery.

All assisting at the reception were presented with violet boutonnieres or blue tipped white rose corsages.

After the reception, the bride's parents escorted the couple around Goodridge, in a brown 1930 Model A Ford, restored by her father. It was complete with an A-ooga horn.

A dance at the Trapper and Trader in Goodridge followed with music provided by "Dick Miller" and "The Bounty-hunters" bands. The dance began with the theme song, "Roses Love Sunshine," by Jodi Mutnansky, with the words written for the couple by Jodi and Bonnie Mutnansky.

Wheat Growers Should Attend U.S. Meeting

Agricultural policy for the coming years may be determined by budget-cutting bureaucrats in the office of management and budget or by input from concerned farmers. One of the places for concerned farmers to make their wishes known for future farm programs will be during the upcoming annual convention of the National Association of Wheat Growers (NAWG).

During the convention, which has been scheduled for January 22 to 26 in Denver, Colo., what producers from the various member states will have the opportunity to learn how some of those bureaucrats from Washington are looking at farm policy and to debate the policy which will be pursued by the NAWG.

Don Loeslie, a Warren wheat producer, is president of the NAWG this year, and will be the guiding hand during the convention. He invites wheat growers to come to Denver, to help develop farm policy for the coming year.

During the convention, policymakers from the current and past administrations will explain their viewpoint to the wheat producer delegates. Assistant secretary of agriculture for economics, William Lesher will be on hand to present the current administration perspective, while his predecessor, Howard Hjort will have the opportunity to explain his views. Former assistant secretary of agriculture for international affairs and commodity programs Richard Bell, now president of Riceland Foods, will also address the issue of farm policy.

Opinions on cargo preference will be presented by Thomas Gleason, president of the International Longshoremen's association. Cargo preference legislation affects the competitiveness of U.S. wheat in export markets.

Grain embargoes also continue to worry producers. Lynn Daft, formerly a member of the wheat house domestic policy staff, will discuss the internal dynamics of the Carter administration's grain embargo. Daft is now a vice president with the firm Abel, Daft and Earley in Washington.

A whole series of optional activities are available before and after the convention. These include the National Western stock show, ski packages to Vail Colorado, and tours to local and regional points of interest. Information of all of the tours, which should be reserved in advance, is available from Arrangers, Inc. in Denver by calling 303-623-1492.

Further information about the NAWG convention can be received by calling Connie at the Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers office in Red Lake Falls. Phone number is 1-800-242-6118 or 218-253-4311.

BN Shippers To Organize An Association

gamble that has to be taken by the shippers if they hope to improve or even retain service. It may seem premature but it is a logical progression, he said, and the effort by the shippers may well be viewed in a positive manner by the railroad and encourage the railroad to take positive action.

Loesch, who helped develop the program which is now used to assist the state in developing cost-benefit ratio, said that the state is interested in this project and would do the analysis necessary to determine that cost and benefit situation. Just upgrading the line from five miles per hour to 25 miles per hour can increase profitability by up to 25 per cent, Loesch said.

Other factors are also built into the analysis, including reduced damage to highways through using rail shipment rather than trucks.

One of the major portions of the cost-benefit analysis is a rail user survey questionnaire, Loesch said. The questionnaire includes 15 questions which are used to provide information enabling the department of transportation to match this project against a model and determine its feasibility.

Questions are asked in the survey form regarding switching from truck to rail service, frequency of rail service, expansion plans and their relation to rail needs, effect of rail service discontinuation on the company and its employment, commodity shipment background, firm plans to increase or decrease rail use, storage and loading facilities, siding lease or ownership, willingness to contribute toward keeping rail service and current freight rates per hundred-weight.

Assistance in the development of the shippers' organization is being provided through the transportation committee of the Northwest regional development corporation. Also attending the meeting and giving their comments were State Representatives Jim Tunheim of Hallock and Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls and Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer.

beyond the regulations even if we bend them as far as we possibly can.

"We're not policy makers; we administer policy that is provided for us, and that is probably the way it should be. We can't make a loan to a farmer who has no repayment ability; he must show some potential down the road. Many farms simply can not show evidence of a positive cash flow regardless of average yield projections and optimistic crop prices. Farmers Home administration is an inline agency that doesn't have the flexibility to adjust to the unusual."

One of the people present accused Bjorhus and other officials of "hiding behind the regulations" and not making strenuous enough efforts to get the system changed so that more liberalized financing can be provided. "You're the state director," the speaker said. "What can you do to get some help for the people up here?"

Bjorhus admitted that the most he can do in affecting policy is to keep providing information to the national FmHA office and elected officials who could effect change. And he said the agency is strongly encouraging those who take out new loans or apply for emergency loans to enroll in farm management courses.

That suggestion drew an outburst from Lyle Turtle, Oklee area farmer who said he doesn't know how he will ever show a cash flow to make him eligible for further FmHA financing in 1984.

"I'm from a farm family that started farming in 1950 with nothing," he said. "There are four brouthers in the family, all farming. I have a BS degree in education and a good financial and management background. I came into the FmHA program when I started farming up here because it seemed to be good business.

"In 1980 we dried out, in 1981 we had 52 inches of rain, in 1982 we had another 32 inches of rain and last year wasn't any better. Working with FmHA is a pain in the butt, as far as I'm concerned, and I'm sure they feel the same about me. On top of all the other problems I have, they want me to run somewhere to take a management course from somebody who doesn't know the first thing about farming. I don't feel management is my problem at all!"

Turtle said he had attended a number of meetings on the disaster program, written numerous letters and made many phone calls, including contacts with elected and appointed federal officials.

"And you know, fellows," he said to the group, "I have the strange feeling that we're not going any place. Russ (Bjorhus) tells us he can't do any more for us and I believe he's right. A year ago I wouldn't have agreed with that, but now I'm convinced the local office managers and everybody else are doing all they possibly can.

"We've got an amendment that Congressman Stangeland put together sitting in Washington and nothing is going to happen. It's going to sit there because nobody is following up on it. The only way to get things done is to pack up a suitcase, head for Washington and pound on House and Senate doors until enough people become aware of the uniqueness of this problem to get some changes made. Otherwise, by the time we get done with all these meetings, luncheons and discussions, we'll all be broke."

One small businessman from Warren ventured the suggestion that federal government subsidy to interest rates to farmers and small businessmen borrowing from commercial lenders would ease the financial strain while reducing the sums of federal money needed. "I'm paying out 10 per cent of my gross just for interest," the man said. "Is that feasible for anyone who hopes to stay in business?"

Several people recounted the dilemma faced by both farmers and businessmen who are virtually forced to attempt to keep operating because they are unable to sell or to quit.

"While everyone here agrees that it is necessary to provide help to the farmers," one Red Lake Falls businessman said, "it should be recognized that farmers need the businessman for supplies and service as well. Crop production loans to farmers may help them pay off some of their debt to lenders, but it doesn't help the businessman who has over-extended credit and can't collect his accounts."

The dealer pointed out that "cash has to be shown uptown" or farmers won't have business around to service them. When a small business goes out in a small town, it usually doesn't return again, the businessman said.

Repeated emphasis at the meeting was placed on the fact that accounts are owed by farmers who have long been excellent credit customers and who fully intend to pay but are unable to do so. It was also pointed out on a number of occasions that farmers and businessmen in trouble "are not rookies" but established in their enterprises but victims of circumstance never before experienced in this area.

Lyle Turtle and others pointed out that the anticipated farm program offers little cause for optimism. Support price for wheat will be lowered, no advance payments will be made, and average yields have declined in crop histories due to the weather-related disasters which will further reduce acreage payments.

Roger Eckstein, Red Lake Falls businessman, pointed out that the problems related to the crop disaster extend well beyond economics of farm cash flow. "So many people are under extreme stress because of this," he said. "We know that many marital problems result from economic conditions and clergymen tell me that demand for counseling is extremely high."

Marvin Koop, an area farmer who has served on the FmHA board, said that the problem may have begun with the first emergency loans which put operators deeper in debt. He said that there are cases where operators with good crops and good prices can't make their payments and that no program without an outright write-off will save them. There are cases where people who are good farmers aren't good financial managers, he said.

General consensus at the meeting, however, was that there is a need for a federal program to provide loan funds on long-term-low-interest basis with a several year deferral of principal and interest. Such a program is provided in legislation which has been introduced by Sen. Rudy Boschwitz in the senate and Congressman Arlan Stangeland in the House but which was defeated in Senate committee and stalled in the House committee.

School District No. 564 has initiated an "Excellence in Education Committee" to review our district's position in light of recent Federal and State criticisms of public school education. We hope to eventually host public meetings to gain verbal input, however, that type of meeting is difficult for all to attend or to feel comfortable in making presentations.

With that in mind, we would invite your written criticisms, support, or other information you feel would be helpful to our committee. Please make your statements specific to help give the committee areas of concern. They might address:

Some areas might be:

1. Curriculum
2. Program Content
3. Facilities
4. Additional Program Needs
5. Teacher Evaluation
6. Administration Evaluation
7. Secondary Vocational Co-op Center
8. Change of Emphasis in the School District
9. Any other areas you feel need addressed

Your comments, criticisms, etc. must be received by February 3, 1984 to be reviewed by the committee. Please mark your envelope: "Excellence in Education" and send to:

Hetteen To Join Polaris As Spokesman

portant contact for and with the snowmobiling public."

David Johnson, Hetteen's brother-in-law who joined him in the firm in 1946 and has been with the company since that time, noted that Polaris will observe its 30th anniversary as a snowmobile manufacturer this year. "It is a very appropriate time for Edgar to once again be a part of the company he originated," Johnson said. "He will do a lot for Polaris and the snowmobile industry."

Hetteen founded Hetteen Holst and Derrick in Roseau in 1944, was joined by Johnson in 1946 and by Edgar's brother Allan in 1949. The company was incorporated as Polaris Industries in the late 1940's, the first snowmobile was designed and built under the Polaris name in 1954 and the first commercial sale took place in the winter of 1955-56.

In 1960 Hetteen left Polaris to found Arctic Enterprises in Thief River Falls. Since the bankruptcy of that company several years ago, Edgar has been involved in the start of several new ventures.

"Polaris has a management team that is committed and enthusiastic about the sport," Hetteen said, "and I share that feeling and want to make a contribution to the effort."

City's Share Of Street Cost Is $280,000

the state's share is approximately $92,500. On being questioned regarding the degree of benefit for the state highway versus adjoining property owners he noted that the engineers could only base their method of determining costs on directives from the central office, which dictated that contributing flows be used.

Other major expenses for the city were $17,600 for replacement of outside curb and gutter on the project, with the state picking up about $26,400. Although some questions were raised regarding the possibility of reducing the curb width to cut costs and reduce potential tree damage, MnDOT officials noted that the 24 inch gutter specified was the standard used on truck highways.

Replacement of existing sidewalks was a shared cost item, with the city picking up $6,600 versus the state's $9,800. Construction costs of new sidewalks was estimated at $9,700, to be borne entirely by the city. Cost of driveways and approaches was estimated at $19,000 with the city responsible for 40 per cent of that cost or $8,600; street connection costs were divided equally, with the state and city each responsible for $10,600.

Other city costs included: $14,000 for mobilization (14 per cent of $100,000); $19,500 for construction engineering charge (8 per cent of $243,400); $400 for lab and field office (14 per cent of $3,000); and $17,500 for right of way costs for street connections, based on 50 per cent participation by the city.

On questioning regarding the right of way costs, Hughes noted that the state was still negotiating for the purchase of the Skogerboe property, but did not foresee any difficulties. He noted that the cost estimates included both the purchase of the property and relocating the residents. That property is needed in order to construct an access street for Pine Avenue, which was closed at its intersection with Third Street for safety reasons. Preliminary design engineer Steve Baker noted that the access street would be about 36 feet wide, allowing parking of about five cars on one side.

Construction on the project is scheduled for summer of 1985, with bid letting in December 1984. Some questions were raised regarding plans by Pennington county to proceed with a project to widen the First Street bridge during the same time frame, noting that the city could not afford to have both bridges out at the same time. Hughes noted that the state had not programmed the project yet and doubted whether money would be available. However, he said that if funding should be made available, the city would have to set its priorities as to which project was more important.

City engineer Dave Kildahl asked if an extension could be granted on the city's January 15 deadline to determine whether they wanted to have the Third Street Bridge done all at once or in two phases. He said he needed an additional two weeks to complete studies on the feasibility of constructing a two-lane underpass for traffic near Greenwood Avenue. MnDOT has agreed to pay the city $100,000 to be used for that purpose, if the bridge project can be completed all at one time.

Kildahl was granted the extension, noting that if they were not notified by February 1, the state would proceed with plans to construct the bridge half-at-a-time. On questioning, Kildahl said he felt that construction of the crossing under the Soo Line railroad tracks could be completed prior to the 1985 construction season if the city decided to go ahead with the project. He said he would have plans and cost estimates ready for the council by their January 24 meeting.

ASC To Explain 1984 Programs For Farmers

Four meetings have been scheduled by the Marshall county agricultural stabilization and conservation (ASC) service to explain the 1984 federal wheat and feed grain programs. Dairy diversion and federal crop insurance programs will also be explained.

Meetings are scheduled for 9:30 a.m. January 16, at the Grygla community hall; 1:30 p.m. January 16 at the Newfolden community center; 9:30 a.m. January 18 at the Stephen Legion club; and 1:30 p.m. January 18 at the First American Bank in Warren.

Marshall county ASC committee chairman Leo Orpen stated that with the lower 1984 commodity loan rates, there is a possibility of sizable deficiency payments under the 1984 wheat and feed grain programs, requiring farmers to take a long, hard look at what the 1984 program offers.

Label Deadline Is February 11

16 Projects Selected By Health Dep't.

Minnesota department of health has selected 16 projects, proposed by 14 different public agencies and private organizations, to be funded under its maternal and child health special projects grant program during calendar years 1984-85.

Grant recipients were chosen from throughout the state, and will receive grants totaling $1.5 million. They were selected from among 79 qualified applicants, who had submitted proposals for 87 separate projects.

Grants were announced by Sister Mary Madonna Ashton, Minnesota commissioner of health, who commended the applicants "for demonstrating so much commitment to the health of mothers, children and their families." She noted that "many high quality project proposals could not be approved at this time because of limitations on available funds," and she encouraged the applicants to be alert for possible alternative sources of funding.

Department received 103 applications for the grants. The 79 applications which met legal eligibility criteria were reviewed by department staff for technical merit, and presented to an external grants review committee (GRC). The GRC, whose members were selected for their expertise in maternal and child health, identified 35 proposals with "significant technical merit.". These proposals were broken down by geographic region, and ranked separately for each of seven areas of the state. The state maternal and child health task force then made final recommendations for the awarding of grants, which were accepted with some modification by Commissioner Ashton.

Grants were awarded to North Country Community Health services, to provide developmental services for children under four in Hubbard county; Planned Parenthood of Minnesota, to maintain family planning services in several counties of northern Minnesota; Association of Retarded Citizens, Duluth, to provide support services for children with chronic disease and disability, and their families, over a four county area;

Also Aitkin-Itasca-Koochiching Community Health services, to provide public health nursing services aimed at the primary prevention of disease; Lakeland Mental Health center, to provide services for chronically ill and handicapped children in a multi-county area; Benton-Serburne Community Health services, to develop a comprehensive approach to the prevention and reduction of family problems and domestic violence; the Cass County Public Health service, to provide counseling, and education for new and expectant parents;

Also the Melrose and Sauk Centre public schools, to conduct a comprehensive, community-wide chemical abuse prevention project; Hennepin County Community Health services, to provide a comprehensive program of essential services in suburban Hennepin county; the Minneapolis Health department, to provide school-based dental care, and nursing services aimed at the primary prevention of disease;

Also St. Paul-Ramsey Medical center, to develop an approach to preventing or reducing chemical and tobacco use during pregnancy, stressing the importance of lifestyle and nutrition, and to provide childbirth and parenting education in American sign language, statewide, through regional service centers;

Also the Southwest and West Central Education Services Cooperative unit, to provide coordinated interagency services for children under four who are handicapped or face special health risks, in a multi-county area; the Waseca County Board of Health, to provide intensive "parenting aide" services to families facing special health risks; and Rice County Community Health services, to provide intensive family support services for families with special health risks.

Ag. Lending Is Topic Of New Course At NCC

Agricultural Lending, a new course to be offered through Northland community college, is scheduled to begin on January 17, and will meet from 6 to 9 p.m. each Tuesday through winter quarter, in room B20.

This three credit course offers a comprehensive look at all facets of extending agricultural and agri-business loans, from analysis of the financial statements of agricultural enterprises to dealing with problem loans. # Cancer Society Notes Progress In Treatment

Dr. Vincent DeVita, director of the National Cancer institute, has announced that more than 50 per cent of all cancer patients are surviving at least five years and most of this group are cured of their cancer.

Myrle Carlson, public information director of the American Cancer society's Pennington county unit, said that this landmark achievement is because of years of steady progress against many kinds of cancer.

"This is the most encouraging news we can have," he said. "All of us who volunteer for the American Cancer society have had this goal in mind for years. In the early 1900's few cancer patients had any hope of survival. In the 1940's it was one-in-four and until just recently it was one in three. Today we have real reason to be optimistic that we will have conquered cancer in our lifetime."

Carlson added that this progress against cancer has been possible because of research, new knowledge of cancer prevention and ways to detect cancer early enough for cure.

"Our American Cancer society crusade volunteers raise funds for this research, and our public education volunteers present programs teaching adults and youth about cancer prevention and early detection," he said. "It is gratifying to know that our efforts have helped bring about this significant progress against the disease of cancer."

Anyone interested in joining the Pennington county unit volunteers is invited to contact Carlson at 681-4174 or 681-3550.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I would like to encourage Gov. Perpich, Mark Dayton and Cigar-Smoking labor boss Dave Roe to come to Warroad and take a look at what a private enterprise company like Marvin's has done without a union boss telling how to run their business. Polaris at Roseau is another fine example.

Then I would advise him, like Sen. James Ulland from Duluth, to go back to St. Paul and stay there long enough to get some sensible tax laws so people who are here can stay in Minnesota, instead of running around to China and Sweden to turn the peat industry over to the Swedes.

Sincerely,
-s-Delmar Hagen

To The Editor:

In reference to the traffic death of Mrs. Hulda Wold, my friend and neighbor for the past fifty-six years: I am really grief stricken over this report in the Times' front page Monday, Jan. 2. They report no charge filed in Hulda Wold's traffic death, and name the driver of the car who struck her.

My 81 - year - old friend walked these streets daily to visit friends and for her health she walked. She's visited at our home and we enjoyed her visits over the years. I feel this situation is unjust to my friend. She was well and walking around, only to be hit by this driver and to pass away two hours later in the hospital after the ambulance took her there.

I thought the pedestrians had first rights. I too walk wherever I go and am a senior citizen too. Is there any protection for me to walk?

Local Woman Injured Dec. 24 In Car Accident

Mrs. Viola Dirks of this city was injured in a car accident on December 24 in Webster City, Iowa.

Mrs. Dirks had been visiting for 10 days in Dallas, Tex., with her son, Martin, and his wife, Mary. They were enroute to Thief River Falls, together with Karen Leach, to spend Christmas, when they were involved in the accident. The driver of the other vehicle, in an attempt to miss a snow bank, was in the wrong lane. Mrs. Dirks, who was in the front seat, received a fractured right wrist and fractured ribs on the left side, in addition to neck and back injuries. Her son sustained back injuries and neck whiplash, and his wife a slight shoulder bruise.

They were treated in the emergency room at the hospital in Mason City, Iowa. Enroute home, they were also treated in Minneapolis. After spending two days here, the Dirks and Karen Leach, who was not injured, returned to Texas, December 30. Mrs. Dirks accompanied them to Bagley where she spent the weekend with Mrs. Doris Raad. Before returning home on New Year's day, Mrs. Dirks and Mrs. Raad and her son, Brian, were dinner guests at the Larry Raad home.

North Central Employment Edges Upward

Non farm employment in the North Central administrative region edged up 0.1 per cent from September of 1982 to September of 1983, according to the U.S. department of labor's bureau of labor statistics.

William E. Rice, regional commissioner for the bureau in Chicago, said that while the 0.1 per cent increase was well below the 1.7 per cent gain recorded nationally during the same period, it was the first 12 month employment gain in the region in over three and one-half years. The last annual increase occurred in January of 1980 when employment rose 0.2 per cent.

The latest rise reflects an employment picture that has improved steadily since October of 1982 when region-wide employment was down 4.8 per cent over the 12-month period. North Central administrative region includes Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Region-wide payroll employment reached 17,561,000 in September of 1983, representing a gain of 13,000 jobs since September of 1982. While this is the highest employment level in the region since June of 1982, it is 1,709,000 below the peak employment level of 19,270,000 recorded in June of 1979.

The improvement over the past 12 months was evident in all six states in the region although only three — Michigan, Minnesota and Ohio — recorded employment gains in that period. Employment in these states returned to 1981 levels after declining in 1982 and the first half of 1983. Employment in the other three North Central states — Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin — slipped by less than one per cent over the year. In each case, the decline was smaller than recorded in the previous 12-month period.

Significant employment gains were recorded in auto related industries (transportation equipment, up 34,000; rubber and plastic products, up 12,000; fabricated metal products, up 11,000); service industries, up 43,000; and state government, up 10,000. Large employment cuts were found in the machinery, except electrical industry, down 47,000; transportation and public utilities, down 24,000; and general merchandise stores, down 12,000.

Another Frustration

Thursday's meeting of area farmers and small businessmen with state director Russ Bjorhus and others from the Farmers Home administration (EmHA) has to be another frustration in a dire local situation.

The frustration is that a problem of serious magnitude exists in a limited area under unique circumstances and the only people who can help appear to be unconcerned or uninterested. And the futility of trying to have any impact on the political system that counts votes instead of giving help only adds to that frustration.

It appears now that farmers who have been victimized by the weather for three to five successive years through no fault of their own will also now be victimized by the system of government they have supported financially during their entire lives. And the people who have extended themselves to assist the hard-luck farmers by providing generous credit are also facing financial ruin.

General concensus seems to be that what is needed is availability of long-term government loans at modest interest rates with a deferral period of several years on repayment to permit farmers to get back on their feet. It doesn't seem that such a proposal for a geographically minute area of the nation with a truly unique disaster situation should be so impossible to accomplish. As a matter of fact, it shouldn't be a problem at all.

But it is a problem, and it's a problem because congressional action is apparently needed to change existing regulations. And U.S. Senators and Representatives, as everyone knows, are more concerned about receiving credit for their party and themselves and discrediting the opposing party than in solving problems. They can't be bothered with a few grain farmers losing their farms and a few small businessmen locking their doors.

That epidemic of short-sightedness and tunnel vision always becomes even more severe during an election year. Nobody, it seems, does anything in Washington the year before an election.

What we have here is a classic case of the system being unable to work because its flexibility is limited. Appeals to lower level officials are fruitless because they are powerless to make changes. Appeals to top level officials are fruitless because they pass the appeals down to their subordinates. Appeals to elected officials are fruitless because there is not enough political clout or public indignation to force an action.

What is particularly aggravating is that the Congress won't recognize that people needing help aren't asking for a handout, just a hand up. They have taken an unmerciful financial beating and they need time to heal and recover. They ask that funds unavailable elsewhere be made available to borrow so that they can continue to be hard-working, food-producing, bill-paying and tax-paying members of society.

What do these farmers and small businessmen want? Just a chance to get back in the mainstream of life through an expanded and liberalized credit availability. In all likelihood, though the solution seems so simple, it may well not be realized. And that is the ultimate frustration.

A Matter Of Timing

Rev. Jesse Jackson returned from a successful trip to secure the release of Lt. Robert Goodman Jr. from Syria to somewhat of a hero's welcome. He is deserving of credit in bringing back to this country one of its military personnel who had the misfortune of being captured while performing his duty in a foreign land.

While the nation is caught up in the return of Lt. Goodman, it might be well not to lose sight of what the perspective was from the Syrian side of the question.

Syrian president Hafez Assad had on his hands a citizen of a large and powerful nation against which he could exert limited influence. What was he to do with this airman? How could he best be used as a bargaining commodity or an instrument of affecting national or world opinion? The U.S. president hadn't given much indication of yielding or trade-off suggestions.

Along came Rev. Jackson with an answer to his dilemma. Assad could get the airman off his hands before some misguided misfit in his army might dispose of him and therefore Assad would be free of responsibility for his safety. And he could do so by appearing to be humanitarian in the eyes of the world and at least embarrassing if not discrediting the chief of state of the large and powerful country.

The timing of Rev. Jackson's intervention was perfect. Lt. Goodman had not been a prisoner long enough to escalate the reaction against his imprisonment. A release could be accomplished without fearing loss of face by "giving in" to the United States because a non-government representative was involved. And as a further result, it could cause dissention and upheaval in the "enemy's" camp.

Perhaps Rev. Jackson or his advisors were astute enough to recognize the advantages to Assad of ordering the release. If so, they deserve credit for that realization and taking advantage of it. But we believe the situation was more a matter of timing than of heroism or diplomacy.

Guarding The Coop

Following editorial by Bob Cary appeared in the Ely Echo:

DNR Commissioner Joe Alexander teed off the "give away" boys in the State Legislature last week. Specifically, those "public spirited" souls who want to sell off some large segments of state land for "economic development", etc., etc.

As Joe notes, "Some of these people are philosophically opposed to public land ownership. . . and some, undoubtedly, have other motives."

Which is putting it very kindly.

The push to sell state land kicked off two years ago when the state came up short in revenue. . . tax receipts did not meet spending. There are always a lot of folks around the woods who can see a way to make a quick buck off public land. They come out with some high-sounding phrases like "development" and "put the land back on the tax rolls," stuff like that. It sounds good until you take a close look at it, as Alexander is quick to point out.

The first thing, almost all of the state land was once in private hands. It was "homesteaded" by loggers, their friends and kinfolk at 160 acres a shot, the timber cut and the property abandoned, returned to the state as tax-delinquent. The state got no taxes. . . and nothing for the timber. Somebody from Chicago or Milwaukee or Winnipeg or some other place made a killing on Minnesota pine.

There is now a lot of good timber back in state ownership, timber which would no doubt be cut and the land go back for taxes again. But that is not the only problem. Another problem is that Minnesota has a lot of public land in which to hunt and fish. Talk to anybody who comes up here from Illinois or Indiana or Ohio or someplace down the line. The problem down there is not catching fish or shooting the game. . . it is finding a place just to go fishing or hunting. It is almost all private land and it all has "Keep Out" signs. The well-to-do lease hunting and fishing spots. Indeed, no one goes duck hunting down in that country unless he belongs to a club which leases shoreline. . . or wants to send his name into the state with the odd chance of drawing a blind for one day on a state waterfowl area.

Northern Minnesota is blessed with hundreds of square miles of public lands, public access to hundreds of lakes. All you need is a license. We don't have to ask somebody if we can go fishing. We don't have to pay a daily fee to a landowner to hunt (up to $50 a day in some other states). And when somebody starts talking about putting "state land up for sale," it pays to keep a wary eye open.

There has been some state land sold and some traded. . . when it is in the interest of the public. The DNR does an excellent job of keeping an eye on things, making sure the public is getting a buck's worth of benefit for a buck spent. . . and that somebody doesn't get into the chicken coop and steal all the chickens.

Joe Alexander has been a good guardian of the chicken coop. A tip of the old fishin' hat to Joe.

One more thing. When timber is sold off the state lands, the receipts from that timber is shared with the counties and local units of government. Very often these receipts are larger than taxes paid on similar parcels of land in the same area.

Prowlers Face Section 8 Teams

Off to a rocky start in the Section 8 standings, the Lincoln high school hockey team has a chance to make up lost ground with a string of 11 Section 8-counting regular season games remaining — six at home and five on the road.

It'll be a long climb back to the top of the standings, but with a strong finish, particularly with this year's new seeding format, the Prowlers could still earn a berth into the Section 8 tournament quarterfinals.

Top four regular season Section 8 finishers won't necessarily be the quarterfinal qualifiers with automatic tournament seeds. Instead, to help eliminate the possibility of a weaker team grabbing one of those advantageous spots based upon success against a softer regular season schedule, the coaches will seed the top four teams on Feb. 15. After those four are selected, the remaining 15 teams will be seeded upon their regular season standings into the North and South Sub-Section 8 qualifying games.

Thief River Falls, or any other team for that matter, can overcome early season problems with a mid-or late season surge to capture the attention and votes of the rest of the Section 8 coaches and avoid the always nervous possibility of sub-section upset elimination.

Rest of the Prowlers' schedule starts with a key Tuesday confrontation with Crookston, a team that won six straight games to start the year before stumbling against Bemidji 4-3 in overtime and East Grand Forks 5-2 in back-to-back starts last week. The loss to East Grand Forks was particularly painful since the Pirates also lost the services of leading scorer Monte French, a junior forward who suffered a broken leg when he slid heavily into the boards just seconds into the game.

After hosting Crookston in the 7:30 p.m. assignment at the sports arena, Thief River Falls' schedule will include return engagements with Bemidji, East Grand Forks, Crookston and Roseau, two games with Warroad and Moorhead, plus single meetings with Hallock and Detroit Lakes.

A Feb. 17 Thief River Falls game against Fergus Falls will not count in the sectional standings.

Sub-section play gets underway at the sites of the higher seeded teams Feb. 18, with second round games scheduled Feb. 20. Section 8 finals will be played in Thief River Falls March 2.

Northmen Meet Trojans Wednesday

What may be the toughest assignment of the 1983-84 season awaits the Northland community college hockey team Wednesday when the Northmen travel to Crookston to face rival University of Minnesota-Crookston in a 7:30 p.m. Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) game.

Lightly-regarded Northland stunned defending state champion UMC 5-4 with an outstanding season-opening performance in the sports arena back on Dec. 7. The Trojans aren't likely to forget that loss in this week's rematch.

After a long drought against UMC, Northland now enjoys a modest two-game winning streak over the Trojans, winning last season's final encounter 6-4 to go along with this year's earlier win.

Northland and UMC will be meeting the next three Wednesdays, playing here Jan. 18, and returning to Crookston Jan. 25.

NCC Basketball Teams Draw Rivals

Northland community college men's and women's basketball teams have completed their nonconference schedules and will finish the 1983-84 regular season with 11 Northwest Division-counting games each.

They'll be playing doubleheaders against common opponents the rest of the way, with the Northwomen taking the court at 12-noon for the afternoon assignments and 6 p.m. in the nighttime tests, while the Northmen play at 2 and 8 p.m.

It'll start with Northeast Division foes Itasca Friday night and Hibbing Saturday afternoon in the Northland gym. The schedule will also include road assignments against Northeast Division teams Mesabi and Vermilion, a home appearance against Rainy River of the Northeast Division, then home-and-home meetings with Northwest Division rivals Brainerd, Fergus Falls and the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Top two teams in each of the four state-wide divisions earn post-season state tournament berths.

Miscellaneous

+ Two big area high school basketball rivalries will be renewed Tuesday when Marshall County Central will be at Middle River and Goodridge visits Grygla.

+ Fergus Falls Journal hockey correspondent Roger Johnson, reflecting on the Otters' one-sided 7-1 and 8-0 losses to Warroad and Roseau Dec. 29-30, said Fergus Falls "has been hampered in recent weeks by injuries to key personnel and has been forced to change forward lines in each game." The Otters ended a four-game losing streak by beating Detroit Lakes 10-3 last week, driving Lakers' tri-captain Chad Meyhoff out of the nets for the second straight game. "Enough is enough," Detroit Lakes coach Duane Earnest told Ralph Anderson of the Becker County Record as the reason for pulling Meyhoff. "We just haven't been playing well ahead of him defensively."

+It was announced that the 1984 Minnesota state American Legion baseball tournament will be played Aug. 10-13 at Albert Lea. The Region 5 tournament will be held Aug. 22-26 at Rockport, Ill., and the Region 6 tournament will be played Aug. 22-26 at Rapid City, S.D., with Minnesota sending teams to both regional events. American Legion World Series will be held Aug. 30-Sept. 3, at New Orleans, La. Edina won the 1983 American Legion World Series played at Fargo, N.D.

BEMIDJI FORWARD Jeff Leyendecker drew defensive attention from Thief River Falls' John Brandt (behind him) and Randy Erickson in the first half of Friday's high school basketball game played here. Leyendecker scored 16 points in the Lumberjacks' 84-39 win.

Prowler Improve Record To 7-2 With 49-24 Win

Lincoln high school girls basketball team ran its record to 7-2 Saturday with a 49-24 home court win over Red Lake Falls.

For the second straight game the Prowlers' Michelle Olson, Michelle Puetz and Connie Grovum provided a scoring triumvirate, netting 40 of the winner's 49 points. Olson scored 20, getting 16 of them in the second half, while Puetz and Grovum contributed 10 each, most of them coming in the first half.

Thief River Falls started slowly, even though the Prowlers had a 12-6 first quarter lead and a 20-16 halftime edge. They broke it open by out-scoring the Eagles 20-3 in the third quarter for a 40-19 bulge.

"We had a tough time getting going in the first half," admitted Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "Points were awfully tough to come by. We just couldn't get untracked. But in the third quarter we started playing better basketball."

Olson, who scored just four points in the first half, was 7-for-7 from the field in the third quarter to account for 14 of her 20 points. Puetz and Grovum had picked up the scoring slack in the first half when they combined for 14 of the Prowlers' 20 points — eight for Grovum.

Shelly Nelson hit double figures for Red Lake Falls with 12 points.

Thief River Falls shot 38 per cent from the field (24-for-63), but went just 1-for-15 at the free throw line. Red Lake Falls shot 23 per cent from the field (11-for-47) and was 2-for-5 at the line. The Prowlers built a big 57-31 rebound advantage, with Puetz grabbing 20 and Olson 11. The Eagles topped the turnover figures 25-20.

"We played real good defense," mentioned Schafer. "Puetz did a real good job on the boards for us."

Brenda Russell scored 15 points as Lincoln junior varsity improved its record to 5-2 with a similar 49-21 win over Red Lake Falls.

Thief River Falls faces three tough assignments in the next 11 days when the Prowlers visit Bemidji tonight (Monday), host Crookston Thursday and drive to East Grand Forks Thursday.

Plummer Trips Climax By 44-42 In Overtime

Eric Eskeli's base line jumper bounced around the rim and finally fell through the basket with just one second left in overtime Friday to give Plummer an exciting 44-42 Polar Conference high school basketball win over visiting Climax.

It was the third consecutive two-point win for the 6-2 Cardinals, who also have a three-point and a six-point win to their credit this winter.

"These guys are making me old," quipped Plummer coach Jim Baron. "They're giving me gray hairs."

Climax worked the ball the final minute for a game-tying shot at the end of regulation time that ended 38-38. The two teams swapped overtime baskets, with Plummer calling a time-out with four seconds left after the Vikings had knotted it 42-42.

Tossing the ball in bounds from mid-court, the Cardinals set up a pick for Eskeli on the base-line and his jumper rattled around before falling through to hoop to add a little more excitement to the thing.

Plummer had leads of 12-7, 29-25 and 32-25 at the first three quarter stops.

Gene Fisher led the Cardinals with 13 points, while Warren Tvedt scored 10. Dan Bernhardson of Climax led all scorers with 18 points, with Andrew Michael adding 10.

Plummer shot a nifty 54 per cent from the field (21-for-39), but a not-so-good 2-for-8 from the free throw line. Climax shot only 30 per cent from the field (18-for-61) and went 6-for-13 at the line.

"We played okay, I guess," mentioned Baron. "Our shot selection was good — it has been all year. Defensively we played a helluva good game."

Plummer will host Red Lake Falls Friday.

Marshall County Central lost its third straight game Friday when the Nordics dropped a 67-43 decision at East Grand Forks.

Highly regarded Green Wave had an 18-12 first quarter lead, then broke it open in the second period for a 34-17 halftime spread. It was 50-31 after three quarters.

"We had a bad second quarter," conceded Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "We shot really poorly. We hit from the perimeter, but we had a devil of a time with those eight-footers. We missed a number of easy shots."

Chad Swan of Marshall County Central and David Vonesh of East Grand Forks shared game-high scoring honors with 20 points each. Kevin Boe added 12 points to the Nordics' total, with Rod Mosher getting 12 for the Green Wave and Tim Sykes adding 10.

Marshall County Central shot 40 per cent from the field for the game (20-for-50), with the Nordics having an unproductive 3-for-8 night at the free throw line. East Grand Forks shot 43 per cent from the field (29-for-67) and went 9-for-15 at the line. The much-bigger Green Wave had a 40-27 rebound advantage and the Nordics hurt themselves with 18 turnovers, to 12 for the winners.

"We did have some streaks when we did all right," mentioned Ueland. "We felt we played pretty good defense on their big people, but those turnovers were a sore spot in our game."

Marshall County Central, 3-3, will be at Middle River Tuesday for a North Border Conference assignment and the renewal of the long-time basketball rivalry.

Noel Peterson scored 21 points for the Bears, but after getting 20 of them in the second and third quarters, he was shut off by a Middle River defensive switch in the final period that keyed the Skippers' win.

Scott Grovem scored a game-high 20 points for the Huskies, who dropped to 3-4 for the year. They will be at Grygla Tuesday. Tony Wiseth also hit double figures for Goodridge with 12 points.

Bemidji Is A Big 84-39 Winner Over Prowlers

Thief River Falls absorbed a one-sided 45-point loss Friday when Bemidji routed the Prowlers 84-39 in a high school basketball mis-match at the Lincoln gym.

It was over by halftime when the Lumberjacks had a 32-15 spread. Both sides put up 29 shots that first half, but Bemidji made 14 of them (48 per cent), while Thief River Falls connected on just five (17 per cent). The Prowlers also had 19 first half turnovers, many of them coming in the front court on errant passes trying to find a way inside Bemidji's zone defense.

Down 14-4 at the end of the first quarter, Thief River Falls made one brief run at Bemidji to start the second period, cutting the gap to 17-11 on free throws by John Brandt and Tim Kruse with 5:59 left in the half. But the Lumberjacks scored 13 straight points over the next three minutes to decide the issue in a hurry.

Bemidji made it an official rout by out-scoring Thief River Falls 52-24 in the second half when the entire roster on both sides received playing time.

Jeff Leyendecker, a 6-4 senior forward with a nice outside touch, and Todd Sauer, a 6-0 junior guard who benefitted the most from the Thief River Falls turnovers with a number of easy fast break lay-ups, led the Bemidji assault with 16 points each while smooth-looking 6-7 junior center Scott Kerick had 13 points on the inside. No Thief River Falls scorer had more than seven points.

"I thought we played well," offered Bemidji coach Mel Johnson, whose club improved its record to 6-1 with the win. "We got the ball inside to the big kid (Kerick) often enough, and we have some pretty good perimeter shooters, too."

Johnson was also happy with the Lumberjacks' effectiveness using the 1-3-1 zone defense. "That's set up to stop the inside game," he explained, "and we were able to keep them outside with it. I thought we played pretty good team defense with it."

Bemidji wound up 37-for-63 from the field (59 per cent), with Thief River Falls going 13-for-50 (6 per cent). The Prowlers were 13-for-21 at the free throw line (62 per cent), where the Lumberjacks were 10-for-18 (56 per cent). Thief River Falls finished with an obviously insignificant 21-20 rebound edge and topped the turnover charts 31-17.

Thief River Falls, 2-6, will be at Crookston Friday.

ASSIGNED WITH the task of trying to stop 6-7 Bemidji center Scott Kerick in this situation, 6-2 Thief River Falls defender Jeff Hamerlinck tried to front the Lumberjacks' postman in the first half of Friday's high school basketball game played in Thief River Falls. Kerick scored 13 points in Bemidji's one-sided 84-39 win.

Prowlers Rally To Beat Bears

Third period goals by Bob Huot, Scott Novak and Rick Spong provided Thief River Falls with a come-from-behind 5-3 Section 8 high school hockey win over upset-minded Lake of the Woods Saturday at Baudette.

Thief River Falls had a 2-1 first period edge on Steve Wiskow's power play goal at 13:15, but Lake of the Woods scored twice in the second period, including the go-ahead goal by Brock Dahl at 13:20, to assume a 3-2 lead.

All three members of the Prowlers' third line had a hand in Huot's game-tying goal at 5:36, with Novak getting the game-winner at 7:02 and Spong finishing it off on a sharp-looking 2-on-1 rush at 12:18.

"In spots we played well," explained Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "We scored some nice goals. The fact that we went into the third period down one and our third line tied it, gave us a big lift. That was a big goal for us."

Thief River Falls' first goal came off the stick of senior defenseman Brian Johnston at 6:10 of the first period. It was Johnston's first shot-on-goal of the 1983-84 season in his first outing after missing the first seven games with injuries.

Starting for the first time in three games, junior goaltender Steve Solheim kicked 22 shots out of the Thief River Falls nets. Lake of the Woods sophomore John Gillie made 33 saves.

Shortage of numbers forced Lake of the Woods officials to cancel the junior varsity game Saturday.

Thief River Falls, 3-5 for the year, will host Crookston Tuesday and visit Moorhead Saturday.

New High School Hockey League Selects Name

Newly-formed seven-team high school hockey conference within Section 8 has a name this week, the "John Mariucci Conference."

Moorhead, East Grand Forks, Crookston, Warroad, Fergus Falls, Thief River Falls and Detroit Lakes formed the hockey conference-only to give regular season games more meaning, and to give the players additional recognition, it was explained by league members this week.

Conference standings will be based on won-loss percentage. Conference champion will receive a plaque to enscribe the player's names, and an all-conference team will be selection.

The league was named after John Mariucci, the symbol of hockey in Minnesota. A native of Eveleth, Mariucci went on to the University of Minnesota where he earned hockey All-American status. He played five years for the Chicago Black Hawks in the National Hockey League, then coached for 14 years at the University of Minnesota. He has been with the Minnesota North Stars of the NHL since 1967.

Highlights for the Prowlers, said Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney, came in the diving competition where Jeff Rosetta broke the Detroit Lakes pool record of 194.5 points with 219.8 performance, only to be beaten by teammate Todd Wing, who registered 241.40 points.

Forney also cited the swimming efforts by Craig Goodrich, butterfly; Dave Ose, 100 freestyle; Joe Drevlow, 200 I.M.; and Wing, backstroke.

Swim Team Beats Grand Forks 100-72

Lincoln high school swimming team defeated Grand Forks 100-72 Thursday in the Prowlers' 1983-84 home opener at the Franklin middle school pool.

Dave Ose, Eric Ose and Todd Wing all won two individual events for the Prowlers, who won nine of the 12 events.

Todd Wing shattered the school diving record set last year by Jeff Rosetta (249.2) with a 267.75-point effort, and added a win in the 100-yard backstroke. Dave Ose won the 200-yard individual medley and 500-yard freestyle, while Eric Ose won the sprint races — the 50- and 100-yard freestyles.

Thief River Falls also collected a first place finish from Craig Goodrich in the 100-yard butterfly and won both the meet-opening 200-yard medley relay (Goodrich, Paul Wefald, Dave Ose, Eric Ose) and the meet-closing 400-yard freestyle relay (Wing, Jim Amundson, Rick Rosetta, Joe Drevlow).

"It was a nice win for the team," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney. "Craig Goodrich had a fine early-season performance; Eric Ose had a strong showing — he's really starting to come into his own as a swimmer; and it was a great performance this early in the season for Todd Wing."

RAINY RIVER goalie Jim Belanger sprawled across the goal mouth, but Northland center Ladd Bjugson lifted the puck over the netminder for a third period goal on this play in the third period of Saturday's community college hockey game played in Thief River Falls. The Voyaguers of International Falls swept the weekend series by 10-5 and 10-6 scores.

Rainy River Sweeps Northland

Rainy River pumped in 20 goals and came up with a weekend sweep over Northland in a Minnesota Community College Conference (MCC) hockey series played at the Thief River Falls sports arena.

It was double figure point production both games for the Voyageurs of International Falls, who beat the Northmen 10-5 Friday night and stopped them again 10-6 Saturday afternoon.

Results left Rainy River at 5-2 for the year, while Northland fell to 3-4, including a current four-game losing streak after a season-opening three game winning streak. It was the first competition for the Northmen since Dec. 17.

Northland will be on the road Wednesday for a 7:30 p.m. game against the University of Minnesota-Crookston. Winnipeg Bible Institute, a newcomer on the Northland schedule, will be in Thief River Falls this weekend, with games planned Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the sports arena.

Northland out-shot Rainy River 44-32 Friday night, but lost 10-5 in the series opener.

Tony Borden, Barry Marmus, Dean Armstrong and Jeff Witherspoon all scored twice for the winners, who had a 2-1 first period lead and a 5-3 second period edge.

Ladd Bjugson scored twice and had three assists to figure in all five Northland goals. Bob Martin, Scott Steinbach and Jim Dillon each scored once.

"We played even with them," reported Northland coach Tony Dorn, Jr. "We out-shot them, but Jay had an off night," he said in reference to freshman goaltender Jay Boomgaarden.

"We played well at times," mentioned Rainy River coach Terry Thompson, "but at other times we were terrible."

Rainy River . . . . . . . . . 10
Northland . . . . . . . . . . 6

A major blow-out shaped up Saturday afternoon when Rainy River scored at will in grabbing a 7-0 first period lead, but Northland battled back gamely and made it halfway interesting before losing 10-6.

"The first period was probably the best period of hockey we've played this year," reported Rainy River coach Terry Thompson, "but then we just quit in the second and third periods. It was like two different hockey games. You have to give Northland all the credit in the world for hanging in there like they did."

Northland coach Tony Dorn, Jr. voiced similar feelings. "We just had no get-up-and-go in that first period," he admitted, "but we sure picked it up in the second and third periods. We out-scored them and I thought we out-played them in the last two periods. It would have been easy to pack it in when we were down 7-0, but they showed a lot of character battling back like they did."

But the first period was a killer. Dean Armstrong, a sophomore center from Rainy River, Ont., scored three of his four goals in the first 20 minutes. Tony Borden, a freshman forward from International Falls, had two that first period, his second two-goal game of the weekend.

Northland scored four times in the second period, though, as the momentum changed, but Delbert Earnest scored at 17:58 of the period to take the wind of Northland's comeback effort — just 70 seconds after Bob Rockwood's goal had made it a suddenly interesting 7-4 game. The two teams swapped two goals apiece in the third period.

Ladd Bjugson scored twice for the Northmen, with Jim Dillon, Bob Martin, Rod Harder and Rockwood each getting one.

NCC Reverses Earlier Setback To Bemidji JV

Final non-conference outing of the 1983-84 season proved to be a good Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) warm-up for the Northland community college basketball team Saturday as the Northmen knocked off the Bemidji State University junior varsity 66-61.

It was a reversal from an earlier 69-53 BSU win over Northland in Thief River Falls on Dec. 14 when the Beavers dominated play. Playing for the first time since Dec. 20, Northland improved its season record to 6-3 heading into Northwest Division-counting action this weekend when Itasca (Friday, 8 p.m.) and Hibbing (Saturday, 2 p.m.) visit Thief River Falls.

"This was an important game for us," explained Northland coach Chet Engelman. "I think it will do a lot for our mental attitude. I'm very happy with the way we played. It was a great game for us to win going into our conference schedule."

Kyle Ramsey scored 24 points for the Northmen, who fell behind 20-12 midway through the first half and faced a 37-29 deficit at intermission. Rodney Scales and Jon Neumann contributed 15 and 11 points, respectively, for the winners, who still trailed 53-46 at the 10-minute mark of the second half before they made their comeback.

Bemidji held on to a 59-57 lead with 4:33 remaining, but the host team did not score again until the final moments of play when Northland, owning a 66-59 advantage, conceded a basket.

Once Northland got the lead, 62-59, in the final minutes, the Northmen went into an effective delay game.

"Our kids played well," confirmed Engelman. "We got good contributions from our non-starters."

Northland shot 44 per cent from the field (29-for-66) and 62 per cent at the free throw line (8-for-13). Bemidji shot 48 per cent from the field (27-for-56) and 78 per cent at the line (7-for-9). Out-rebounded 47-27 in the first meeting between the two teams, Northland lost the battle of the boards by just a 36-34 margin this time. Bemidji topped the turnover figures 22-12.

Middle River coach Tom Neibauer said it was a poor performance, but the Skippers nevertheless extended their season-long winning streak to nine games Thursday with a 55-16 rout of visiting Roseau.

"That's the worst game those kids have ever played — since the seventh grade," reported Neibauer, who was particularly upset with 20 first half turnovers against a Roseau zone defense.

Middle River led 12-6 at the end of the first quarter and had a 25-12 halftime cushion. Best Middle River basketball of the night, according to Neibauer, came in the first 4½ minutes of the third quarter when the Skippers out-scored the Rams 17-0 as the margin mounted to 44-14.

Paula Rantanen scored 16 points, while Jody Christofferson had 12 and Diane Black 11 for the winners, who were 21-for-61 from the field (34 per cent) and 13-for-23 from the free throw line (57 per cent). Roseau was 4-for-9 at the line.

DNR hotline

1. On the Upper Cass county public access map is a public landing on the North Narrows of Squaw Point which is in poor shape, who is responsible for this landing?

As with all types of public facilities, public water access sites are controlled by many governmental units. In Region 1, which covers all or parts of 22 counties, there are 440 designated public access sites, of which 274 are DNR-controlled. The remainder are under the jurisdiction of the federal government (35), counties (82), cities (37), townships (3) and Minnesota Department of Transportation (9). The access with which you are concerned is under the jurisdiction of the Chippewa National Forest, whose Supervisor's Office is in Cass Lake. You may wish to contact the U.S. Forest Service with your concerns.

DNR public water access maps have, in addition to the county highway map, a complete listing of all the public access facilities with the location, ramp-type, and the administering agency. Other information on the map includes access rules and regulations, boating safety tips and laws, and a brief summary of the DNR Water Access Program. Other information may be obtained by contacting this office. Dick Kimball, water access specialist.

2. Does a VIC shelter sled require licensing for ice fishing?

State of Minnesota considers a shelter house to be any structure which has three sides and a roof. Therefore, the VIC shelter sled would require a shelter house license and the name and address of the owner printed on the side of the house in 2½ inch letters or larger. Byron Dyrland, Region 1 enforcement supervisor.

3. Do you have a question, a complaint, or a suggestion regarding how your natural resources are managed?

National Wildlife Federation
News Release

Not all the winged, amber-colored insects collecting honey are bees.

Some are ants — honey ants that, like bees, seek and store honey. But they have their own unique style, according to current issues of Ranger Rick, a publication of the National Wildlife Federation.

Honey ants congregate in underground colonies, and nests sometimes are as much as five feet deep with a surface entryway that resembles a small volcano cone. The colony is alive with high structured activity with queens and males (which are winged for only a part of their lives) and the wingless females and worker ants all busily tending to specialized chores.

There is one special function of the workers that is truly amazing, according to Ranger Rick. A class of workers called "repletes," or honeypots, serve as living storage tanks for nectar that is collected by other workers.

Repletes, who spend their entire lives hanging from ceilings of nest chambers, store honey in stomachs that are stretched to a point that the honeypots look like small grapes. When stored honey is needed, other ants stroke the repletes with their antennae and induce them to spit up some of the nourishing honey.

All this has been observed by entomologist John Conway, who studies honey ant nests in the foothills of the Colorado Rockies. Conway said that sometimes the repletes lose their footing, drop to the ground — and burst.

Conway has spent 10 years studying honey ants, both outdoors and in his lab, observing how they gather nectar and following them home. He hasn't discovered everything he wants to know about honey ants, but if he does, he plans to go to other parts of the world to learn about foreign honey ants.

Special Olympic Winter Events Set Feb. 14-16

Minnesota Special Olympics Winter Games for 1984 are once again scheduled in Quadna Mountain Resort near Hill City February 14-16.

This year's number of participants and coaches are expected to increase in size to over 400 people. This popular annual event, which draws mentally handicapped athletes throughout the state of Minnesota, has been extended to three days from what was once a two day event.

Eunice Kennedy Shriver, president of Special Olympics Internatonal, states "Skiing and skating offer excellent opportunities for Special Olympians to stay in good physical condition during the winter and to share the special joy of sports in the snow with family and friends."

Athletes competing this year will be qualifying for the 1985 International Winter Special Olympic Games at Park City, Utah.

Cross-country and downhill skiing events will be held at the facilities offered at Quadna Mountain Resort. The skating events will be held 18 miles north of Quadna in Grand Rapids.

Jay Diebold, Quadna's general manager states, "Our staff throughly enjoyed working with the volunteers and athletes associated with the Special Olympics last year and we look forward to another successful winter games this upcoming February."

With the tremendous amount of snow Minnesota has already experienced in 1983, the 1984 winter games should find excellent ski conditions available.

States Kennedy: "Special Olympians receive the training and encouragement to become real champions achieving their victories not only on the slopes and the rinks, but in life itself."

For additional information converning the games, calls should be directed to Sam Thompson, Quadna Mountain Resort, 697-2324.

It's "plausible" the Arctic may have been the birthplace of life, says National Wildlife magazine. New fossil evidence indicating a high abundance of carbon dioxide in the Arctic atmosphere 50 to 100 million years ago means the region was probably much warmer than today. The Arctic's long summer daylight hours and the area's large land mass would also have made the Arctic suitable to evolve horses, redwoods and even alligators.

Despite fears that bats are rabid, only 10 people in the United States and Canada have died of disease from bats in more than 30 years, says International Wildlife magazine. In contrast, more people are killed annually in the U.S. by dog attacks, bee stings or lightning.

DNR NEWS

DNR Projects

Department of Natural Resources released figures this week showing substantial expenditures for development and maintenance of recreational trails, canoe routes and public access sites to lakes and rivers in northeastern Minnesota.

Officials said the trails, access sites and canoe route facilities are on public lands, or private lands under lease, and expenditure for those facilities provided jobs and income for contractors and their employees in an economically depressed area.

"The figures are an effective argument against those who suggest that vast acreages of public land should be sold to private interests to stimulate tax revenues," said DNR Commissioner Joseph Alexander.

A substantial amount of the funds to finance trail development are derived from snowmobile license sales and the tax on gas consumed by the snowmobiles. A great portion of public access funds are provided through the cigarette tax.

"These 'user' fees reduce the need for general tax dollars," said Alexander, "and their expenditure for developing recreational opportunities on state owned lands stimulate local economies in addition to attracting tourist dollars."

Without these connecting tracts of publicly owned lands, and a small number of private landowners who are willing to lease their lands, the construction of an extensive trail system would be nearly impossible, he said.

Department has made available nearly $500,000 in grant-in-aid funds to northeastern Minnesota communities to assist in the development and maintenance of recreational trails during 1983. Another $283,612 was expended in the northeast constructing public access sites.

Funds to finance acquisition and development of public access sites are primarily from the Legislative Commission on Minnesota Resources (LCMR). In addition to acquiring, developing and operating its own accesses, the DNR enters into agreements with local governments whereby DNR provides capital development funds, and local governments provide the land and operation and maintenance of the site. This has resulted in nearly $100,000 in projects in the city of Duluth alone. Access projects directly affect the tourist economy, said Alexander, by providing a means for the boaters and anglers to reach public waters previously inaccessible to boats.

"These funds ended up in the bank accounts of contractors, suppliers of building materials and paychecks of workers employed by such firms," he said.

"The notion that public land holdings are an expensive luxury and result in a net loss to the tax payer and the treasury is a myth," he said. "Trails, river recreation and public access facilities provide opportunities for recreation that are extremely valuable to the local economies, both from a constructive and tourism standpoint.

"Minnesota is envied by other states that sold off all their public domain lands and years later had to buy them back at exorbitant prices to provide facilities for the public.

"There are lands that produce the greatest public benefit by being in private ownership, but there are other lands that will produce the greatest good for the greatest number of people through public ownership."

Ski Licenses

Based on interviews with cross country skiers and sales of the new cross country ski licenses, the Department of Natural Resources says most skiers seem to recognize the need for the license and are willing to buy it.

The license is the result of a law passed by the 1983 legislature and is required of skiers 16-64 years of age who use any non-federal public trail which is designated and promoted for cross country skiing.

In an attempt to gauge acceptance of the new law, the DNR surveyed skiers in several state parks and obtained figures from selected county auditors and license agents on license sales.

At the time of the survey, major license outlets reported they had issued 5,852 "individual" licenses, costing $5, and 5,364 "husband and wife" licenses, costing $7.50.

A complete tabulation of all agents selling the licenses will not be known by the DNR until Dec. 31; however, it is estimated that these other agents may have sold another 500 licenses.

"Although we have had only three weeks of snow covered trails and some bitterly cold weather, the number of licenses sold and the response of skiers interviewed indicates general acceptance of the new licenses, said DNR Commissioner Joseph Alexander.

He said the main concerns expressed by skiers is that the fees be directed toward the maintenance of the public trails.

Alexander pointed out that the legislature, in passing the license act, appropriated $175,000 for trail maintenance this season and another $175,000 for next season, regardless of the number of licenses sold or the revenue generated by their sale.

He said the appropriations are a "commitment by the legislature and made with the expectation that the same high level of trail maintenance carried out in previous years would be continued."

Alexander said skiers, local officials and some legislators have expressed concerns about some features of the new law and that these will probably be dealt with at the next legislative session, scheduled for March, 1984.

Training Program

Minnesota advanced hunter education program will be conducting volunteer instructor training sessions in various parts of Minnesota during January and February, the Department of Natural Resources has announced.

Seven-year-old program provides classes and clinics for Minnesota sportsmen 16 years and older. It's objectives are to improve ethical hunting skills, create better relations between landowners and hunters, increase hunter knowledge and appreciation of wildlife and wildlife habitat and foster greater knowledge of laws and regulations.

DNR is seeking volunteers to join the growing ranks of the over 200 instructors who make the program possible. In the past seven years over 18,000 sportsmen have attended classes and clinics, said a Department spokesman.

To become a volunteer instructor, a person must attend a 1½ day session followed by co-instructing in a class which will be arranged in the volunteer's area shortly after training is completed.

It is helpful for prospective instructors to attend a class first, but it is not absolutely necessary.

All training sessions are on weekends beginning Friday evenings from 7-10 p.m. and continuing on Saturdays from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.

Following are locations of upcoming training sessions. To register, contact Richard Anderson, Box 922, Fergus Falls, MN 56537; 736-7327.

Maps Available For Wisconsin Ice Fishermen

Ice Fishermen, no more cutting through a foot of ice to find six inches of water underneath. An index of over 2,500 Wisconsin mapped lakes will help many ice fishermen enter the charmed circle of experts.

A lake map is actually a hydrographic chart. A hydrographic chart is simply a high-faluting term for a map showing the various depths of a late along with other information that is so desirable to have for fishing — such as kind of lake bottom (sand, mud, gravel, etc.)

Suppose you want to fish for perch. You know his feeding habits and at what depths and over what kind of bottom he would be. With a Wisconsin hydrographic chart you can see at a glance the general contour of the lake bottom and the exact depth of any given place along with the kind and condition of the bottom.

Index is available at no charge by sending a self-addressed, stamped (37-cent) No. 10 business envelope to Wisconsin Ice Fishing, Box 5096, Madison, WI 53705.

Although birds and animals evolved in nearly identical time schedules, there are more than twice as many different species of birds, than animals alive today.

DNR Nongame Checkoff Sets Record In 1983

Minnesota citizens set a new record in 1983 with a total of over 200,000 donations to the nongame wildlife checkoff. This is up from 154,376 donations in 1981 and 196,641 donations in 1982.

Nongame wildlife checkoff is a provision on Minnesota's income tax and property tax forms which allows taxpayers to make a voluntary donation to help nongame wildlife species, like loons, bluebirds and bald eagles. This year's donations totaled over $613,000. Minnesota ranked second nationally in the number and amount of donations made to state nongame wildlife checkoffs. Only New York received more donations.

There are now 31 states with wildlife checkoff provisions on their state income tax forms.

Impressive level of support which Minnesota citizens have given to the nongame wildlife checkoff is a strong indication of their concern for wildlife and gratefully appreciated by the Department of Natural Resources. There are now over 50 wildlife conservation projects underway across the state which are wholly or partially funded by donations to the checkoff.

Taxpayers are reminded that they can once again donate to the nongame wildlife fund on their Minnesota income tax and property tax forms. Donations are tax-deductible on the following year's return, and it is possible to donate more than one dollar per donation. Checkoff line is identified by a loon on the tax forms.

State Students Win Wildlife Poster Awards

Noelle Lorraine Johnson of Coon Rapids, Lori Gaetze of Albert Lea and Colleen J. Haws of St. Cloud are winners in the 1983 National Hunting and Fishing Day poster contest. Their posters illustrating the contest theme "Sportsmen and Conservation: Building a Future for Wildlife" had already been selected as winners in a local NHF Day poster contest.

Noelle, a senior at Coon Rapids high school, won first place in the senior division and will receive a $500 U.S. Savings Bond. Lori, a junior at Albert Lea high school, won a Merit Award in the senior division and will receive a $50 U.S. Savings Bond. Colleen, a fifth grader at St. Peters & Paul middle school, won a Merit Award in the junior division and will also receive a $50 U.S. Savings Bond. Their entries were sponsored by the Minnesota Conservation Federation.

Their posters were among the thousands entered in local NHF Day poster contests sponsored by schools, sportsmen's clubs and civic organizations throughout the country. In addition to local prizes, there were 52 national awards totaling $5,200 in U.S. Savings Bonds for youngsters who best illustrated the contest theme "Sportsmen and Conservation: Building a Future for Wildlife."

Sportsmen have contributed more than $5 billion toward wildlife conservation in this country since the turn of the century. Through license fees and special taxes, sportsmen have paid for fish and wildlife management programs and the acquisition of millions of acres of vital habitat that benefit all wildlife. In addition, sportsmen voluntarily contribute millions of dollars each year for private conservation programs, such as wetlands acquisition and other habitat improvement.

Designed to foster an increased awareness of the need for conservation and the role sportsmen play in America's conservation efforts, the 1983 NHF Day poster contest was open to all students in grades 5-12.

For information about the 1984 National Hunting and Fishing Day poster contest, contact NHF Day Headquarters, Box 1075, Riverside, CT 06878.

BWCA Winter Trek Will Be March 16 To 18

For those who have always wanted to go to the boundary waters canoe area (BWCA) during the winter, this is your chance. Cross-country skiers now have the opportunity to experience the snow-covered wilderness, northern lights, and the huge pines while at the same time helping to prevent and control lung disease. The BWCA winter trek will take place March 16 to 18 with departure taking place March 15.

According to trek leader Bill Simpson, the beauty of the boundary waters area in the winter must be seen to be believed. Simpson, who will be teaching winter camping skills to the group, explained, "We are expecting the majority of trekkers will have never winter camped before. Many will be first year skiers, but skiers of all calibers — beginner to expert — are welcome and needed."

Ski clinics, packs, tents, food, transportation, and cooking gear are provided. Trekkers will need to bring their own skis, boots, poles and sleeping bag.

For those who are unable to make the BWCA Winter Trek, Simpson had the "next best" thing planned. "Outside of the BWCA, the skiing in the remote Lake Solitude area and Savanna Portage state park is the most beautiful in Minnesota and Wisconsin," Bill says. On March 3-4 weekend trip, heated cabins will be provided, but those wishing to winter camp will be given instruction and have an opportunity to do so.

Besides forming new friendships, sharpening skiing and camping skills, and being treated to spectacular scenery, trekkers will learn how to live comfortably and safely with nature in the winter.

Treks will be held by the American Lung associations of Minnesota and Ramsey county.

Interested trekkers are urged to sign up soon, as space is limited. For specific information, contact: Pat McAllister, American Lung Association of Minnesota, 614 Portland avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102, (612) - 227-8014.

Special Board Meeting
Ind. School Dist. No. 561
January 6, 1984

Members Present: Norma Hanson, Richard Parnow, Rodney Wayne, Supt. Don Langan, Paul Troska, Larry Vigen and Sharon Howard.

Members Absent: None.

The meeting was called to order by Norma Hanson, Chairperson, at 10:15 a.m.

The usual proceedings were altered to incorporate a single agenda item, review and action on the proposed Master Agreement between the School District and the Goodridge Education Association.

Several issues relating to the proposed agreement were discussed. These included cost comparisons among various board proposals and the last Education Association proposal.

Major difference between the November 17th Board proposal and the December 19th proposal transferred these dollars from staff development directly to the salary schedule.

Paul Troska moved, Richard Parnow seconded, to approve the December 19, 1983, offer. Motion failed.

Larry Vigen moved, Sharon Howard seconded, to approve the November 17, 1983, offer. Motion carried.

Rodney Wayne moved, Richard Parnow seconded, to adjourn at 10:42 a.m. Carried.

CarQuestions & Answers

Winter Maintenance

In most areas of the country, winter is NOT a fun time to work on a car. Often the only time an individual looks under the hood of their car is to find out what's gone wrong.

Preventive maintenance is the best and, in most cases, the cheapest kind. Therefore, the CARQUEST Corporation offers a few hints for under the hood winter maintenance.

Pick a nice, sunshine-filled day and go over the items we've looked at before . . . maybe six months ago.

Check hoses in the cooling and heating system to see if the clamps are holding. See any bulges or cracks in the hoses? With the engine cool, check the fluid level in the radiator.

Take the anti-freeze tester you bought last fall and check to see that the anti-freeze is still going to protect your engine.

While thinking about fluids, check the levels and CONDITIONS of the oil, automatic transmission (if that's what you have) and brake master cylinder. When was your last oil and filter change?

Also check the windshield washer bottle and battery.

Check belts for wear and, while doing so, the engine to detect leaks. Push and pull on items such as air cleaner, air conditioner compressor and power steering pump to make sure they are bolted down correctly.

Now check the outside of the car . . . wiper blades, tires and all the lights. Check the spare. Did you, like you promised yourself, put an "emergency kit" in the trunk?

One last check. The next time you go to the grocery store, before going inside, open the hood and look over the cooling system for leaks that may only show up when the system is under pressure.

By undertaking these preliminary precautions, you may be saving yourself some costly repairs or chilly nights on the side of the road.

School Election In November . . .

Board Changes Its Election Process

Thief River Falls board of education voted to change the annual school election date to coincide with the general election in November, approved a 1983-84 contract with bus drivers, approved a revised administrative structure utilizing an assistant superintendent to be selected from within the system and initiated a process for em*ployee evaluation at its* regular meeting Monday evening in the school district service center.

Instead of conducting a separate school election in May and having board members take office in July 1, School District 564 will now conduct its election at regular polling places during the general election held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November. Board members will take office on January 1 of the following year.

The new election procedure is scheduled to begin in 1984 and will require some extensive voter registration research. Board members whose terms would expire on June 30 this year will have their terms extended to December 30. Board members whose terms would expire on June 30 in 1985 and 1986 will have their terms extended to December 30 of those years. Main purpose for the change is to provide the largest possible turn-out of voters in school elections, according to Supt. Robert Block.

The bus driver contract for 1983-84 was the third year of a three-year contract and involved only salary matters. Approved was a contract calling for a 35 cents per hour across the board increase to drivers, or 4.4 per cent. This settlement follows previous agreement with principals and directors which called for an increase of five per cent in 1983-84 and 2.7 per cent in 1984-85, plus a one per cent increase in fringe benefits over the two years.

The date of January 25 was set for a meeting by the school board with the Thief River Falls education association to discuss school district finances. The TRFEA has asked for school district

Drug Problem For Business Is Addressed

About 55 people attended a meeting of the Thief River Falls Golden K club at the Best Western Inn on Tuesday morning, where they heard a presentation on alcohol and drug abuse in business.

Guest speaker Dick Pappenfuss is a representative of the Minnesota Association of Commerce and Industry (MACI), which is claimed to be the state's largest business-lobby group, with 4,200 members. Although he noted that the cost of alcohol and drug related problems to business is almost impossible to compute, estimates range all the way from $20 to $45 billion annually.

According to Pappenfuss, some costs such as work time and increased worker compensation claims can be documented, but there is no way to record losses which occur due to alcohol related mistakes or damaged customer and public relations. He noted that the old stereotyped image of the alcoholic as a "skid row bum" was now known to be only a small fraction of the total number. Statistics show that 65 per cent of alcholics are married and living with a spouse, and 92 per cent are employed. Contrary to the "bum" myth, middle-class, college-educated people (from which most business executives are drawn) are most likely to suffer from alcoholism.

According to MACI president Win Borden, the decision to begin its employee assistance program was made after analyzing a survey sent to 300 members last summer, which showed that "business owners are not only increasingly aware of the nature and magnitude of alcohol and chemical abuse-related problems in the workplace, but that they understand the potential value of company-based prevention and treatment programs."

MACI's program is geared toward increasing awareness among business people, partially through development of a speaker's bureau,

Jobs Inc. Sets Annual Meet For January 19

Annual meeting of Thief River Falls Jobs Incorporated will be conducted Thursday, January 19, following a 12 noon luncheon in the lower level of Lon's restaurant, in Thief River Falls, according to Ev Ault, president.

With the terms of four members of the board of directors expiring, five candidates have been nominated for two-year terms. Completing their terms in 1983 are James Winjum, vice president; Gene Beito treasurer; Dale Olmstead and William Hogan, directors.

Nominated for two-year terms are Beito, Winjum, Roger Reuter, Dennis McCabe and Dr. John Seaverson. Directors whose terms expire in 1984 are Ev Ault, William Ness, Arnold Carriere, Arve Moser and David Strong.

Dues increase to $25 per individual member per year was announced in the annual meeting notice, primarily to permit the organization to meet its $10,500 share of funding the expanded and accelerated business attraction and support program. Dues and the $5 luncheon tickets may be paid at the door, Ault said.

Agenda for the meeting includes the treasurer's report, election, report on the "Builders of Thief River Falls" fund raising program, update on the Arctco snowmobile business, and information on other business and status of contacts Jobs Incorporated has made. Goals and objectives for 1984 will be discussed.

Schools Close January 19-20

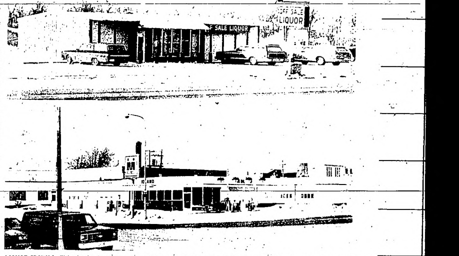
Thief River Falls public schools will be closed January 19 and 20 for parent-teacher conferences and in-service training for teachers, according to Supt. Robert Block.



LIQUOR STORE facilities for the city of Thief River Falls have been hotly contested among council members and the general public in the past few days. City liquor committee members claim a need for more space for the city's off sale liquor operation and would prefer a location closer to the downtown. To that end, arrangements were made to purchase the Consumer's Co-op building (bottom) at the corner of Atlantic avenue and Second street. The present store (top photo) was built by the city west of highway 59 on the south edge of the city. At last night's council meeting, the city officials rescinded an earlier 5-3 decision to purchase, voting 8-0 to return the matter to the liquor committee for further study, cost estimates and review.

Council Returns Co-op Purchase To Committee

Responding to controversy over a December 20 resolution to purchase the Consumer's Coop building for use as a municipal off-sale liquor outlet, Thief River Falls city council voted 8-0 last night to rescind that action and conduct a further comprehensive study as to the most appropriate location for its liquor dispensary.

That action was taken in front of one of the largest audiences recently attending a city council meeting, estimated at between 75 and 100 people. Although the December 20 resolution passed 5-3, the decision to rescind that action was made without an argument stated either for or against the purchase, at least at the meeting. In fact, the matter was not even on the agenda, but was brought about primarily as a result of a successful lobbying effort by Mayor Bob Carlson, who opposed the purchase the first time around, along with Aldermen Bill Penning and Don Goodrich.

Carlson illegally delayed the purchase, by refusing to sign papers allowing transfer of the deed, and also by not leaving town which would have allowed council vice chairman Ambrose Wysoski to sign in his absence. Carlson publically stated that he would go to jail before he would sign the contract, and utilized the time gained to publicly encourage opposition to the purchase. United Methodist church, located less than a block away, on the opposite side of the street from the proposed site, fielded a large delegation at last night's meeting, and Carlson presented a petition with 183 signatures in opposition.

Before introducing a motion to rescind the previous resolution, Alderman Ken Murphy asked to make a statement, noting that the division of the council did not enhance attractiveness of the city at a time when they were seeking new business, adding that he did not wish to see the polarization deepen. He commented that the situation would leave no one as a winner.

His resolution stated, in part: "Whereas, the action has resulted in controversy and it threatens to interfere with the regular work of the city council, and the council deems it to be in the best interests of the city to rescind said resolution and to conduct a further comprehensive study as to the most appropriate location for its municipal liquor dispensary. . ." it went on to rescind the motion and refer the question to the liquor committee for a comprehensive study of all available sites, and the cost to adapt them for use as a municipal liquor dispensary and report their findings to the city council.

Murphy commented that he was merely asking that the matter be placed on hold at this time, adding that he did not expect concessions. On a roll-call vote, the resolution passed unanimously. This drew a round of applause from Community arts council has decided to introduce a series on art during January and February by featuring a number of young local artists, and displaying their work at Northwest regional library. Featured for the next two weeks will be work done by two Franklin middle school art students: Heather Adamson and Kris Oseid.

Heather, 13, is a seventh grader at Franklin, and is the daughter of Don and Paula Adamson of rural Thief River Falls. Her hobbies include art, playing piano, volleyball and camping. She also enjoys acting and has been actively involved in Christmas productions of the Chameleon Theatre group the past few years.

Selections of her work in the library display case include a landscape painting, a blue monochromatic painting of shapes, clay chicken sculptures on wood, and a three-dimensional collage of a clown. Decorating the shelves behind the library circulation desk is a pinata which she created in the shape of a cat with a lollipop.

Heather says she enjoys art because "Art helps you to express yourself — not only to yourself, but to others."

Kris Oseid, 14, is an eighth grader at Franklin, and is the son of Doris Oseid of Thief River Falls. His hobbies include art, hunting, fishing, role-playing fantasy games and model airplanes.

Attention to detail is evident in the work in his display at the library, which includes:

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Anderson And Engelstad Marriage Vows Spoken

Marriage vows were exchanged at Trinity Lutheran church, Thief River Falls on November 19, at 4:00 p.m., by Janel Kay Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Aubol and Murray Don Engelstad, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Engelstad, all of Thief River Falls.

Rev. Berton Hushagen officiated at the double-ring ceremony, together with Rev. Louis Hermansen of Roseau. Elaine Idso served as organist, playing "Wedding Song," as the bridesmaids entered, and the traditional wedding march as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father. Selections sung by Sally Erickson, a friend of the bride, were "The Rose," and "The Lord's Prayer".

The bride was attired in a white satin Priscilla styled gown with shimmering Chantilly lace, in miniature floral pattern, complementing the bodice, peplum and long, puffed sleeves, gathered into wide cuffs. Chantilly lace trim edged the softly flared skirt which flowed back into a semi-cathedral length train. Her veil, in fingertip and blusher style with coordinating Chantilly bud lace trim, was attached to a cap headpiece. The bride made her own gown, veil and headpiece. She carried a cascade of silk roses in shades of white' peach and wheat, peach and ivory carnations, babies' breath and brown ferns with peach and white ribbon steamers.

Pam Ninneman of Villard, a friend of the bride, was maid of honor. Junior bridesmaid was Nichole Anderson, a daughter of the bride. Both wore coral with ivory lace off-the-shoulder, floor-length gowns. Similar gowns in peach with ivory lace trim were worn by the other attendants: Lynae Johnson and Stacy Aubol, sisters of the bride. All carried silk bouquets of peach roses, ivory and wheat carnations, babies' breath and brown ferns. Their cross necklaces were gifts from the bride.

Attending the groom as bestman was Keith Johnson, brother-in-law of the bride. Ben Engelstad, a cousin of the groom, was junior groomsman and Randy Swenson and Mike Dahle, friends of the groom, were groomsmen. All wore brown tuxedos with peach boutonnieres.

The groom, in an all white tuxedo had peach and wheat silk roses pinned on his lapel.

Serving as ushers were Lowell Anderson, brother of the bride; Mitch Engelstad, brother of the groom, and John Engelstad, a cousin of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Aubol wore a wine-colored street-length dress with an ivory double rose corsage. The groom's mother was attired in an ivory street-length dress topped by a brown jacket. Her corsage was of ivory and peach roses.

Following a wedding trip to Las Vegas, Nev., the couple is at home in Thief River Falls at Northwestern trailer court.

Zehlians Hear Local Musician, China Painter

Vi Barr, local musician and china painter, was guest speaker at the January 4th meeting of the Zehlian club held at the home of Marge Green.

Mrs. Barr stated that she and her husband, a former area resident, came to Thief River Falls from St. Paul a few years ago, after his retirement. While living in St. Paul, Mrs. Barr gave private music lessons in piano, organ, violin, guitar and voice. Wanting to slow her pace a bit, yet needing something to do, she turned to china painting. As she gave the history of China painting, she displayed some of her work, which included plates, jewelry, boxes and books.

To conclude her presentation, Mrs. Barr played two classical guitar selections, "Sonatina," and "Adante," by Carulli. She also played the guitar and sang "The Rose."

Drug Problem For Business Is Addressed

which Pappenfuss represents. Sample guidelines have also been established to assist companies to establish their own policies governing the use and serving of alcohol at business-related social functions.

"We are by no means attempting to bring back prohibition with this program," explained Jim Keenan, MACI employee assistance committee chairman. "We are not saying that it is wrong for individuals to drink or for businesses to make alcohol a part of entertainment. We are saying that it is important for businesses to understand how to use alcohol responbily, and understand how to deal with any and all problems which are brought on by irresponsible use of alcohol."

Among significant results of the MACI member survery were the following: 95 per cent agreed that it makes good business sense for employers to assist an employee with a possible abuse problem; 92 per cent felt recovered alcoholics could successfully return to work; 77 per cent thought health promotion programs pay for themselves through increased productivity and improved morale; 79 per cent supported giving employees time off for chemical dependency treatment; 61 per cent throught the business community should support these programs even without a direct economic return to the company; 79 per cent believed preventative programs would help reduce alcohol and drug problems; 91 per cent knew that alocholics typically deny their drinking problem; 93 per cent recognized that most alcoholics are not on skid row; and 90 per cent knew that alcohol was a depressant drug.

Pappenfuss emphasized that companies who felt they had a problem related to alcohol or drugs should seek professional help. He noted that alcoholics typically deny having a drinking problem, and even families are usually unable to get them to recognize it. Special techniques are often required to get through to such people, and he recommended the day-night unit at Northwestern Hospital and the Glenmore Foundation at Crookston as a source of information and assistance in this area.

In addition to providing recommendations for establishing company policy on alcohol use, Pappenfuss provided those attending the meeting with suggestions for entertaining with alcohol which included recipes for non-alcoholic drinks; tips on developing responsible attitudes; suggestions for handling guests who become intoxicated, and phone numbers and addresses of people to contact for assistance in dealing with alcohol and drug problems.

Mayor Carlson stated that he was "very pleased with what happened," and asked that those who had attended with the intent of presenting a statement, submit them in writing, and expressed his thanks for the support shown.

Milan Borsheim, chairman of the liquor committee, has previously stated that the present liquor store (located on Highway 59 South) is too small, lacking storage space and room for effective merchandising. He also claims that expansion on that site is not practical, due to Minnesota department of transportation plans for a frontage road there, and high real estate costs. He stated after the meeting that the committee will be working for about the next month to develop plans and cost studies to show which site is best. "I'm disappointed by this setback of course," he said, "but we'll be back."

In other business the council:

— Heard a presentation from Mike Woods, representing the chamber of commerce, who requested that council consider adopting an ordinance establishing a lodging tax, which could be used to raise funds for promotion of conventions and tourism. On questioning, he noted that a recommended tax of two per cent on lodging fees paid by transient guests staying under 30 days, would raise approximately $20,000. Under recent state legislation, 95 per cent of that money would be used to promote the city, with five per cent going to the agency responsible for collecting the tax, which could be the city, county or state. Woods was directed to meet with the tax, license and finance committee to form a recommendation to the council;

— Heard a request from the World Series snowmobile race committee, represented by Sue Fredeen, who asked permission to allow private consumption of alcoholic beverages in the area between "Moose Dung" and Bill LaFave parks on February 25 and 26. Although council has the authority to authorize consumptions in the city parks, the river between is not under their jurisdiction, and the matter was referred to the license committee to contact the department of natural resources and Pennington county sheriff's office and bring a recommendation to council on January 24;

— Heard a complaint from Myron Dargus, regarding the amount of salt being used on city streets. Alderman Clayton Restad, chairman of the street committee, stated that he had instructed city crews to "lighten up", and use salt only at intersections, as well as add more sand to the mixture;

— Heard a request from Harry Oen, chairman of the site selection committee of the committee on aging, asking that their project to find a place for a senior citizen center be "moved to the front burner." He was directed to arrange a meeting with the finance committee to study several sites, with the area between city auditorium and the Pennington county courthouse suggested as a strong possibility;

— Approved a planning commission recommendation to grant a variance to the sign ordinance, allowing a 96 foot, three-sided roof sign for Century 21, on the PCA building;

— Approved a special use permit allowing Carl's Auto Sales to sell used cars in the C-2 area along Highway 1 west, for one year;

— Approved a contract with Thune Upham Insurance to provide the city's insurance for 1984 at an estimated cost of $115,209.

— Heard that department head and non-supervisory personnel salaries had not been finalized by the negotiation committee yet, but were expected to be ready for a recommendation at the next meeting in January;

— Approved routine business for the first meeting of the year, which included committee, board and commission appointments by the mayor. Only committee changes from last year, were replacement of Ambrose Wysoski by Don Goodrich on the utilities committee, with Ken Murphy named as chairman; and replacement of Goodrich by Wysoski on the street committee.

School Board Changes Date Of Elections

financial materials to be audited by the state MEA office and the materials have been supplied, Supt. Block said. Russ Christianson of the school district auditing firm of Moser and Christianson and school district business manager Harry Nelson will be present at that session of the negotiating groups.

The revised administrative structure adopted by the board Monday would provide for an assistant superintendent to have direct supervisory authority for adult vocational education, transportation, mechanics and food service. The superintendent would continue direct supervision of community education director, buildings and grounds supervisor, business manager, AVTI director, vocational center director, special education director and principals and assistant principals.

Supt. Block noted that former superintendent Dr. William Corliss completed his service to the district on January 1 and the board accepted the resignation of Avis Holum as personnel clerk effective December 31. Those changes in personnel allow for the change in administrative authority and the selection of an assistant superintendent from within the school system.

Authorization was given for the firm of Hewitt Associates to be contracted to develop an evaluation process for administrators on a one-year basis. The evaluation procedure will be reviewed at the end of that time, and if considered successful may be applied to other school personnel.

The board again approved proceeding with a tax anticipation offering through the firm of Evenson-Dodge, Inc. The offering permits the school district to obtain and invest funds with a net gain in interest income.

Approval was also given to take bids on several remodeling projects to accommodate handicapped students and for re-roofing of the Lincoln gymnasium. Handicapped projects include a walkway and sloped ramp at Mark Twain for accessibility to the handicapped playground area on the east side of the building; installation of a ramp and modification of lavatories in the pool area at Franklin middle school; installation of a ramp at the north entrance of Washington elementary school and modifications in library and lavatory there; and placement of a ramp between the 1938 and 1956 additions at Lincoln high school.

Approval was given to authorize continuation of the golf, boys tennis and baseball extra-curricular programs for the current school year since community funds are available to operate these programs.

If funding is made available by the legislature above the needed operational unappropriated fund balance, the board will consider a number of positions for reinstatement. Certified positions include elementary physical education, counselor at Lincoln high school, media specialist and reading and math teachers at Franklin, half-time instructor for the academically able, half-time physical education at Lincoln and computer coordinator for the district.

Other areas considered would be elementary media aide, replacement of supply and materials budgets, funds for staff inservice in computer technology, reading, writing and mathematics, and updating textbooks with a planned five-year program for renewals.

Buildings and grounds supervisor gave a brief report on PCBs and noted he and another staff member will attend a workshop January 17 to obtain addition information to be presented to the board at its next meeting January 23 at 7:30 p.m.

The board was presented with information on preliminary research conducted to assure seniors would complete required courses in the event of a teacher strike. Lincoln principal Frank Hamerlinck had prepared the material which indicated there are 195 seniors enrolled at the Lincoln high school and Northwest vocational center classes.

Hamerlinck pointed out that Dr. Milton Hoff, principal at Franklin middle school, is certified to teach English. Mike Novak, assistant principal, and Richard Kotschevar, director of the vocational center, are certified in math. Hamerlinck and Dr. Leo Ruberto, special education director, along with Dr. Hoff, are certified in social studies and Terry Soine, assistant principal at Lincoln, has taught physics and chemistry.

Seniors are presently enrolled in about 60 different classes, including five each in English and science, six in social studies, seven in math and the remaining in 37 electives such as business, home economics, German, music, distributive education, special education and center school classes.

Low bid of $56,763 each was accepted from the Bluebird corporation for two 1984 model 87-passenger diesel school buses. Board chairman Harry Sjulson was designated as board representative to negotiate with the city of Thief River Falls regarding rental of the sports arena and other areas for the current school year.

Authorization was given to posting for an aviation curriculum development coordinator and an airframe and powerplant instructor effective through June 30. Arnt Aune and Supt. Block are to join the AVTI administration in negotiating an agreement with the city for leasing or purchasing the hangar at the airport for use in the AVTI aviation program.

Resignations were accepted from Marian Gigstad, first grade teacher at Mark Twain and Avis Holum, personnel clerk, both effective Dec. 31, 1983. Hired were Linda Turenne as AVTI secretarial non-shorthand instructor effective December 19 for 45 days and Arlette Abrahamson as AVTI job placement specialist secretary effective January 10 for six months.

Leave without pay was approved for German instructor Palvi Young to enable her to accompany students on a field trip to Germany March 14-30. David Morken was assigned as head advisor for the Lincoln high school musical. Mike Novak was endorsed as a candidate for the Blandin foundation's principals fellowship program.

The board was informed that the band boosters club are considering a trip to Norway by the Lincoln high school band under sponsorship of the Sons of Norway. Additional information is to be presented at a later meeting.

Conversion Of Cropland To Cover Offered

Cropland conversion to permanent vegetative cover is a new conservation program for 1984, according to Ralph Rundell, soil conservation technician with the soil conservation service at Grygla.

"The program is intended to protect cropland subject to continuing erosion by providing it with permanent vegetative cover," Rundell said. "There is a cost-share of up to 90 per cent on approved cropland which must meet specific criteria.

He added that many acres of Marshall county cropland are not soils mapped and that may create problems in establishing eligibility. "This is another case where a complete soil survey would be very beneficial," Rundell said.

Other practices which will be continued include farmstead and feedlot windbreaks, field shelterbelts, drainage, conservation tillage, stock ponds, erosion control structures and wildlife practices. Information on which are cost shared and to what extent is available from the SCS office in Grygla by calling 294-6144.

Informational meeting on ASCS and ACP programs, extension service and soil conservation service offerings will be conducted at Grygla's community center beginning at 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Annual meeting of the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district has been scheduled for Thursday, February 16.

Stangeland Is Disappointed On Wolf Ruling

Congressman Arlan Stangeland expressed his "extreme disappointment" over U.S. District Judge Miles Lord's decision to disallow federal regulations that would have turned control over the timber wolf in Minnesota to the state department of natural resources.

"Judge Lord's ruling goes against northern Minnesota's sportsmen, its deer herd, and especially hurts family farmers in the region," said Stangeland.

The U.S. interior department's final rule implementing the change was published in the Federal Register on August 10, but the regulations had previously been blocked by a court injunction.

"Livestock depredations by timber wolves have increasingly threatened the livelihoods of northern Minnesota livestock farmers and have all but wiped out the sheep industry in this part of the state," Stangeland stated. "Even though timber wolf numbers are considered small on a national scale, virtually all timber wolves in the country are located in the northern one-third of our state."

Stangeland also criticized Judge Lord for perpetuating the notion that the final regulations would permit a "war on wolves."

"The Minnesota DNR recommended a modest annual harvest plan that would remove surplus wolves and restrain a growing wolf population from further expanding out of their normal habitat," Stangeland said.

"The 50 or so wolves taken each year would in no way threaten the survival of the timber wolf and would only place a modest check upon future population growth. Most species do not create fear and controversy by preying upon livestock and threatening peoples' livelihoods, however, timber wolves do and their management must take that into account."

Congressman Stangeland added that he has written Interior Secretary Clark and the Interior Solicitor, William Coldiron, urging that Judge Lord's decision be appealed. "If this negative ruling is allowed to stand, the federal government should be prepared to make retribution for the hardship it will cause northern Minnesota."

Wives Sought To Enter Mrs. Minn. Contest

Search is still on to find a "Mrs. Minnesota" to represent all of Minnesota's wives in the "Mrs. America Pageant" at the Las Vegas Hilton hotel in Las Vegas, NV, in May 1984. Hannie Delwiche and Jeanne Stoner, Mrs. Minnesota-America state directors, announced that the Mrs. Minnesota-America pageant will be hosted in Burnsville on Thursday, March 15.

Minnesota wives are invited to participate by contacting the state directors at 6570 Pipewood Curve, Excelsior, Minnesota 55331, or by calling (612) 474-1554 or 474-1475 for further details and applications.

Mrs. Minnesota candidates are judged primarily in three categories: poise and personality, intelligence, and appearance; although careful consideration is given to family life and participation and involvement in community affairs. All Minnesota wives are eligible to enter the state pageant.

Reigning "Mrs. Minnesota-America" is Judy List, of St. Cloud, and she will crown the new queen. Many prizes will be awarded to the Minnesota woman selected by a panel of distinguished judges to reign as "Mrs. Minnesota" in 1984, including a trip to participate in the "Mrs. America pageant," with all expenses paid, which is nationally televised.

Music Series Is Given On Public Radio

Starting January 13, Minnesota public radio will investigate the world of electronic music in the 26-part series 'Totally Wired: Artists in Electronic Sound,' an exploration of electronic music and its dramatic effect on all styles of 20th century music. Cutting across musical boundaries with demonstrations and comments by 37 leading musicians including the early electronic pioneers, current hit-makers, jazz artists, designers of computer music, and classically trained computers, 'Totally Wired' is a unique program focusing on the artistic and philosophic changes brought on by the electronic revolution. In the Fargo-Moorhead area these half-hour programs will air on Fridays (except the first Friday of each month) at 10:30 p.m. on KCCM 91.1 FM.

"I Sing the Body Electric," the opening program which airs on January 13, presents an overview of electronic evolution and a preview of the next 25 programs in the series. Included are interviews and music of Robert Moog, Vangelis, Chick Corea and many others.

Broadcast on January 20, the second program examines an early pioneer of electronic music and a founder of the Columbia-Princeton Electronic Music Center, Otto Luening. Born in Milwaukee and musically trained in Europe, Luening became a ground-breaking composer at the age of 52 when in the 1950s he discovered the possibilities of manipulating sound with the newly invented tape recorder. Working alone and in collaboration with composer Vladimir Ussachevsky, he wrote over 15 original works for tape recorder.

On January 27, the third program focuses upon the uses of the electronic synthesizer as a substitute orchestra and surveys the contributions of Wendy Carlos, whose 1968 recording 'Switched-On Bach' was hugely popular. Carlos talks about the controversy surrounding the synthesizer's effectiveness as an imitator of traditional music ensembles.

Following each segment of 'Totally Wired', Minnesota public radio will broadcast a selection of electronic music gathered from its extensive music library.

Sen. Langseth Confirms Bid For Congress

At stops in Moorhead, Alexandria, St. Cloud and St. Paul, State Senator Keith Langseth reaffirmed his candidacy for the Democratic endorsement for the Seventh District Congressional seat.

Langseth said that his contacts with people throughout the district have been "encouraging" and that is now beginning a "strong campaign to the endorsement convention." Langseth stated that he will be "spending the weeks before the convention traveling throughout the district, meeting with potential delegates and building a solid campaign organization." He will visit briefly in Thief River Falls Thursday.

Langseth, a farmer from Glyndon, stated that he would be a more effective representative than the incumbent, Arlan Stangeland. Langseth claimed that Stangeland's voting record shows that Stangeland is "out on the far right end of American politics, a record which is not in tune with the people of the Seventh District." Langseth said that he would take a more moderate and responsible approach to the issues.

LSS Creates Six Service Regions In MN

Lutheran social service (LSS) of Minnesota has created six regions of service throughout the state, effective Jan. 1.

Named as directors of the regions are Daniel Bergeland, LSS-Northeast; Diane Daehlin, LSS-Metro West, (Minneapolis); Sanford Fuglestad, LSS-Northwest; Marvin Grunke, LSS-Metro East, (St. Paul); Roy Harley, LSS-Southeast; and Wes Stevens, LSS-Southwest. They will be responsible for the day-to-day operations of the region.

Each director will also be responsible for developing and maintaining social ministry programs appropriate to the needs and resources of the region under the supervision of Howard L. Paulsen, vice president of programs. Certain statewide programs including adoption, child care, refugee resettlement, congregational services, Camp Knutson and unaccompanied minors, will continue to be managed through the LSS state center.

In explaining the move to regionalization, Dr. James Raun, LSS president, said, "Minnesota is not a homogeneous state. Widely varying cultural and economic conditions occur across the state. Needs and services also vary. Regionalization will permit more direct relationship and greater flexibility in response to local needs, interests and concerns."

Sanford Fuglestad in the Northwest region agrees, saying, "Regionalization will provide opportunities for programs and services to be increasingly responsive to the needs of the communities and congregations in northwest Minnesota."

Fuglestad has been with LSS for 22 years, starting out as a social worker in the Willmar office. He then directed that office for four years before becoming director of the Moorhead office where he has served for the past 15 years.

In his new position as regional director, Fuglestad's responsibilities will expand to include Lake Park-Wild Rice residential treatment center for children in Fergus Falls and coordination of area chaplaincy services. He is also responsible for counseling centers in Moorhead, Ada, Bemidji, Fergus Falls, Park Rapids and Thief River Falls.

Fuglestad did his undergraduate work at Concordia college in Moorhead and received a master's degree in social work from Florida state university.

PRESENTING TESTIMONY on the need for increased strength highways for year-around movement of products were these representatives of various area businesses attending the Northwest regional development commission's transportation committee meeting in Thief River Falls Monday evening. Left to right are Wally Sistad, Farmers Union oil company at Grygla; David Brateng, Grygla Co-op Creamery association; Clarence Erickson, Bager; and Jerome Burkel, representing Burkel Grain of Grygla. Not pictured is Todd Stanley who represented Grygla Grain company at the meeting. Grygla area businessmen were concerned with a year-around outlet for grain and ability to haul in fuel, fertilizer and other products at that community which has no rail service. They expressed a preference for upgrading highway 89 and 219 to connect with highway 1 to Thief River Falls. Greenbush and Badger shippers were concerned with improvement of highway 89 from highway 11 to the Canadian border.

New Financial Plan Offered Ag Borrowers

Beginning with the 1984 crop year, borrowers of the Farmers Home administration (FmHA) will receive better financial planning assistance through new coordinated financial statements (CFS), according to Russ Bjorhus, FmHA director for Minnesota.

Previously farm borrowers have used the agency's "farm and home plan" to analyze their operations and plan financial strategies. That plan has not changed substantially since it was developed nearly 50 years ago, according to Bjorhus.

"The intricacies of modern farming, with its emphasis on large-scale operations, competitive marketing and diversity of production, require sophisticated financial management techniques. Good farm financial management is absolutely necessary for farmers to succeed in the 1980's, and the CFS can provide the sophisticated analyses needed to make sound decisions," he said.

Coordinated financial statements include a balance sheet and statement of owner's equity; an income statement, showing all income and expenses; a statement of change in financial position, indicating new borrowings, withdrawals and debt payment of the past year; and a cash flow statement, showing cash income and outgo for the previous year and projections for the coming year.

CFS will be phased in over a four-year period, Bjorhus said. In 1984, each county office is scheduled to use the CFS with at least 10 borrowers. In 1985, 25 per cent of the borrowers in each county office should be using the new system with the number increasing to 65 per cent by 1986. During the 1987 crop year, all borrowers should be using the CFS.

Local FmHA county supervisors have been trained in use of the CFS and are now able to assist borrowers going on the new system.

Advance Miller To Assistant Offices At 'U' M

Gerald Miller, an extension agronomist for the University of Minnesota's agricultural extension service, was named assistant director of extension for agriculture and assistant dean of the college of agriculture in early January.

Miller, who had been acting assistant director since last January, was chosen after a nationwide search for candidates, according to extension director Norm Brown.

Miller is a nationally known weed sceintist and has been hailed for developing innovative educational programs such as the integrated pest management program. The program, which ran from 1978 to 1982 under Miller's direction, involved using scouts in fields and extension personnel as well as other agricultural professionals to help farmers maximize production while using pesticides judiciously to minimize environmental damage. The Minnesota program developed into one of the nation's best respected integrated pest management programs. Brown said.

Miller is well-known in Minnesota as an extension teacher of weed control courses and author of extension publications that are widely used by farmers, regulatory personnel and agribusiness people.

Regarding Miller's appointment, Brown said, "Jerry is a distinguished faculty member and is highly respected in our organization. We are extremely pleased that he has chosen to spend the next chapter of his career in our administrative team. His added responsibilities as assistant dean of the college of agriculture will enhance the integration of extension in the academic departments."

Miller, who has been an extension agronomist since 1964, received the director's distinguished faculty award at the extension service's annual conference in October and was honored as the outstanding extension worker in the nation by the Weed Science society of America in 1979. He replaces Gene Pilgram, who retired, as assistant director.

Diet Is Not A Proven Cure For Arthritis

People with arthritis are often told that one diet or another can help or cure their disease. But, despite hundreds of careful research studies, diet has never been proven to be directly related to any form of arthritis except gout, according to the Arthritis foundation.

Most arthritis-diet claims are of two types, the Arthritis foundation reports. One is folklore, or "old wives tales," passed on by well-meaning relatives or friends. The other is quackery or unproven remedies which commonly come from people who want to make money selling a book or product. But tests have yet to find any diet or supplement that makes a positive change in those with arthritis.

Arthritis foundation has a special booklet, "Arthritis Diet and Nutrition." It is free to anyone calling the foundation's toll-free message center, 1-800-552-1278. Questions about arthritis may be recorded for answer by mail.

Nicole Dimich Letter Rates Feature Use

A Thief River Falls girl, Nicole Dimich, has had a letter published in the Minneapolis Star and Tribune feature entitled "Journal Juniors". The page features letters from young people on various topics. Nicole, the 12-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Tom Dimich, wrote her letter for the topic "Friends". This is what the sixth grader at Franklin middle school wrote:

Andrea Taylor was my first friend. Because she has Down's Syndrome and is retarded our friendship has a special meaning.

We always have fun playing together, but there was more to it than that. Andrea taught me things and I taught her things. I helped her learn how to ride a bike and roller-skate, but some of the best times were going to school and coming home from school. During the ride I would teach her sign language. On each bus ride I'd see if she'd remember what I had taught her. Oftentimes she did.

I learned many things from her, not the usual things. Andrea helped me realize that the way you talk or look or the things that you can do don't mean anything in a friendship.

About two years ago, Andrea's dad got a job in Tulsa, Okla. After knowing her from the time I was born, it was hard to say goodbye. She came back to visit this summer. It was fun to hear about all her new friends, her school and all the activities such as the camp she went to. I discovered that even though I hadn't seen her in so long, our friendship hadn't changed. I hope our friendship will never end because she lives so far away. I still wish she hadn't moved.

Asks Extension Of Deadline On Dairy Program

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has asked agriculture secretary John Block to extend the deadline for farmers to sign up for the new dairy program until at least February 15.

"After several meetings with dairy farmers and your officials in northwest Minnesota, it seems clear that the January 31 deadline is unworkable," Stangeland told Block in a letter recently.

At several meetings with county officials from the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service (ASCS) and dairy farmers, Congressman Stangeland was told that it would take more than 28 days to study the new regulations, compile records and write individual plans for participating farmers.

"If this program is going to succeed, we need the participation of the farmers," the four-term House veteran told Block. "Participation will decrease if we enforce this unworkable deadline. The sign-up deadline should be extended until at least February 15 to allow our farmers to determine whether the diversion program is in their best individual interests."

The paid diversion program would encourage dairy farmers to control over-production by offering them payments of $10 per hundredweight of milk not produced, within certain guidelines. Thar figure is less than the $17 per hundredweight the government often pays to purchase, transport and store surplus milk products.

"Although I have asked Secretary Block for an extension. I urge all interested farmers to act quickly on their paperwork," Congressman Stangeland said. "If the deadline is not extended, I would hate to have farmers caught up in the red tape. They would be left on the outside, looking in on the program.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS in the formation of a shippers association and concern for improved Burlington Northern rail service in this area were presented by Buzz Marvin of Warroad (left) at a meeting of the Northwest regional development commission's transportation committee Monday evening in Thief River Falls. At right is Ron Martin of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce transportation committee. Marvin was appointed at a meeting last week to organize a meeting of shippers on the BN line between Marcoux corner and Warroad. The meeting is planned for early next week, probably at Greenbush, and will include distribution of shipper survey forms, election of a board of directors, initiation of incorporation procedure, adoption of a tentative budget, development of goal statements and solicitation of contacts in each community served by the BN line.

Campaign Goal Set By Minn. Heart Ass'n.

"The challenge we face in the battle against heart disease is great," said Harold Nelson of Montevideo, 1984 state heart fund chairman for the American heart association, Minnesota affiliate. "Through a state campaign goal of $2.3 million the Minnesota affiliate seeks to continue its efforts to reduce heart disease deaths," Nelson said.

The Minnesota Affiliate combats heart disease through research, community service programs and public and professional education.

"It is tragic that nearly 12,000 Minnesotans died from heart disease last year," said Nelson. "A volunteer effort of 60,000 Minnesotans work each year to inform all Minnesotans of the terrible threat posed by heart disease. The 1984 state heart fund campaign is a year-round effort which is highlighted in February, heart month, with a door-to-door residential drive," Nelson said.

Last year the American heart association, Minnesota affiliate raised slightly over $2,020,000 during the state heart fund campaign.

Progress has been made during the past 30 years. For the first time since 1948, the percentage of all deaths due to cardiovascular disease has fallen below 50 per cent on the national level. In Minnesota, deaths attributed to cardiovascular disease fell from 16,983 to 11,917 in 1981.

Despite this progress, heart disease remains America's number one killer. Heart disease claimed 979,500 Americans in 1982. In Minnesota, heart disease is responsible for 36.3 per cent of the deaths, more than any other single cause.

Host Families Are Sought For Europe Students

American families are needed for European high school students from Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland, Great Britain, Switzerland and Germany for the 1984-85 high school year, by the American Scandinavian student exchange program (ASSE), affiliated with the Swedish and Finnish departments of education.

All students are carefully screened in Europe by their school and the local ASSE office. All are fluent in English and have their own spending money and complete medical and liability insurance. ASSE provides support for families and students during the year through fully trained local volunteer area representatives, available whenever needed.

Students, ages 16 and 17, will arrive in late August. They are eager to learn about America and experience living as part of a warm and loving American family. They will attend a local high school and return to Europe in late June or early July 1985.

Interested parties please contact: Joanna Brewer, 1720 Lake Avenue NE, Bemidji, MN 56601. Phone: 218-751-2921. Letters must contain the writer's address and telephone number.

ASSE is also seeking qualified American high school students, ages 16, 17 and 18, who would like to spend a high school year attending school and living with a Scandinavian, Swiss, British or German family, or take part in a six week family stay in Scandinavia or Germany during the summer of 1984.

Cancer Society Provides Help In Minnesota

Thousands of Minnesotans benefit from the efforts of the American Cancer society volunteers, according to Harry Solberg, president of the society's Pennington county unit.

He explained that during the past year, 9,524 Minnesota cancer patients received direct aid from the society, such as transportation assistance, loaned sickroom equipment and rehabilitation aid. Volunteers provided cancer education to 775,159 Minnesota adults and young people teaching cancer prevention and ways to detect the disease early enough for cure.

More than 25,000 Minnesota health professionals were reached with the latest information on cancer diagnosis, detection and treatment through the society's professional education program.

These figures have just been made available by the society's Minnesota division headquarters, Solberg said. All represent more people helped and reached than in any previous year.

"The American Cancer society is people helping people," he said. "We are now determined to reach out to even more of our fellow Minnesotans during the coming year. Our crusade volunteers collect the funds that support these services and education programs. We need more volunteers for these fund-raising efforts. Anyone who is willing to help the control and eventual conquest of cancer is invited to call Myrle Carlson at 681-4174 or 681-3550 to help in this year's cancer crusade."

History Fair Opens At RLF This Sunday

"New Homes: The Immigrant Experience," a photographic exhibit on loan from the Minnesota Historical society, opens Sunday for four weeks at the Minnesota Wheat Growers building in Red Lake Falls.

The cultural and history fair is a combination of exhibits, films, speakers and presentations. All activities are free to the public. Exhibit hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, with special Sunday afternoon programs through February 12.

The main photo exhibit documents the experiences of some of the thousands of families immigrating to Minnesoata during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Moving to a new country radically transformed the lives of most immigrants. Some 55 photographs and posters depict that transformation, showing who settled in Minnesota, what persuaded them to move, what they found when they arrived, and how they adapted to their new homes.

To enhance the exhibit, the Red Lake county historical society has arranged a variety of Sunday afternoon programs for the public throughout the exhibit period, made possible with grants from the state arts board and the Minnesota humanities commission.

Dr. Mary Bluemle, professor of Indian studies, University of North Dakota, will give a presentation Sunday at 2 p.m. on the "Cultural Uses of Plants by the Woodland Indians of Minnesota." Her talk will include a discussion of Indian customs and traditions, and edible woodland plants.

On January 22, at 1:30 p.m., Marjorie McLellan, American studies specialist, University of Minnesota, will discuss "The Immigrant Experience Remembered," German immigration and family history, the German experiences in Minnesota, and how family characteristics are revealed through family albums, diaries and mementoes. Also on this Sunday, Fay Dickey, teacher and dairy farmer from Leonard, former European and American operatic performer, will sing a selection of German songs.

"Roots" is the theme on Sunday, January 29, with presentations and workshops on genealogies — how to begin searching your family tree, anecdotes, techniques, aids and resource material in tracing family histories. A discussion of "Prehistorical Minnesota — The Glacial Period" will begin the afternoon at 1 p.m. with Dr. Ken Harris of the U.S. geological institute.

Don McKercher duo of Wilton, Minnesota, is scheduled February 5 at 2 p.m. The duo will sing and perform Swedish songs and melodies and give historical and cultural commentary.

The last Sunday, February 12, will be devoted to discussions and slide and film presentations by area travelers in their visits to such places as Canada, France, Finland, Ireland, Norway and Sweden.

Films of different countries and cultures have been obtained for showing before the presentations on Sundays from 1 to 2 p.m., and following the presentations from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. They include "Crac," a 15 minute film which portrays the experiences of a French Canadian family of former years as seen through the "eyes" of an old fashioned rocking chair; "Mother of Many Children," a highly acclaimed film about Indian women of Canada; "Story of Sampo," an animated film based on the Finnish Sampo poems; "Americans from Germany," produced for the United States Bi-Centennial; "Three Faces of Iceland"; "The Reindeer Herders," a documentary of a Lapp family; and others.

Arrangements for school classes or clubs to view the exhibit should be made by calling Carol Pederson at the Minnesota Wheat Growers headquarters in Red Lake Falls, 1-800-242-6118. Films available at the time can be shown during these visits if requested.

Heart Fund Memorials Are Announced

Research and programs for the prevention and control of heart disease have been aided by the gifts in memory of: Leonard Nielsen, John P. Kulseth, Signe Nelson, Morris Bye, Emil Koglin, Laurel Anton, John Kulseth, Elneer Ness, LeRoy Johnsrud, Olger S. Green and Elmer Eastman.

In reporting the contributions, the Heart Fund memorial county representative Florence Drotts stated, "A memorial gift to the American Heart association, Minnesota affiliate is a thoughtful way to express sympathy while also doing something positive to aid the fight against heart disease. It not only comforts those in grief, it also helps reduce the toll of heart disease — the killer of more Americans than all other causes combined."

In Minnesota, over 25 per cent of all deaths are from heart disease. Even in the 45-64 age group heart disease is the leading cause of death.

Memorial gifts may be sent to Florence Drotts, 106 Parkview Drive, Thief River Falls, 56701.

A SIMPLE APPROACH TO BUSINESSOWNERS INSURANCE

If you own a small-to-medium size retail business, chances are you never thought you'd be applying the word simple to a businessowners insurance plan.

But we've found a way to do just that. It's INA/Aetna's Businessowners Protection Plan, and it combines the efficiency and ease you value with the sophisticated coverage and service you need.

It's written in clear, concise language, so you know exactly what you're getting for your insurance dollar. It includes both property and liability coverages, so you won't have to purchase separate policies that may cost you more. And if you have special needs, you'll find optional coverages to meet most of them, too.

What's more, it's a real time-saver. Just answer a few questions, and we'll give you a quote on the spot. After that, we'll continue to give you fast, efficient service—every step of the way.

We represent INA/Aetna. But we work for you.

Easthouse Gets Recognition For Postal Service

Irving Easthouse of Goodridge was recognized for 35 years of government service recently with a pin presentation ceremony and reception conducted at the Goodridge post office, according to Mrs. Marilyn Wiseth, postmaster.

He started carrying mail on route three which was a 75-mile route northwest of Goodridge. He transferred to route two covering the area southeast of Goodridge when that became open and about 10 years ago the three routes were consolidated into two. He remains a carrier on route two.

The present route is 123 miles in length and Easthouse has 187 stops at 193 boxes serving 203 families.

He arrives at the post office between 7 and 7:30 a.m., leaves on the route at 9 a.m. and is due back in the Goodridge post office at 2:20 p.m. He covers the route six times a week and performs the service of a mobile post office, selling stamps and postal cards, picking up packages for parcel post and even completing money orders on occasion. He takes the packages and money for postage to the post office, weighs and places postage on them and returns change to the patrons the following day.

Easthouse estimates he may have driven three-quarters of a million miles on rural routes, presently driving over 30,000 miles a year and changing cars on the average of every three years. The rural roads take their toll on vehicles. Easthouse used his new pickup last spring when roads were in especially poor condition. "When I got back the first day," he said, "the fellows at the gas station had to chip off the mud and ice to find the gas cap."

He says there have been a number of times when he found himself out in a blizzard and began wondering why he had gone out at all, although he has never been stranded.

Goodridge has another veteran rural carrier, Clarence Peterson, who is presently president of the Minnesota rural letter carrier's association.

Prowlers Face Tough Schedule

Bemidji coach Mel Johnson, following the Lumberjacks' one-sided 84-39 win over Thief River Falls Friday, expressed optimism that his team will be able to challenge Moorhead and Fergus Falls for North Sub-Region 8AA high school basketball honors this winter.

Those three teams were all mentioned in preseason talk as post-season contenders, and to-date they've lived up to their expectations. That leaves defending champion Detroit Lakes, plus Park Rapids and Thief River Falls scrambling for the other three positions in the North Sub-Region 8AA field reduced to six this winter by the defection of East Grand Forks and Crookston into the Class A ranks.

Thief River Falls, currently 2-6, is going to have a tough time trying to match the identical 7-11 records the Prowlers accumulated the past two seasons. Of the 12 games left on the Thief River Falls schedule, the Prowlers will be underdogs in 10 of them. Only in games Jan. 27 vs. Mahnomen and Feb. 11 vs. Middle River will they be close to being favored to win.

They face a tough assignment Friday at Crookston, then visit Newfolden Tuesday for a rematch with a Marshall County Central team the Prowlers surprised 47-45 for third place honors in the Thief River Falls Christmas Classic. The Nordics will be geared up for that one and will be hard to beat at home.

A six-game homestand follows, featuring East Grand Forks on Fri., Jan. 20; Warren on Tues., Jan. 24; Mahnomen on Fri., Jan. 27; Crookston on Fri., Feb. 3; Fergus Falls on Fri., Feb. 10; and Middle River on Sat., Feb. 11.

Last part of the schedule will include road games at Bemidji, East Grand Forks and Warren, plus a home assignment vs. Park Rapids.

Girls Try To Continue Winning Ways

Lincoln high school girls basketball team, off to a surprising 7-2 start, began a string of three tough games Monday at Bemidji, where the Prowlers lost 66-45 to the Lumberjills, who are expected to challenge for North Sub-Region 8AA title considerations this winter.

Second part of the three-game series will be played Thursday when Crookston visits the Lincoln gym, with the test continuing the following Thursday at East Grand Forks. Both the Green Wave and Pirates are title contenders this year in their new District 31A surroundings after their departure from the Class AA ranks following the 1982-83 school year.

A Mon., Jan. 23, game against Greenbush might provide a brief respite for the Prowlers before they finish the 1983-84 regular season schedule with five more tough assignments — games at Crookston and Fergus Falls, plus home contests against Bemidji, Detroit Lakes and East Grand Forks.

It'll be very difficult for the Prowlers to match their early season success against the kind of competition that awaits them, but they can prove themselves to be a good basketball team Thursday with a strong showing against Crookston.

Trojans Seek Revenge Against Northmen

Only Northland community college conference-counting hockey game this week will be played tonight (Wednesday) when the Northmen tackle rival University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) in Crookston.

If you recall, Northland opened the 1983-84 season with a 5-4 upset win over the defending state champion Trojans, but the Northmen are now in the midst of a four-game losing streak, while UMC has been heading in the other direction.

Rainy River swept Northland 10-5 and 10-5 over the weekend, while at the same time UMC beat Mesabi twice, 6-2 and 12-5. Jeff Strandell of the Trojans scored four goals in both of those games for the Trojans, with Kary Strandell adding a hat-trick to the family scoring figures in Saturday's rout.

Looking ahead to tonight's meeting, UMC coach Jim Clauson told Lori Mateer of the Crookston Times, "The guys have something to prove to Northland. "We didn't play well when we lost to them there, and we have a score to settle."

Rainy River coach Terry Thompson, after the weekend sweep over Northland here, figures his Voyaguers can challenge front-running Hibbing for Minnesota Community College Conference (MCC-C) honors this winter. UMC and Rainy River should have an interesting series this weekend in International Falls. Thompson said he wasn't very impressed by Rochester this winter, an aggressive team that Rainy River beat 4-3 and 7-4 earlier.

THIEF RIVER FALLS defenseman Brian Johnston cut toward the net with the puck ahead of Crookston defender Mike Madigan in the third period of Tuesday's Section 8 high school hockey game played in the sports arena. Crookston goalie Derek Bray came out to meet the play, however, to turn aside the scoring opportunity. The Prowlers beat the Pirates 6-3.

Lincoln Girls Shoot Poorly In 66-45 Loss To Bemidji

Poor shooting, both from the field and from the free throw line, cost Thief River Falls dearly Monday as the Prowlers lost a 66-45 girls high school basketball game at Bemidji.

It was only the third loss in ten games for the Prowlers, who will be back in action Thursday when they host area rival Crookston. Defending North Sub-Region 8AA champion Bemidji is 5-2 for the year.

Thief River Falls shot just 21 per cent from the field in the first half (7-for-34) to fall behind 28-14 at intermission. Bemidji opened up a 50-24 third quarter cushion before the Thief River Falls offense finally got untracked in the final quarter.

For the second straight game the Prowlers had a terrible night at the free throw line, going 3-for-16 (19 per cent) against the Lumberjills after an even-poorer 1-for-15 showing ain a 49-24 Saturday night win over Red Lake Falls. That left Thief River Falls 4-for-31 at the line (13 per cent) in those two games.

It was the combination of the low field goal and free throw percentages, plus a 58-38 Bemidji rebound advantage that added up to a 21-point loss, noted Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer.

"We really had some tough luck on our shots," he explained. "We had some real good shots — open shots. We weren't forcing it at all. But they just wouldn't drop for us."

"But those are correctable mistakes," he added. "I really don't feel too bad about the loss. We knew Bemidji was going to be tough to beat. We looked at it as a learning experience. I really don't think we were beat all that bad. If some of those shots would have dropped in for us we would have been all right."

Michelle Olson continued her double figure scoring pace for the Prowlers as the junior guard-forward tossed in 21 points. Sophomore center Michelle Puetz added 10. Niki Suman and Pam Schlee had 16 and 11 points, respectively, for the winners.

Thief River Falls' shooting did make a dramatic second half improvement as the Prowlers hit 14 of 27 shots after intermission (52 per cent), but they still wound up only 21-for-61 for the game (34 per cent). Bemidji was 28-for-71 (39 per cent) and 10-for-17 at the line (59 per cent). The Prowlers topped the turnover figures 15-10.

Girls Basketball . . .

Nordics Beat Roseau 42-17

Marshall County Central girls high school basketball team improved its record to 6-2 Monday at the expense of Roseau, 42-17.

Both Marshall County Central losses this winter have come at the hands of Thief River Falls. The wins have come mostly against a collection of teams who are struggling, so head coach Tom Mjelde is anxiously awaiting the Nordics' upcoming schedule against strong competition which includes a Thursday trip to Stephen, a Monday visit to Warren, and a Thurs., Jan. 19 drive to Middle River.

"We're going to find out just how good a team we are," he noted. "This one (vs Roseau) was really ragged. There were an awful lot of fouls."

It wasn't an uncommon margin of defeat for the Rams, who trailed at the quarter stops 5-2, 17-5 and 27-12.

Jodi Nelson and Nancy Nelson scored 12 and 10 points, respectively, for the Nordics. Nobody had more than five points for the Rams, who got just five field goals out of the 12 players they used.

Marshall County Central shot 28 per cent from the field (17-for-59) and only 34 per cent from the free throw line (8-for-23). Roseau shot just 17 per cent from the field (5-for-29) and 28 per cent at the line (7-for-25). The Nordics had a 29-15 rebound edge and the Rams topped the turnover charts 29-25.

Grygla . . . . . . . . . . . . 44

Second-highest offensive night of the season still wasn't enough for Grygla Monday as the Eagles lost a 51-44 North Border Conference game to visiting Warroad.

Struggling offensively throughout the season, Grygla managed to lead 11-8 at the end of the first quarter and trailed just 25-24 at halftime. Warroad had a 37-33 third quarter lead. The Eagles still tailed by just three points with two minutes left, but then lost the ball on turnovers on four successive possessions.

"We didn't play that bad," mentioned Grygla coach Mike Gast, whose team is 2-7. "I guess we played well enough to lose."

Kathy Foss was once again the Eagles' leading scorer, getting 13 points. Robin Marvin scored 23 for Warroad, getting nearly half of those at the free throw line where she was 11-for-13.

"We played her pretty tough on defense," explained Gast, "but she went to the line too often. She's an excellent ball player; a really heady ball player."

Grygla shot 29 per cent from the field (18-for-62) and 44 per cent at the free throw line (8-for-18). Warroad shot 35 per cent from the field (19-for-54) and 54 per cent at the line (13-for-24).

Next outing for Grygla will be Thursday at Badger. The Eagles host Goodridge Monday.

Prowlers Notch Section 8 Victory Over Pirates, 6-3

Thief River Falls' climb back up the Section 8 ladder advanced another step Tuesday when the Prowlers doubled Crookston 6-3 in high school hockey action at the sports arena.

Winless in sectional play and sharing the cellar in the standings with the likes of non-hockey powers Crosby-Ironton and East Grand Forks Sacred Heart as late as last week, Thief River Falls now owns back-to-back Section 8 wins over Lake of the Woods (5-3 Saturday) and Crookston while improving the Prowlers' overall record to 4-5. They'll try to tack another win onto that Saturday at Moorhead. Crookston, meanwhile, lost for the third straight game after six straight season-opening wins.

Tim Bottem and Ryan Bakke scored two goals each for the Prowlers last night, with Steve Wiskow and Bob Huot each getting one. Mark Lyczewski had a hand in all three Crookston scores with two goals and an assist.

It was a 1-1 hockey game after one period, with Thief River Falls assuming a 3-2 second period lead before taking charge in the final 15 minutes.

"We're pretty happy with the overall performance," said Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand, who was more impressed with the Prowlers' defensive work than with their six-goal production. "We played very well defensively again — something I think we've been doing a good job of all year. Our forwards are doing a good job helping out our defensemen."

Injury-plagued Crookston, after losing top scorer Monte French in the opening moments of play to a broken leg in a Thursday loss at East Grand Forks, lost another top performer in the first minute of Tuesday's game when Pat Madigan went down with an apparent knee injury after a center-ice check from Thief River Falls defenseman Jim Geatz, who was called for a tipping penalty on the play.

Crookston got a game-opening power play goal out of it when Lyczewski finished off a nice passing play at 1:53, taking a pass from the point from Mike Hastings near the side of the net and popping the puck quickly by Thief River Falls goalie Steve Solheim.

It wasn't until 9:42 that the Prowlers tied it when Bottem put a rebound into an open net after netminder Derek Bray stopped a slap shot from the point by defenseman Bill Desrocher.

Thief River Falls' third line gave the Prowlers a 2-1 second period lead when Joe Blankenfeld dug the puck out of the corner, Bob Breiland took the shot, and Huot scored on the rebound at 8:52.

Just 31 seconds later it was tied again, 2-2, as the Prowlers coughed up the puck in front of their own net and Lyczewski quickly converted the freebie at 9:23.

First of two Thief River Falls power play goals came just 69 seconds later to put the Prowlers ahead for good as they moved the puck around nicely and Wiskow golfed in a rebound on Bottem's shot from the point at 10:32.

Bottem gave Thief River Falls a 4-2 edge with a hard slap shot from the face-off circle to the right of Bray that sailed quickly over the goalie's glove hand at 1:22 of the third period.

Rick Dahle picked up a loose puck in front, worked his way in close and had easy pickings at 5:09 to narrow the gap to 4-3, but two game-ending goals by Bakke wrapped it up.

He scored on a nice set-up from the left wing to the middle at 8:02 and scored on a tough-angle rebound to Bray's left on a power play just 57 seconds later.

Hockey JV Wins By 3-2 Margin

John Tranby scored at 10:33 of the third period to break the tie as Thief River Falls edged Crookston 3-2 in a penalty-filled junior varsity high school hockey game Tuesday.

Dave Johnson and Dan Iverson scored earlier goals for the winners, who skated to a 1-1 first period tie with the visitors before taking a 2-1 second period lead.

There were 15 penalties called in the game, 10 against Crookston.

Thief River Falls is 4-4 for the year.

Thief River Falls Eagles Pee-Wee A team, coached by Jim Thompson and Tim Engelstad, won consolation honors at the Bemidji invitational tournament over the weekend.

In game one, Rick Looker scored the first two goals of the contest, but International Falls scored the next three and went on to a 3-2 victory. In game two, Corey Poole's second goal of the game gave Thief River Falls a 4-3 overtime win vs. Eveleth. Chris Lawrence's strong game in goal, plus Looker's four goals and single tallies by Jeff Novak and David Stengrim gave Thief River Falls a 6-2 win in the consolation game over Assiniboine. Thief River Falls is now 10-4 overall, 6-2 in league play.

VFW Bantam A team, coached by Jeff Tunberg and Rory Anderson, took home the third place trophy from the Fergus Falls invitational tournament.

In game one, Thief River Falls received second period goals from Kent Hamre and Brad Olson, and a third period goal from Steve McGann on the way to a 3-0 shutout victory over Alexandria. Goalie Kraig Anderson needed to make only ten saves for the shutout. Thief River Falls has played Alexandria twice this year, and took 115 shots while scoring only six goals. Thief River Falls lost 5-3 in game two against a fine Roseau squad. Jon Matson and McGann scored goals. Thief River Falls received two goals from Bill Dicken and single tallies from Troy Hanestad and McGann as they beat Columbia Heights 4-3 in the third place game. In 16 games the team has taken 526 shots on goal and scored 55 times. They have allowed 58 goals. The record is 8-8.

A pair of goals by Roger Anderson and a single goal by Jay Opdahl in the third period broke open a close game as the Thief River Falls Pee-Wee B team, coached by Dale Wennberg, defeated East Grand Forks 7-2. In Hallock, Paul Borchert tipped in a Derek Lee shot with 1:24 remaining to give Thief River Falls a 3-2 lead, but Hallock tied it with just two seconds remaining and the two teams played through a scoreless eight-minute overtime. Thief River Falls is 11-2-1 overall, 9-1-1 in league play.

Bantam B team, coached by Scott Bergland and Joel Klosterman, lost to Hallock 5-0. Thief River Falls had over 50 shots on goal, but could not score in a game that was much closer than the score indicates. Thief River Falls is 7-5-1 for the year.

Nordics Beat Skippers 95-58

Marshall County Central offense was in high gear Tuesday as the Nordics rolled over rival Middle River 95-58 in a North Border Conference high school basketball game played on the Skippers' court.

Middle River was within 18-16 at the end of a high-scoring first quarter, but Marshall County Central had a 32-point second quarter blitz that opened up a 50-32 halftime spread. The Nordics' kept it up with a 28-point third quarter as the margin widened to 78-40.

"We played really well," reported Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "We both had a good first quarter, but we just kept it up the whole game. We pushed it down the court and put it in."

Guard Chad Swan led the Nordics' offense with a 28-point night on 14 field goals. Ken Krohn added 15 and Jay Nelson 10 to the winner's total. Center Tom Neumann scored 20 for Middle River, with Kevin McKeever getting 14 and Darrin Peterson 12.

Both sides did remarkably well shooting the ball. Marshall County Central shot 62 per cent from the field (44-for-71), while Middle River shot 59 per cent (24-for-49). The Nordics had less success at the free throw line with a 41 per cent night (7-for-17) while the Skippers shot 56 per cent at the line (10-for-18).

"They shot extremely well," confirmed Middle River coach Eldon Sparby, who was most impressed with Swan. The 5-8 junior had 10 first half field goals — all from the outside.

"Their depth was what really got to us," acknowledged Sparby. "Our offense wasn't bad; we shot well. But they beat us down the court and put up more shots than we did.

Results left Marshall County Central with a 4-3 season record, snapping a three-game losing streak for the Nordics, who lost to Argyle 61-46, Thief River Falls 47-45 and East Grand Forks 67-43 in their last three starts. Middle River, meanwhile, fell to 4-4, having a brief two-game winning streak come to an end that included wins over Mahnomen 54-46 and Hallock 49-44.

Both teams play Friday. Marshall County Central hosts Badger that night and Middle River visits Warroad.

Plummer . . . . . . . . . . . . 46

A four-game Plummer winning streak came to an end Tuesday when the host Cardinals lost a 66-46 Polar Conference decision to Red Lake Falls.

Red Lake Falls' 20-point victory margin included a 28-12 third quarter outburst that decided the issue. The Eagles led at the quarter stops 10-8, 26-21 and 44-33.

Dan Kees scored 17 points to lead a trio of Red Lake Falls double scorers, but game-high scoring honors went to Tim Gagner of the Cardinals with 20 points.

It was a mistake-filled game featuring 64 turnovers — 34 by Red Lake Falls and 30 by Plummer.

"Trouble was, they capitalized on our turnovers and we didn't capitalize on their's," explained Plummer coach Jim Baron. "Their press; our turnovers, really hurt us bad."

Turning point, said Baron, came early in the third quarter when the Cardinals lost the ball on turnovers on eight straight possession during a three-minute span that led to five Red Lake Falls baskets.

Plummer shot 39 per cent from the field (21-for-54) and 63 per cent at the free throw line (4-for-6). Red Lake Falls shot 50 per cent from the field (30-for-60) and 67 per cent at the line (6-for-9). The Cardinals finished with a sizeable, 52-36 rebound advantage.

Now 6-3, Plummer visits Fisher Friday.

Grygla . . . . . . . . . . . . 51

Goodridge broke open a close game in the final minute of play Tuesday as the visiting Huskies defeated rival Grygla 59-51.

Grygla, out-scored 14-4 over the final four minutes of the game, was still within 53-51 with 45 seconds left before free throws by the Huskies' Scott Goven and Ross Parnow locked things up.

"We played real well," explained Grygla coach Vern Johnson. "Our shots just didn't go in at the end."

Goodridge started with a 13-9 first quarter lead and had a 31-21 halftime cushion before Grygla went ahead 40-39 by out-scoring the Huskies 19-8 in the third quarter.

Groven led all scorers with 19 points, while Parnow had 12 and Tony Wiseth 10 for the winners. Tony McLean led Grygla with 14 points, while Jeff Klein contributed 12 and Wayne Byklum had 11.

Goodridge shot a hot 54 per cent from the field for the game (22-for-41), with Grygla hitting at a 46 per cent clip (21-for-46). But while Goodridge dropped in just one more field goal than Grygla, the Huskies were a productive 15-for-27 from the free throw line (56 per cent) where the Eagles were a shaky 9-for-20 (45 per cent).

"The free throw line came back to haunt us," pointed out Johnson.

Goodridge improved its record to 4-4 with the win. The Huskies host Oslo Friday. Grygla fell to 2-6 with the loss. The Eagles will wait until Tuesday to play at Warroad.

Deer Feeding

Minnesota DNR Commissioner Joseph Alexander recently declared a "Pheasant Emergency" and requested help from the public to feed starving birds. Now, Roger Holmes, Chief of the DNR Section of Wildlife, says there is also concern that Minnesota's deer herd may face starvation later this winter because of the snow depths and unprecedented cold weather.

"Wildlife field personnel report that most deer are in good condition at this time," said Holmes, "but if bad weather continues, there will be widespread loss of fawns. Some adults will also starve and there will be reduced fawn production by the survivors."

Officials have prepared an emergency feeding plan in the event conditions indicate that losses of adult does are likely to take place. Weather conditions that affect deer are being minotored at 16 stations across the deer range by the "Winter Severity Index SYSTEM. Deer wintering areas are also being checked by DNR field personnel to observe the condition of the herd.

"If emergency feeding becomes necessary", said Holmes, "it should be emphasized that such feeding can help only a relatively small percentage of the total herd and that it is a costly undertaking."

He said that the food requirements of deer are somehwat reduced in mid-winter because their metabolic level declines beginning in early December. This continues until early March, when longer days trigger a rapid increase in metabolism and therefore a need for high quality food.

"That is when a feeding program may become essential," he said.

"If feeding becomes necessary, all available emergency deer funds in the wildlife section budget will be used. Help would also be solicited from sportsmen's clubs, hunters, snowmobilers and others to provide and distribute foods and make trails."

It was hoped that funds remaining from the one dollar increase in the 1983 deer hunting license for computerizing the anterless permit drawing could be used to build a deer emergency feeding fund. But the cost of carrying out the drawing the past two years plus buying the computer program took nearly all of the money appropriated from the one dollar license increase.

"So we have only about $30,000 left from this source for a deer emergency," Holmes said. "Therefore, we will have to use money intended for deer habitat improvement programs and other wildlife projects if we can't raise it any other way."

DNR big game specialists recommend that people who wish to feed deer on their own wait until late winter before starting because of the cost and effort required. However, they said those people who have already started feeding must continue to do so because the deer are now dependent upon that food supply.

Only recommended feeds are deer pellets, horse or rabbit pellets of 12 percent protein or more, fresh cob corn or fresh legume hay. Grass hay is not recommended.

Deer pellets are the best in the forested areas and corn and good alfalfa in farm areas, said Holmes.

World Championship Snowmobile Race At Eagle River Is Jan. 20-22

Twenty-first running of the World's Championship snowmobile race in Eagle River, Wis. January 20-22, is shaping up to be the most prestigious of all spring races in the country, with racers coming from a dozen states and Canada for a shot at part of the $50,000 purse, report race officials.

But the money and prizes don't stop there. There will again be stock and super stock racing, formula events with the big machines, and four classes of SnoCross on the curving, hilly course within the high banked oval, according to the Eagle River Lions club, the race sponsor.

This will be the second weekend of the Northwoods Snowmobile Festival USA, which begins in Rhinelander January 13, with the gala music festival featuring Brenda Lee and Roy Clark, and ending in Minocqua January 28 with the radar speed run.

Prize money, racing competition and unbeatable excitement created at the World's Championship race is what will keep hundreds of drivers and thousands of fans coming to the Northwoods in January. Snowmobile enthusiasts attending the many festivities of the Northwoods Snowmobile Festival USA will push the attendance even higher.

Capping the three days of racing will be the Sunday's world title race at 3 p.m., with the top 10 drivers out of the 36 who raced Saturday in the elimination heats, take to the starting line for 25 grueling laps to claim the most coveted and heralded snowmobile race in the country.

One big question this year will be whether defending champion and two time winner, Brad Hulings can be the first driver to take the world's title three times. Driving a twin track Ski-Doo for the Bombardier factory team along with Hulings will be Gary Vessaire of Ontario, who has qualified for the top 10 at least once in the past five years.

In addition to the eliminations and 25-lap feature face, between 250 and 300 racers will compete in dozens of Master racing classes and SnoCross. Three full days of racing.

TRF Backcourt Club Meeting Held Saturday

Thief River Falls Backcourt Club held its regular monthly meeting Saturday at the Rex Cafe.

Lincoln high school head coach Tom Hunt reported that the Christmas Classic tournament was a huge success, and is already being planned again for next year.

It was decided to purchase three junior basketballs to be used as game balls in the elementary programs. A discussion was held on the advantages and disadvantages of using a junior versus standard-size basketballs and also the advantages and disadvantages of using an 8 or 9-foot basket height for the fourth and fifth grade program. It was decided to continue using junior-size basketballs and 8-foot baskets.

Backcourt Club will be scheduling some short games between the high school varsity and junior varsity games, and at halftime of the varsity contests for both boys and girls, a feature that was considered a hugh success last year.

In March, the Backcourt Club will be advertising for backboards and hoops that people may wish to donate to the club, whose members will take them down, or just pick them up if they are already down. They will then be distributed to program participants who might not be able to afford the items. Further details will be announced at a later date.

Backcourt Club is sponsoring the sale of jackets with a picture of a basketball and the words, "Thief River Falls Basketball" on the back. The navy blue and gold jackets will be priced at about $30. For additional information contact Charlotte Bjorgaard at 681-5536 after 6 p.m.

Fourth and fifth grade girls games will be held every Wednesday after school and boys games will be held on Saturdays. First game for the girls will be Jan. 18, and the first games for the boys will be Jan. 21.

Girls JV Is 40-32 Winner Over Bemidji

Three Thief River Falls scorers hit double figures Monday as the Lincoln high school girls junior varsity basketball team defeated Bemidji 40-32.

Brenda Russell scored 15 points for the winners, while Shawn Hume had 11 and Patty Kinsman 10.

Thief River Falls is 6-2 for the year.

Bemidji was a 56-20 winner in freshman action, dropping Thief River Falls to 0-2 for the year.

Both the Thief River Falls freshmen and junior varsity teams will be in action Thursday prior to the Prowlers' varsity start against Crookston. Freshmen play at 6 p.m. at the city auditorium, with the junior varsity starting at 6 p.m. in the Lincoln gym.

LHS Freshmen Lose To Valley Of Grand Forks

Thief River Falls had trouble trying to break a zone defense because of a poor shooting performance Tuesday in a 54-39 freshman basketball loss at Valley junior high of Grand Forks.

Valley had quarter leads of 10-6, 24-18 and 38-29.

Jared Kalsness scored 10 points for Thief River Falls. Butch Wegener of Valley took game-high scoring honors with 22 points.

Thief River Falls, 2-4, will host Schroeder junior high of Grand Forks Thursday at 4:15 p.m. in the city auditorium.

Attendance Hit Record High For MSHSL Playoffs

An all-time record-setting attendance figure of 122,938 was established for the state tournament events conducted by the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) during the 1983 fall sports season, it was announced by league officials. The old record attendance total of 119,174, set in 1982.

Record figures were recorded as a result of the record-breaking state football playoff attendance total of 93,274, up more than 5,000 from last year's previous record high.

While football showed the greatest increase, only girls swimming and diving among the other sports had more spectators on hand, with attendance of 2,122, 20 more than the previous year.

State tournament attendance figures this fall included: boys soccer — 5,669, down 232 from the 1982 figure of 5,901; girls soccer — 2,503, down 378 from 1982's 2,881; football — 93,272, up 5,087 from 1982's 88,187; volleyball — 18,719, down 154 from 1982's 18,873; boys gymnastics — 651, down 629 from 1982's 1,230; girls swimming and diving — 2,122, up 20 from 1982's 2,102.

State team champions were named in seven girls and boys sports this fall, with Hopkins winning two titles — in boys soccer and girls cross country.

State winners are: girls tennis — Edina, AA; St. Paul Academy, A; boys cross country — Alexander Ramsey-Frank B Kellogg, AA; Staples, A; girls cross country 8 Hopkins, AA; Redwood Falls-Morton, A; boys soccer — Hopkins; girls soccer — Irondale; volleyball — Robbinsdale Armstrong, AA; St. Michael-Albertville, A; girls swimming and diving — Burnsville; boys gymnastics — Bloomington Jefferson; football — Coon Rapids, AA; Hutchinson, A; Jordan, B; Southland-Adams, C; Silver Lake, Nine-Man.

What do wild birds like to eat?

Those who enjoy feeding wild birds will find help in choosing birds' favorite foods in "The National Wildlife Federation's booklet, "Wild Bird Feeding Preferences."

This eight-page booklet rates 16 varieties of seeds according to preference by 13 common birds. U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Urban Research Program conducted the research for the publication, written by Dr. Alred Geis and Donald Hyde, Jr.

Booklet's cover drawing, by noted wildlife illustrator Bob Hines, shows these 13 birds in their normal feeding positions, with the American goldfinch on an elevated feeder and the evening grosbeak at a platform feeder.

For the bird lover who wishes to feed birds selectively, this booklet lists the preferred foods of over two dozen birds, including the chickadee, scrub jay and song sparrow. Colorful cardinal, for example, prefers sunflower seeds of all kinds, while the blue jay likes peanut kernels, and goldfinches are attracted to hulled sunflower seeds.

"Wild Bird Feeding Preferences" is available in single copies or in bulk, at the following prices: single copy $1; 2-25 copies, 60 cents a copy; 26-50 copies, 45 cents a copy; 51-99 copies, 35 cents a copy; and more than 1,000 copies, 25 cents a copy. Write to: Wild Bird Feeding Preferences, Dept. 157, National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20036.

DNR Plans Projects For 2 State Parks

Development projects totaling more than $2 million will begin this summer at two state parks in Northeastern Minnesota, the Department of Natural Resouurces reports.

Tettegouche State Park construction will include trails, campgrounds, bridges and various buildings, including a combination highway rest area, DNR information center, and park entrance building.

Most of the park will, however, remain roadless and in a primitive state with the development confined to lands adjacent to Highway 61.

Officials noted that the acquisition of Tettegouche links the area with Baptism River State Park and the entire 4,613 acre area is now referred to as Tettegouche State Park.

At Split Rock Lighthouse State Park, the DNR plans to complete the construction of the park by developing a picnic area, trail-interpretative center and a unique "cart-in" campground. All of the development will be overlooking Lake Superior.

Development work will be funded through the Legislative Commission on Minnesota Resources and state bonds.

Turkey Decline

An $8,000 research grant has been awarded to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources by the National Wild Turkey Federation, it was announced recently.

The grant, together with donations from the Minnesota Wild Turkey Federation, will be used for a study to determine the reasons for the recent decline in the turkey population in the Whitewater wildlife management area.

"We will use the funds to study the productivity, genetics, mortality and predation of the Whitewater birds," said John Ludwig, DNR wildlife research biologist, Madelia.

National Wild Turkey Federation is a private non-profit organization dedicated to preservation, enhancement and management of the wild turkey. During 1983, they provided $21,700 in grants nationwide to various biologists for research on wild turkeys.

Federal Funds

Minnesota is receiving more than $2,600,000 in federal aid funds to assist in financing fish and wildlife restoration projects, it was reported recently.

Apportionment is the first of two such allocations that are made to the states each year under the Pittman Robertson and Dingell-Johnson acts. Second installment will be made after the 1983 fiscal year tax receipts are tallied by the Treasury Department.

Funds are derived from federal excise taxes on hunting and fishing equipment, including firearms and ammunition.

In the most recent apportionment, Minnesota will receive $1,609,845 for wildlife projects and $1,013,306 for fisheries work.

Distribution of the funds is based on a formula which takes into account the number of hunting and fishing license holders and total area of the state.

Altogether, the 50 states and U.S. possessions received payments totalling $82.6 million from the most recently announced distribution.

Minnesota DNR officials said that under the two acts, states are required to expend their own funds on federally approved projects and are then reimbursed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for up to 75 per cent of the costs.

All-Conference Soccer Player Has Local Ties

Robert M. Zimmerman, son of Glenda Gausen, grandson of Esther Gausen and the late Andreas (Andy) Gausen and great grandson of Mabel Ihle of Thief River Falls, has been named to the 1983 All-Mid-West college soccer team by the National Soccer Coaches of America.

Zimmerman was ranked 10th in scoring in the nation and was named to the all-conference first team at left wing. He is a sophomore at the School of Mines in Golden, Colorado, majoring in chemical engineering.

A 1981 graduate of Northglenn, Colorado high school, Zimmerman was the Valedictorian of his class of 836 students, lettered in soccer and wrestling three years and reached state finals in both sports in his senior year. As co-captain of the soccer team he led the team in scoring and helped capture second place in the Colorado high school soccer tournament.

Zimmerman attends the School of Mines on an academic scholarship, one of three given out by the school to the highest scoring finalists in their annual testing program.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear daughter, Debra Sjaaheim, who passed away one year ago, Jan. 12, 1983:

She left a beautiful memory,
And a sorrow too great to be told;
But to us who have loved her and lost her,
Her memory will never grow old.
Always a silent heartache,
Many a silent tear;
But always a beautiful memory,
Of one we loved so dear.
God gave us strength to bear it,
And courage to take the blow;
But what it meant to lose her,
No one will ever know.

So very sadly missed by her Mom and Dad. 1t4c

In Memoriam

In sad but loving memory of our dear sister and aunt, Debra Sjaaheim, who passed away one year ago, Jan. 12, 1983:

When I am sad and lonely,
And everything goes wrong;

"Cheer-up and carry on."
Each time I see your photo,
You seem to smile and say,
"Don't cry, I'm only sleeping,
We'll meet again some day."

So sadly missed by her sisters, niece and nephew. 1t4c

State Tests Urea For Ice Removal

Tests to determine the effectiveness and environmental effects of urea, an agricultural chemical, as an alternative to salt for highway de-icing will be conducted this winter by the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT), the department announced.

The testing is part of Mn-DOT's effort to find a de-icing chemical that is both effective and less corrosive than salt (sodium chloride), the most commonly used de-icer in Minnesota, said Richard P. Braun, commissioner of transportation.

Tests will be conducted at three locations and will use about 300 tons of urea.

Experiments will be run on a 12-mile section of Interstate-35 between North Branch and Wyoming, on truck highway (TH) 95 between St. Cloud and Princeton, and on bridge decks in the Duluth metropolitan area. Each experiment will use different application methods to enable Mn-DOT to learn as much as possible about urea's performance.

Because urea is most effective for melting snow and ice at higher temperatures than sodium chloride — 11 degrees Fahrenheit vs. minus six degrees Fahrenheit — it will be used only when temperatures are more moderate, Braun said. If it appears that the safety of the traveling public is in question when urea is used during very cold weather Mn-DOT maintenance forces will switch to salt on the test areas.

Adjacent sections of highway or other bridge decks will serve as control sections for the tests. They will be treated with the standard sand and salt mixture to enable comparison with the sections or bridge decks treated with urea.

I-35 test will use a mixture of sand and urea, similar to the standard sand and salt mix used. About 125 tons of urea will be used. Test will be conducted on the southbound lanes; the northbound lanes will be used as a control section.

Testing on TH 95 will employ about 125 tons of straight urea. TH 95 from Princetone to Cambridge will serve as the control section.

Straight urea also will be used on the bridge decks in Duluth. The test will vary from others in that urea will be used to prevent icing on the decks rather than for snow and ice removal. About 50 tons of urea will be used. Other bridge decks in the area will serve as control sections.

Braun said the tests will determine urea's effectiveness by comparing its snow and ice melting capabilities with that of sand and salt under a variety of road and weather conditions.

In addition, the urea application will be evaluated for its environmental impact on roadside vegetation, local ground water and soil nitrogen levels.

Cost of using urea, he said, will be significantly higher than for salt. Average price for salt is about $28 a ton; urea costs about $300 a ton.

"If urea proves effective," Braun said, "it could provide one way to reduce the costs associated with salt's corrosive effects on highways, bridge decks and vehicles."

He emphasized the urea tests are conducted within the framework of Mn-DOT's continuing efforts to reduce the amount of de-icing chemicals used on highways.

Evaluation of the tests will be made by Mn-DOT's Office of research and development. Braun said a determination will be made following the evaluation on the future use of urea as a de-icer.

For further information call Curt Christie, Mn-DOT State Maintenance Engineer (612) 296-0763 or Paul Diethelm, Mn-DOT Director of Research and Development (612) 296-3066.

FACTS & FIGURES

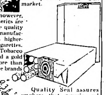
Before the year end, smokers will light up more than 17 billion generic and store brand cigarettes. In fact, generics rank among the top 15 sellers nationwide and account for more than three percent of the U.S. market.



More important, however, is the fact that generics are made with the same quality ingredients and manufacturing processes as higher-priced, branded cigarettes. Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company has placed a gold Quality Seal on more than 150 generic and store brands to say so.

$150 MILLION
$100 A YR. $AVING$

Quality Seal assures smokers that generic and store brand cigarettes are equal in quality to more expensive branded cigarettes. The average smoker can save $100.00 a year by buying generics. It's estimated that buyers of generic and store brands will save about $150 million this year compared to the cost of branded cigarettes.

Metro Jobless Rate Was 5.4% In November

Minneapolis-St. Paul metropolitan area's unemployment rate in November was 5.4 per cent, unchanged from the October rate and down 1.3 percentage points from the November 1982 rate of 6.7 per cent, Commissioner Barbara Beerhalter of the Minnesota department of economic security reported.

"While the November unemployment rate remained at 5.4 per cent, both the labor force and total employment showed greater than average increases, Beerhalter said. Total employment increased by .5 per cent which compares to an average October to November gain of .2 per cent.

Comparable national unemployment rate for November was 8.1 per cent, and statewide unemployment rate in November was 6.8 per cent.

According to department analyst Susan Hamper, industry sectors which showed slightly better than average employment increases in November were finance, insurance and real estate (.5 per cent increase to a total employment of 73,900); services (.4 per cent increase to a total employment of 257,900); and government (2.3 per cent increase to a total employment of 156,600).

Continuing the trend of the past several months, labor force conditions showed marked improvement over a year ago.

Compared with November a year ago, the size of the Twin Cities metropolitan area civilian labor force increased by 4.2 per cent; the number of employed persons increased by 5.6 per cent; and the number of unemployed workers decreased by 16.3 per cent.

Metropolitan area labor force in November was 1,216,500, up 5,800 from October and up 48,600 from November of last year. Number of persons employed in November was 1,150,600, up 5,400 from October and up 61,400 from November a year ago.

Number of unemployed persons in the Twin Cities area in November was 65,900, up 400 from October and down 12,800 from November a year ago.

Unemployment rates pertain to the entire labor force and are not used to determine whether unemployment insurance benefit payments will be extended beyond the usual 26-week maximum. The unemployment rate among persons covered by unemployment insurance is used to determine whether the benefit payments will be extended.

Hog Inventory In State Rises Nine Per Cent

Minnesota hog producers reported an inventory of 4,270,000 hogs and pigs on December 1, up nine per cent from a year earlier but one per cent below the September 1983 inventory, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. The December 1 total was made up of 580,000 breedings hogs (up five per cent) and 3,690,000, market hogs (up 10 per cent).

The increase in market hogs was most pronounced in the heavier weight groups. The 180 pound-and-over group posted a sharp 26 per cent gain from last year, while the 120-179 pound group rose 12 per cent. Market hogs in the under 60 pound weight group were seven per cent greater while the 60-119 pound group registered six per cent above last year.

Minnesota's September-November 1983 pig crop totaled 1,824,000 head, eight per cent larger than a year ago and three per cent above the June-August pig crop. The 240,000 sows that farrowed averaged 7.60 pigs per litter compared with 7.50 a year earlier.

Producers intend to farrow 215,000 sows during December 1983-February 1984. This would be four per cent below the number farrowed a year earlier. Meanwile, their March-May 1984 farrowing intentions call for a 15 per cent drop — from 275,000 to 235,000.

Inventory of all hogs and pigs on December 1, in the 10 states conducting quarterly hog surveys is estimated at 43.4 million head, two per cent above last December 1, but six per cent below December 1, 1981.

Breeding inventory, at 5.6 million head, was one per cent below a year ago, and down seven per cent from two years earlier. Market hog inventory, at 37.8 million head, was three per cent above last year, but five per cent lower than in 1981.

The September-November 1983 pig crop was 17.6 million head, just fractionally above last year but one per cent below two years ago. There were 2.4 million sows that farrowed during September-November, essentially unchanged from a year ago, but two per cent below the same period two years earlier.

Sows farrowing averaged 7.43 pigs per litter compared with 7.43 last year and 7.38 two years ago.

Hog producers in the 10 quarterly states intend to farrow 2.03 million sows during December 1983-February 1984. This is three per cent less than during the comparable period last year but six per cent more than two years ago.

Farrowing intentions for the 1984 March-May quarter are 2.54 million head, eight per cent below the same period a year ago but 16 per cent more than two years earlier.

You're never met anyone quite like Joni
STARRING JONI EARECKSON AS HERSELF
A WORLD WIDE PICTURES RELEASE G
JAMES F. COLLIER

JONI is an inspirational true story of faith and courage. Devastated by a diving accident at the age of seventeen, she emerges from that tragedy as a quadriplegic, unable to do anything for herself. As a result, she learned a great lesson of dependence upon God. JONI is sure to touch the lives of all who suffer brokenness — of body, of spirit, of faith, of hope, of family relationships.

Modern Day Woman

Today's modern woman may head a corporation, pilot a jet or ride the rapids of the powerful Colorado River. You can see it in her face . . . the same pride . . . that same brave spirit that kept the early pioneer woman going.

Continually she looks for the new, the exciting. Sometimes she is disappointed and now, just like then, she will turn to that same pillar of strength. The source of power that is available to us all.

It is the spirit of God, passed on to us by the pioneers of the Christian faith, centered in love and His Holy Word. Discover it anew this week in worship.

LEARNING DISABILITIES: A DIFFERENT UNDERSTANDING . . .

This program is a television presentation sponsored by Community Education. A learning disability can be thought of as a hidden handicap. Many children who experience this problem appear perfectly normal until the school attempts to teach them to read. For them, the process of learning the written word is an extremely difficult, laborious, and frustrating process.

These programs broadcast over KTRF Cable Channel 3 deal with many aspects of learning disabilities. Topics and dates are as follows:

Monday, May 7 — 8:30 P.M. — "What Do I Do With a Kid Like That?" — Recreates 3 days in the life of a 15-year old with reading disabilities.
9:00 P.M. — "The Invisible Handicap" — Theories, practices and research on learning disabilities are discussed.

9:00 P.M. — "A Question of Codes" — Recognizing children with learning disabilities.
Monday, May 21 — 8:30 P.M. — "I Was a Kid Who Couldn't and Now I Can" — Developing programs for children with learning disabilities.

Make These New Year's Nutrition Resolutions

Try using healthful and nutritious fruits, such as the banana, in your meals this coming year.

If eating better for better health is among your New Year's Resolutions, here are some tips to help you on your way:

- Breakfast is considered the most important meal of the day by many health-care professionals—so don't skip it. Include fresh fruits rich in vitamins, and breads that supply carbohydrates for energy. Milk, eggs or meat at breakfast mean protein.
- Start adding low calorie, healthful ingredients to meals and desserts. Fresh fruits, such as the banana, are tasty and nutritious. There are only about 100 calories in an average size banana, and they're 99.8 percent fat free. Banana calories are not empty—they contribute many essential nutrients on a weight conscious regimen, including Vitamin A, thiamine, niacin, riboflavin, Vitamin $B_6$ and Vitamin C. They're also low in sodium and high in potassium.

Bananas are easy to eat, easy to use in every meal of the day and all the snacks in between. Here's just one of the nutritious and delicious treats you can whip up for a holiday treat: Cranberry Banana Bread, with its seasonal bright red color and added fiber, brings a healthful plus to good cheer in the New Year.

Why King Holiday?

Following editorial was written by publisher James Roberts of the Andrews County News in Andrews, Texas:

We've got nothing against Martin Luther King — but this country needs another paid national holiday like Congress needs the herpes.

In 204 years, this nation has singled out only one American to honor with a national holiday — George Washington.

Now, we've got the third Monday in January, beginning in 1986, as a paid national holiday for Martin Luther King. Only two Americans, King and Washington, are thus honored.

One other individual, a non-American, has a national holiday in his honor — Christopher Columbus.

So in 207 years of history, only three individuals have been singled out for honor with a national holiday — Washington, Columbus, and now King.

Overtime pay for the new national holiday has been estimated at $18 million — that's just for key federal employees. And in the day off for all federal workers and the still-to-come granting of Monday holiday to state, county and city employees and the holiday will cost the taxpayers of this country in the neighborhood of $300 million.

The new holiday comes at a time when Congress, for all of its efforts, can't seem to whittle the red ink below $200 billion.

For a rag-tag colonial assortment of misfits to move in the relatively short span of 200 years to the number one power in the world took some doing. . . and somewhere along the road, we must have had key people doing the right things. . . yet we've singled out only Washington, Columbus and King with national holidays.

The addition of the new Monday holiday honoring the birth date of King brings to ten the number of paid federal holidays.

Thomas Jefferson drafted the Constitution under which we all live — but he has no holiday to honor his memory.

Benjamin Franklin, among many other honors, sold that Constitution to the other colonial delegates and to the remaining world — but we have no holiday in his honor.

Abraham Lincoln bit the bullet and freed the slaves and triggered the bloodiest war this nation ever fought — but we have no holiday in his honor.

Alexander Graham Bell, Thomas A. Edison, and Henry Ford fathered three major industries in this country that have employed more people of more races than anywhere on earth — yet we have no holiday to commemorate their memory.

George Washington Carver, a self-educated black man whose parents were slaves, became an agriculture chemist that ultimately through his work freed the South from one-crop economy and brought about diversification through hybrids — yet we have no holiday honoring him.

Booker T. Washington proved that through education, the blacks could rise and contribute to the culture and the economy of the nation — yet we have no holiday honoring him.

Samuel Gompers fathered the labor movement in this country — and remains virtually unknown with no national holiday in his name.

George C. Marshall, chief strategist of the Allied Forces in World War II and author of the Marshall Plan that virtually saved Western Europe, has no national holiday.

Neither does Stonewall Jackson, Robert E. Lee, Dwight Eisenhower, or Douglas MacArthur.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt couldn't do it. Harry Truman couldn't do it. Eisenhower couldn't do it. John F. Kennedy couldn't do it. But Lyndon Baines Johnson passed through Congress the first meaningful Civil Rights legislation enacted since the Civil War — but we have no national holiday for Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy or Johnson.

Jackie Robinson broke the color barrier for professional athletes as a black player for the Brooklyn Dodgers and became a national hero. He paved the way for today's superb black professional athletes — yet we have no national holiday honoring him.

Susan B. Anthony led the movement for women's right to vote and we tried to honor her with a 50 cent piece which was an utter failure because no free holiday was involved.

Martin Luther King is deserving of national recognition — and his birthday could have been honored in many ways without giving federal employees another Monday holiday.

We realize that national elections are coming up but we didn't realize that Congressmen have such little sense of history.

If the present trend continues, we would imagine that for the federal elections in 1988, we'll have a paid federal holiday proposed for Caesar Chavez and his lettuce workers.

Don't Rush Land Sale

Following editorial is from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

Commissioner Joseph Alexander of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is concerned about what appears to be a campaign mounted by a number of state legislators and special interest groups to sell large tracts of public land in the state.

"Some of these people are philosophically opposed to public land ownership," Alexander says, "and some undoubtedly have other motives."

When state revenues two years ago were short of meeting state spending plans, the push began to sell large parcels of land. The DNR countered by pointing out that money raised from that scheme would fall far short of meeting budget needs and that sales would not solve future problems of revenue shortfalls.

Commissioner Alexander suggests that the "cry to get public lands back on the tax rolls" is received with a certain skepticism, even cynicism, by those familiar with the subject. He explains that, except for lands acquired for state parks, wildlife management areas and other heavily used and intensively managed public lands, much of the lands in state ownership have come from previous private owners through tax forfeiture. Frequently the counties or state end up owning the land for the second or third time.

There are instances where a strong case can be made for returning public land to private ownership. Lands which can not be efficiently and economically managed by the state could be better used, in some cases, by private interests. Regional DNR administrator John Chell at Grand Rapids points out that the state is currently conducting a land suitability study to locate and list lands not economically feasible for the DNR to manage and to see what kind of an exchange might be made.

But efforts to paint the DNR as greedy to obtain new land and determined to hang on to all it owns are not accurate. In truth, the DNR continues to sell, exchange and transfer land to other agencies and to the public. And it is interesting to note that almost a third of the parcels offered for sale by the DNR in recent years have not found buyers.

There are substantial returns from the public land base. More than $1,000,000 a year in rental and royalties is contributed to the Trust Fund and local taxing districts through mineral leasing. About $3,000,000 in timber has been sold annually for the past three years. State land leases, agreements, easements, and utility land and water licenses brought in excess of $1,341,000 for fiscal year 1982-83. Payments in lieu of taxes on public land are substantial. Itasca county received $385,252 from the state last year in lieu of taxes. Total payments to the 87 counties reached $5,531,427.

Public land ownership is a complex and difficult subject. A number of statewide organizations, including the Grand Rapids-based Minnesota Deer Hunters Association, have joined a coalition to Save Public Land.

It is probable that the DNR will need virtually all of its present land and some additional land if the state is to meet its future recreation needs and provide adequate wildlife habitat for use by residents of heavily-populated areas.

It would seem particularly foolish to listen to demands for selling wetlands which would be drained for farming at a time the state is vigorously seeking to expand its ownership of wetlands.

Commissioner Alexander is right when he says that it is not easy to place a price on the benefits of public lands in terms of camping, hiking, birdwatching, hunting, fishing and other recreational uses. The state and counties own approximately five million acres of commercial forest land which contributes about 36 per cent of the land base for the forest industries of the state.

There should be no hasty sell-off of valuable state lands.

Borrowed Nonsense:

There seems to be general agreement that this country was in better shape when it had more whittlers and fewer chiselers.

Middle age is the time when you hear two voices: One asks "Why not?" and the other says "Why bother?"

DID YOU KNOW?

When's the last time you took a good look at your bedding? More and more consumers are coming to realize that there's a strong connection between good bedding and a good night's sleep. Here are a few eye-opening facts about bedding from a recent nationwide survey:

- Older Americans tend to believe that mattresses and foundations last 16 years; 18-34 year olds believe 12 years. Experts say, however, old bedding should be replaced every eight to ten years for ideal quality and comfort.
- Persons over 65 are less likely to buy a queen or king size set, while younger Americans are less likely to purchase top-of-the-line bedding than the older generation. Both are making serious mistakes, say experts at the Better Sleep Council, an educational, non-profit organization that seeks to inform the public about sleep and encourage scientific research in the field. Ample space is important for freedom of motion while you sleep, while quality of the mattress and foundation determine their support characteristics and how long they can be expected to provide comfort and support at their maximum level.
- 68 percent of the respondents indicated that a good quality mattress provides good support—which can prevent backaches.
- A greater percentage of men sleep on king or queen size beds—58 percent—than on a full/double or twin/single—39 percent. Americans living in the West also prefer large size beds.
- For a pamphlet with tips on how to get a good night's sleep, send for the Better Sleep Council's "The Guide to Better Sleep," Dept. NA, P.O. Box 275, Burtonsville, MD 20860. Include 50¢ to cover postage and handling.

Goodridge History Group Honors Jesse Andersons

THIS SILVER SERVICE has seen a good deal of service on loan to families in the community for special events. Mrs. Jesse (Theodora) Anderson, selected for the first community service award of the Goodridge area historical society, polishes one of the pieces of the serving set. Mrs. Anderson was on the first board of directors of the historical society when it was formed in 1977. She moved to Star township in eastern Pennington county with her family from the Thief River Falls area in 1915.

Times Editor

Goodridge area historical society has selected Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Anderson of rural Goodridge as recipients of its community service award. The award is made in recognition of their service to the community over the years and their participation in community organizations, events and activities.

Jesse Anderson and Theodora Lolland were married on Feb. 2, 1947, at Ekelund Lutheran church. They had known each other from childhood in the Erie area where they now reside, but Jesse had married Thelma Hovet in 1928 and begun farming and Theodora had left the area to work at a number of different jobs.

Thelma died in 1945 after she and Jesse had farmed for 17 years nine miles east of Highlanding. Jesse went to work in Bremerton, WA, for a year, then returned to manage the co-op store at River Valley. He and Theodora had met again when she returned for her mother's funeral in 1945 and that meeting led to their marriage two years later.

In 1949 they bought the Erie store (located four miles east and four miles south of the highway 1 and 219 intersection south of Goodridge) from Pat Clark and operated it for three years before it burned to the ground. The store was rebuilt that same summer on the same foundation as the former building with living quarters on the second story. In those living quarters above the store is where the Andersons continue to reside.

The Erie store itself has been closed since the mid 1960's but it remains as a community landmark. While the store provided a fair income in the early years when the area was quite densely settled, Jesse began going east in Minnesota to work in the iron mines beginning in 1956. He worked at a number of jobs, riding ore cars, helping the blasters, finally serving as a primary plant operator. He worked for Pacific Isles and later Inland

JESSE ANDERSON of rural Goodridge was the first president of the Goodridge area historical society and now has been selected as the first recipient of the society's community service award. At 80 years of age he is still an active salesman for the Newton Manufacturing company of Newton, IA, selling printed business and novelty items. The award will be presented annually to a couple or individual for devoted service to the Goodridge community.

FROZEN GROUND required use of a steam pump to thaw it enough to dig, as city crews worked overtime last week repairing broken water mains. Arnie Wiskow and Jerry Jensen were bundled up against the sub-zero temperatures, as the scalding hot steam boiled out of the ground where the probe was inserted. The probe had to be inserted to a depth of about six feet in each square foot of a four by eight foot area, in order to soften the ground enough for digging.

Breaks In Water Mains Plague City

by Dave Berg
Times Reporter

City utilities department crews put in a lot of overtime during the last week-and-a-half, as a rash of broken water mains kept them busy trying to maintain service to their customers.

Water department supervisor Allan Lamm noted that they had six broken mains during the last 10 days, with four of those occurring last week. He added that another one had been reported this morning. Wednesday and Thursday were the worst days, with crews starting at 6 a.m. Wednesday, and going steady until 3 a.m. Thursday. After a short rest, they started in again at 6 a.m. and worked for another 14 hours. Lamm said they worked late again on Friday, and put in a full eight and a half hours on Saturday.

While it is not unusual to hear people grumble about the wages and benefits earned by government employees, it is doubtful that many people envied the jobs held by these employees as they worked to repair the broken mains. Temperatures hovered around 24 below zero during much of that time, and much of the job required getting wet.

Frozen ground hampered efforts to dig, requiring that a steam pump be used to thaw the area above the break. Steam was pumped through a pipe, which blasts its way through blacktop and dirt, to a depth of six to twelve feet, softening the ground to allow a backhoe to dig a hole. A four by eight foot sheet of plywood with holes drilled every square foot is used to lay out the pattern to be thawed. By turning off the steam and listening through the pipe, the workers can determine when they are close to the leak. On concrete streets, however, the concrete must be chipped away first, as the steam will not cut through it.

After digging the hole with a backhoe to within inches of the water main, the machine is guided by crews on the ground, to cut the amount of work which must be done by hand to a minimum. There is a good reason for this, as the bottom of the hole is not the safest place to be. Cave-ins are not infrequent, and the man who goes to the bottom of the hole has nowhere to run when that happens. In addition he is hampered by having to stand in water and mud, often over his knees.

Attempts to keep the water cleared from the hole by using a suction pump were often hampered by the temperature, which caused the pump to freeze up. When that happened, a blow torch had to be used to thaw the pump, and the water was cleared using a bucket passed up the ladder.

When the pipe was cleared of dirt all around, a stainless steel collar was bolted around the crack, and the hole filled in. Dirt taken from the hole has to be hauled away, since it freezes almost immediately into a rock like mass. Lamm

Needham Recalls Role In Red Lake Tribal Council

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Dan Needham is a quiet, modest man with an abundance of talent, a history of hard work and an abiding interest in welfare of the Red Lake Indian people. Observance of the 25th anniversary of the beginning of elected tribal council rule on the Red Lake reservation this weekend was an occasion for remembering his involvement in that historic event.

Now only a few months away from his 88th birthday, Needham has been out of tribal politics for 17 years. He served as treasurer of the tribal council for two four-year terms and then decided not to campaign for reelection. This weekend he traveled to Redlake for the anniversary ceremonies, speaking to the crowd in both Chippewa and English and leading the grand entry Saturday afternoon.

Needham is one of those somewhat rare public officials who was pressed into a leadership role to provide service, rather than seeking support for an individual effort. He was 61 years old when he embarked on his relatively short political career, but his determination and energy helped bring about important changes in reservation life.

It was in 1958 when Simon Spears and Peter Sitting came to Needham's farm on the west edge of the reservation to seek his help. They explained that a political fight was shaping up between the Young Men's Business association of Redlake and the "old Graves faction" for control of the reservation government. Until that time the reservation had been under control of the hereditary chiefs.

Needham went to Redlake where a big meeting was being held in the high school gymnasium. He spoke to the group and encouraged the people to work together for a common purpose rather than fighting among themselves. As a result of his handling of the meeting, he was named chairman of the constitution committee which was to draw up the rules under which the reorganized government was to function.

"I was in favor of the change to an elected tribal council," Needham recalls. "There had been no progress on the reservation under the existing government. People were living in shacks, getting their drinking water from the lake, streams or shallow, hand-dug wells. People were hungry and in the summer the children had a lot of sickness from the bad water. I felt sorry for the children."

Needham was born on the reservation June 16, 1896, and has made it his life-long residence. His mother was a member of the band, grand-

ORIGINAL MEMBER of the tribal council on the Red Lake Indian reservation, Dan Needham of rural Goodridge served for eight years as treasurer for the band. He attended ceremonies Friday night and Saturday noting the 25th anniversary of tribal council rule on the reservation. He attended Carlisle College in Pennsylvania where he was a student waiter for the football team's training table. The team included the fabled Jim Thorpe, the most renowned Indian athlete of all time. Clippings about some of Thorpe's athletic feats are included in Needham's scrapbook.

Crop Meetings Set For Oslo, Newfolden

Area farm producers are invited to attend crop production workshops in Newfolden and Oslo Friday, according to Ray Thompson, Marshall county extension director.

Library Lil

Library Lil here with disgusting news: It's time to start thinking about taxes. Yechh! There is some good news though. Your library has information concerning your federal taxes.

Yes, Northwest regional library has extra help or forms including the following: reproducible tax forms; instruction for 1040's; tax guides for small business; tax information publications; tax information for direct sellers; taxpayer's guide to IRS information, assistance and publications; farmer's tax guide; and employer's tax guide.

So, if you need forms or instructions, contact that Northwest regional library.

A few books I've wormed my way through:

"Daffy Definitions," by Joseph Rosenbloom. This is a book of silly definitions for words from aardvark to zookeeper. A good example of this is the definition of feather bed: "where feathers sleep."

"America's Quilts and Coverlets," by Carleton L. Safford and Robert Bishop. A beautifully illustrated book of various types of quilts and coverlets.

"Making Your Own Teddy Bear," by Peggy and Alan Bialosky and Robert Tynes. A well-illustrated book filled with patterns detailing the history of teddy bear toys, basic materials and construction of teddy bears, teddy bear wardrobes and teddy bear accessories.

In 1886, New York became the first state to create a permanent agency to mediate labor disputes, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

KEEPING SCRAPBOOKS of community and family happenings on an annual basis is one of the hobbies for Mrs. Jesse (Theodora) Anderson of rural Goodridge. She not only enjoys the collecting of items, but going back through the books to review various events. Many times the records have provided recall of information and helped to settle questions about past events. Mrs. Anderson and her husband were honored recently by the Goodridge area historical society.

History Group At Goodridge Makes Award

Steel (which purchased Pacific Isles) at five different mines.

Two things contributed to the closing of the store. One was the soil bank program under which a number of area farmers accepted a cash payment for idling their entire farms and left the area to take jobs elsewhere. The other was the sale of beer at the store, where customers too frequently consumed the purchase on the premises and either became unruly or ignored the normal closing hours. Theodora, who often was alone operating the store, became tired of the continuous hassle.

Hard work is no stranger to either Jesse or Theodora. They are products of an era where hard work was expected and, for that matter, a necessity if a person expected to make a living.

Jesse was born in the Marshall area and moved with his parents to northwestern South Dakota in 1909. Homesteading in that area turned out to be a mistake when not a drop of rain fell for two years. Jesse's father made a covered wagon out of a hay rack, loaded a few household goods and personal effects, and left on the 400-mile journey back to the Marshall area.

The children in the family considered the trip to be an adventuresome outing, but the parents obviously took it a good deal more seriously. Jesse still remembers the evening campfires, gathering buffalo chips to make the fires and crossing the Missouri river on a ferryboat. After several years on the 80-acre farm, the family moved to the Erie area in 1915 where two quarter-sections of land were purchased.

Jesse was 12 years old when the family moved to Star township. The family's machinery which had been left behind in South Dakota had been stolen and a new start here was necessary. Jesse attended School District 59 through eighth grade, went on to the Northwest school of agriculture at Crookston where he graduated from the four-year advanced course, then attended Bemidji state college for one year plus some summer school.

He earned his certification to teach rural school and began in Yellow Medicine county. He remembers that there were four schools in Star township while he was attending school there, one having 43 to 45 pupils in eight grades in one room with one teacher.

After two years of teaching in Yellow Medicine county, he returned to this area and taught in District 5 east of Goodridge on the Gully road for one year, in a joint district on the Marshall-Pennington county line northeast of Goodridge for one year, and in District 14 for four years. He then married, purchased a quarter section of land nine miles east of Highlanding and began farming.

Theodora was born to Mr. and Mrs. Tellef Lolland near Thief River Falls, then moved to a farm in the Erie area in 1915 — the same year that Jesse's family arrived. After completing rural school and attending the Northwest school of agriculture for one year, she went to the Hibbing area with her sister and a friend to work as a waitress. They stayed there about four years.

"Then we heard there was work in Chicago, so we went there," she said. They worked in factories and for a number of years managed the dining areas at country clubs in South Bend and LaPorte, IN, during the summer months. During World War II Theodora went to Seattle, WA, to work in the shipyards, then back to Chicago in the mid 1940's. Her mother was killed when struck by a city bus as she walked across a street on the West Coast, and the funeral was held in the Erie area.

Theodora went into the turkey-raising business with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Alvin Lolland, producing about 500 birds for Peterson-Biddick company. In 1947 she married Jesse and went into the storekeeping business.

Her hobbies include keeping community scrapbooks with clippings, photos, folders, programs and other items regarding her neighborhood and family. A past church organist, she is a substitute organist at Ekelund church, member of the Deer Park garden club, Star homemakers, Lioness club, Goodridge area historical society and senior citizens group. She likes to crochet, do macrame and sew.

Jesse served on the Goodridge school board for 12 years, is a member of the Lions club, first president of the historical society, Eagles, Sons of Norway and senior citizen group. He was clerk of Star township for a number of years, past president of the church council and member of the OEO board at Oklee for five years. He has always enjoyed waterfowl and upland bird hunting and still is an avid fisherman, having a darkhouse on the Red Lake river.

Jesse is the eldest of six children and will be 81 years old June 1. All of his brothers and sisters are living and include Mrs. George (Evelyn) Hovet of Thief River Falls, Selmer (Sam) Anderson in Montana, Orvin and Norman who live near Highlanding and Harold who lives on the Mavie road south of highway 1.

His son Lowell lives in Bloomington and son Dean in Virginia. He also has two grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Since 1967 he has been associated with the Newton Manufacturing company of Newton, IA, selling printed business and novelty items. He restricts his sales efforts to about a 60-miles radius so that he can be home each evening. Theodora frequently accompanies him on his sales calls. They also take in the senior citizen activities at Goodridge each Thursday and spend occasional evenings playing whist with their neighbors.

"The people I deal with are all good people," Jesse says. "Many are customers I have done business with for quite a few years. I just enjoy getting out and staying in contact and keeping active."

Dan Needham Recalls Role On Council

daughter of one of the chiefs, and his father was a feisty Irishman named Patsy Needham who frequently had to use his fists against reservation residents who resented his marriage to one of their people. Dan spoke only Chippewa until he attended the mission school on the reservation and learned English there.

After attending the Red Lake schools, he went on to Carlisle college at Carlisle, PA, attending at the same time as the fabled Indian athlete Jim Thorpe. His father died during his senior year and he was forced to leave school before getting his degree. Later he attended the business department of Haskell Institute in Lawrence, KA.

His formal training served him well as he took over the reins of the tribal treasury, being elected treasurer in the reservation's first election. Others on that first council were Roger Jourdain as chairman, Frank David Johnson, Otto Thunder, Ed Holenday, Andrew Sigana, Rufus Johnson, James Kelly, John Hanson, Simon Sumner and Eddie Johnson.

The program enacted during his council service which he feels had the greatest impact on the reservation was the installation of a water system. The federal government provided $500,000 and the reservation trust funds added $25,000 to provide a water system within the city of Redlake and to drill wells for some of the rural residents.

"I fought for that program for 15 months!" Needham recalls emphatically. "I had many conversations on the phone with Sargent Shriver, President Kennedy's brother-in-law. He wanted to provide the money for the program with the reservation to put up 10 cents on the dollar — $50,000 in trust fund money for $500,000 in federal funds. But I couldn't get the rest of the council to go along with the program. I think they were out to get me rather than being first interested in helping the people.

"Finally one day Shriver called me and said this was the last chance; either we take the money or the offer would be withdrawn. The council voted to go along with $25,000 and the government came up with the entire half million. We could provide water for the homes in Redlake but we didn't have the money for bathtubs. With the water system and the wells drilled for other residents, much of the sickness which had been common disappeared."

Another program to improve living conditions involved a housing program. Needham proposed to then U.S. Senator Walter Mondale that the council furnish lumber from the Redlake sawmill and the government provide money for labor and other materials to build three homes south of Red Lake. The program was to train reservation residents in the carpentry trade while providing a start in suitable housing.

The program was approved and Dan's son Ed was one of the instructors in the carpentry trade. Dan himself had been a contractor as a self-taught carpenter and constructed a number of homes in North Dakota. Ed learned much of the trade by working with him.

Over the years more money was approved for the project and by the 25th anniversary of the tribal council some 383 living units had been constructed and a housing authority had been established to handle rental or sales of the housing units.

The water and building programs were high points for Needham during his two four-year terms on the council. He has a couple of regrets about the service as well.

"I'm sorry I had to be involved in the final giving up of rights to our Red River Valley lands," he said. "These were North Dakota lands which were ceded in the Treaty of 1863 and extended from the Cheyenne river to Devils Lake. We had been paid five cents per acre and the government wanted us to have a final settlement for another 45 cents per acre. I argued that we should hold out for $100 million or more.

"But the attorneys said we should make the settlement and the people were hungry and broke. They said they wanted the money right away. So they elected Tom Cain and me to sign the papers giving up all rights to the land. The settlement was for about $2 million and I have always regretted being coerced into my involvement in that settlement."

Another incident was what Needham refers to as "the Edmunds plant fiasco". He had arranged for a $37,500 grant to provide funding for a plant at Blackduck to move to the reservation and employ reservation residents in the manufacture of fins for bombs and torpedoes for the government. The money was to come to the tribal treasurer, he said, but instead it came to BIA superintendent Mittleholtz who turned it over to the Edmunds company.

"By the time I found out about it and got to Blackduck," Needham said, "the company had spent $17,000 of the money paying its previous bills. We shut down the rest of the spending, moved the company to the reservation, but it later went broke claiming that it hadn't been paid by the government for the goods produced."

After serving his two four-year terms and having reached the age of 69, Needham refused to campaign for reelection. "I told my wife I was done running around," he said. "I had been gone to North Dakota in contracting work and then serving on the council and I hadn't been home very much. I told Ma I was going to stay home and we would be together 'til we died." Mrs. Needham died in 1983.

Since 1936 Dan has lived in the house he built on the west side of the reservation. He moved from a 40-acre site at Redby where he raised and sold vegetables to the CCC camps, taking with him a team of horses, a few cattle, an axe, saw, grub hoe and a lot of ambition. Working 15 to 18 hour days he grubbed out enough cleared area to conduct a cattle operation. His son Ed later joined him and together they have 1,280 acres of land to farm. The land is owned by the reservation but may be transferred to descendants to use. There are no taxes assessed.

"It seems like I never got tired then," Needham recalls. "This area was teeming with fur and I did a lot of trapping. I also guided duck and deer hunters. But when they dredged the river (the Red Lake river is located about seven miles south of the Needham property) the fur disappeared and so did the ducks."

Dan remains active creating Indian craft items, and he and his son Ed have established a reputation for the artistry of Indian peacepipes. Despite loss of an eye from a scissor thrown by a younger brother as a child, he does meticulous carving and finishing of the craft items.

And as he flips through his well-worn scrapbook of clippings and mementoes, he remembers his involvement with changes on the reservation. Had he been younger he might have continued in the struggle to improve conditions for the Indian people. Now he is more passively interested but no less aware. He would like to do more, but at some point in time even the most devoted to service become tired.

Water Main Breaks Cause City Problems

notes that you can tell what kind of a winter they have had by the size of the dirt pile behind the water plant. Dry dirt is hauled from another stockpile, to fill in the hole after the repair.

In addition to the hazard caused by working in the hole, Lamm noted that the crews reported a number of close calls cause by cars which came up on the work site too rapidly, and skidded on the ice. He noted that the water which builds up and freezes around the site, makes it hard for both cars and the workmen to maneuver. He asks that drivers use extra caution when they see the crews out working.

Lamm says that most of the breaks this time of year are due to fluctuations in temperature which cause the frost to expand and contract, making the earth move. Most of the breaks discovered were of a clean vertical type, indicating earth movement. However, he notes that pipes in this area are plagued by corrosion caused by the soil characteristics. He says that in many areas they have spent more to repair mains than it would cost to replace them, but adds, "We can only do what we have the money for."

Plans are in the works to replace many of the troublesome mains, with a major effort planned for the Third Street area this summer. This will be accomplished to reduce the cost of blacktop repairs, since the street is scheduled for rebuilding by the Minnesota department of transportation in 1985.

"We'll be replacing the rest as we can afford it," he says. He notes that they are replacing much of the old pipe with newer materials such as PVC or plastic wrapped ductile steel, which is more forgiving of ground movement.

Asked if he had any message he would like to pass along to the citizens, Lamm said, "I'd just like to thank them for their patience in waiting for us to get all these things fixed. It's a time consuming job but we are working on it as fast as we can."

Grant Given For Students At Gustavus

Students graduating from high schools in outstate Minnesota may find their ability to afford a liberal arts education at Gustavus Adolphus college significantly improved as the result of a grant recently received by the college.

Surdna foundation, 200 Park avenue, New York, recently announced a grant of $100,000 to Gustavus for unrestricted scholarship endowment. Through earnings from the endowment, and other funds being sought in response to a $450,000 Lutheran brotherhood challenge grant, Gustavus will specifically seek to focus upon and increase the enrollment percentages of students whose homes are in the rural areas and small-town communities of the state.

Over a period of years, Gustavus has developed a profile which indicates that slightly more than 60 per cent of its students need financial aid in order to attend the college. Gustavus has, since the late 1940s, sought, enrolled and aided students from minority sectors along with a substantial number of students from the mainstream of American life but whose family income circumstances are limited. Gifts and grants from many outside sources have been solicited to assist with general financial aid support for students.

College profile also indicates that the attendance of students from non-metro Minnesota has been diminishing in percentage when compared with the total mix of students at the school. Income from the Surdna grant will be ear-marked to assist students from rural areas whose financial need may have prevented them from considering a private liberal arts college in the past.

Vice president for development Robert Peterson expressed pleasure over the award. "In recent years we have been concerned with the decreasing percentage of students enrolled at Gustavus from rural areas and small towns, because we historically have been a school that served our general region," he stated. "The annual earnings of the Surdna foundation scholarship fund will be used, especially in the first years, in tandem with a concerted admissions effort to encourage students from rural Minnesota to attend Gustavus Adolphus college."

Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Week Slated

Senator Rudy Boschwitz has announced that "National Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Awareness Week" will be observed January 15-22. Legislation designating the week was authored by Senator Boschwitz and passed before Congress adjourned in November.

"Fetal alcohol syndrome has been called one of the three leading causes of birth defects and mental retardation," Boschwitz said. "Surprisingly, there is not that much known about it. This week should serve the purpose of educating Americans about this terrible disease," Boschwitz said.

Fetal alcohol syndrome (FAS) is caused by women who consume alcohol during pregnancy. According to the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism (NIAAA), FAS ranks third behind Down's syndrome and spina bifida as a cause of birth defects in newborn children.

"We have only found out in the last decade that there is a connection between a pregnant woman's drinking and birth defects," Boschwitz said. "In fact, until recently some physicians have even recommended an occasional drink to ease tension during pregnancy."

Some results of FAS include growth deficiency, poor motor development and retardation. Although FAS is associated with the children of mothers who are chronic alcoholics, infants still may experience fetal alcohol effects (FAE) when the mother drinks moderately. Moderate drinking has been linked with increased miscarriages and growth retardation of children.

"Because so much is unknown about FAS, the surgeon general of the United States has issued an advisory stating that pregnant women or women considering pregnancy should not drink at all," Boschwitz said. "Observance of this week will help focus national attention on the problems associated with drinking during pregnancy."

To Graduate At St. Luke's

Deb Erickson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Strand, Thief River Falls, will graduate from St. Luke's hospital school of nursing, Fargo, ND, on January 19.

Erickson and her husband, Terrence, have four children and reside in Moorhead. She will be employed by St. Luke's hospitals.

NFO Comments On Prices For Milk Supply

Dairy producers who do not receive 50 cents per hundredweight more for their milk in December than they did in November have taken a cut in the base price paid by their buyer, according to National Farmers organization officials.

Until December 1 the government was taking $1 per hundred off the top of every producer's check (two 50-cent deductions), the NFO spokesman said. But the compromise dairy bill eliminated one of those deductions which, in practice, are withheld by the buyer and remitted by him to the government. Thus, with all factors equal, the producer should see the extra 50 cents on his checks.

Al Scott, director of the NFO dairy department, says field reports from his staff indicate there is a general drop in base prices throughout the dairying areas.

"There is no real reason or logic for a drop," he said. "This is the time of year when adverse weather conditions, which have been especially bad this year, normally cause lowered production by dairy cows. Naturally that means less supply available which should mean steady or higher prices.

"However, NFO has long known that buyers employ reverse psychology when they are short of a product," Scott said. "They often lower the price! When they do that producers traditionally sell (or produce) more in order to maintain an adequate cash flow."

He said that is why the NFO dairy department has held two concentrated drives in Minnesota and Wisconsin in the past two months to protect dairymen from drops in their base milk price. Prices paid for milk all over the nation are based on the M-W series price.

Scott pointed out a mere 10-cent per hundredweight drop in price to dairymen means a nationwide loss of income of $150 million. That calculates to approximately a $1 billion loss to the Gross National Product.

Scott also said he has statistics for the past 10 years which prove lower prices to dairymen for their raw milk are not reflected in lower prices to the consumer at the grocery store.

PROJECT HERITAGE DESIGN general manager Milly Dallmann, right, and Mary Morken from the board of directors of Holiday Fair, checked over one of the new quilting frames which were purchased with a donation from the Holiday Fair board. Project Heritage Design is now in full operation, with about 25 area women manufacturing quilts in their homes, which are then marketed nation-wide by the company. Displayed on top of the quilting frame is one of the early production quilts in an Amish Shadows design, which was sewn by Debbie Carlson of Thief River Falls, and hand quilted by Lillian Hince of Brooks.

Local Cottage Industry Given $450 Donation

Project Heritage Design was selected by the board of directors of the seventh annual Holiday Fair, as the community project to receive this year's donation of $450.

Money was raised through rental of booths and tables at the annual craft show, held November 12, with 58 exhibitors.

Project Heritage Design's board of directors decided to utilize the donation to purchase quilting frames which simplify the labor of the women who hand-make the custom bedcovers in their homes. The frames allow them to roll the work up as they quilt, keeping the fabric from bunching unevenly, and preventing the ends from hanging on the floor where they might become soiled.

Quilt frames which were purchased locally, were designed by Clifford Swanson and manufactured at the Occupational Development Center in Thief River Falls.

There are presently 25 women in the region who are sewing and quilting for Project Heritage Design. Dallmann notes that each of the covers requires about 300 yards of quilting thread and about 80 hours of labor. Any other persons who would be interested in hand quilting for the company may contact either Dallmann or Mary Follett at the Project Heritage Design office, 216 North Main Avenue, or by calling 681-8155.

Senator Urges Sign Up Under Dairy Program

After weeks of uncertainty about what the dairy program regulations would be, the U.S. department of agriculture (USDA) has finally published the regulations. Senator Rudy Boschwitz said dairy farmers should now contact their local ASCS offices to sign up and receive the specifics.

"Farmers have a good opportunity to pull themselves out of present surplus difficulties and return health and stability to the dairy program. I fought long and hard, and against some pretty tough odds here in the Congress to get a dairy program that is fair for all concerned and that would reduce surpluses and costs of the program," Boschwitz said.

Farmers may now contract with the Commodity Credit corporation (CCC) to reduce milk marketing from five to 30 per cent during the period of Jan. 1, 1984 through Mar. 31, 1985. Farmers will in return receive a paid diversion of $10 per hundredweight.

To be eligible to participate dairy farmers must:

— Be a milk producer in one of the 48 contiguous states;

— Have been actively engaged in milk production on Nov. 29, 1983;

— Have established a milk base;

— Have provided a milk reduction plan to the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service and offered to enter into a USDA milk diversion contract by Jan. 31, 1984; and — Not have transferred, except under certain limited circumstances, to any person any dairy cows which would or could have been used for the production of milk in the U.S. after Nov. 8.

"Local ASCS offices have been working hard to get the program up and running in a short period of time. There isn't much time left to sign up, so farmers should look over the regulations and talk with their ASCS offices as soon as possible," Boschwitz said.

"I strongly believe that this program provides a firm financial incentive to most dairy farmers to reduce production and if all those farmers that should sign up for the program do sign up the program will be a success," Boschwitz said.

Boschwitz also said that if this program isn't a success the legs will be cut out from under the dairy farmer.

Diana Burkel Is Hurt In Crash Of Light Plane

Former Greenbush residents David and Diana Burkel, now living in Frazee, were able to walk away after their single-engine airplane crashed into a house near Crystal airport on Tuesday morning. Mrs. Burkel, the former Diana Farbo of Greenbush, was hospitalized at North Memorial hospital with five broken ribs, but was expected to be released over the weekend.

Burkels were reportedly approaching the airport for a landing at about 7:30 a.m. when the engine stopped running. They were approximately three quarters of a mile from the runway and 1,000 feet in the air, and continued to glide until they crashed into some trees and the back of a house about a block from the airport. The nose of the aircraft penetrated a bedroom wall of the house, coming within 10 feet of Cheryl Stegora who was sleeping at the time. Although there were holes in her bedroom and bathroom walls, a hole in the kitchen ceiling, broken roof shingles, a door knocked off its hinges and glass sprayed about, neither Stegora nor Julia Erickson, who was elsewhere in the house at the time, were injured.

Burkels were on their way to Texas from Detroit Lakes, and had planned to stop in the Twin Cities area for breakfast. They formerly raised turkeys and had a grain trucking business in the Greenbush area before moving their operation to Frazee about four years ago. David Burkel is a brother to Kathy (Mrs. Jeff) Vacura of Thief River Falls, and he and Diana have numerous other relatives in this area.

780 Million Pounds Of Food Is Distributed

In 1983 over 780 million pounds of free food — mostly cheese and butter — worth more than a billion dollars were provided to the needy, according to assistant secretary of agriculture Mary C. Jarratt.

"We gave away nearly four times more food this year than we did last year," Jarratt said. "This feat is a tribute to the commitment of thousands of people who are working to get surplus foods into the hands of the needy."

In December of 1981, President Reagan announced the distribution of surplus cheese to needy families. USDA distributed 203 million pounds of cheese and butter worth $300 million to needy households in 1982, Jarratt said.

In 1983, USDA distributed more food as well as more types of food. Between January and December 1983, USDA estimates the total commodities distributed to households as follows: processed cheese, 392 million pounds; cheddar cheese, 92 million pounds; butter, 174 million pounds; nonfat dry milk, 45 million pounds; rice, 14 million pounds; cornmeal, 25 million pounds; honey, 25 million pounds; flour, 15 million pounds.

Federal spending on food aid for the needy has grown from $14 billion in 1980 to more than $19 billion in 1983, Jarratt said. She said the mainstay of federal food programs is food stamps which cost $12 billion this past year and served 22 million people.

Endorsement Rank and Vile

Columnist Mike Royko, in a copyrighted story in the Chicago Sun-Times, expresses his opinion of group endorsement through board action. Here is what he writes:

For 27 years, I have been paying dues into a union, the Newspaper Guild, AFL-CIO.

I have never asked the union to do anything for me, which is fortunate, since it is not exactly a tiger in the world of organized labor.

Nor have I been particularly active, except to help negotiate a contract many years ago, serve on a few gripe committees and run a boozy banquet once.

Actually, I do not give the union much thought except when I list my union dues as a tax deduction.

But now I have found that the union has taken on a very important role in my life.

It has decided to do my political thinking for me.

The union's leadership did this a few days ago when it joined the rest of the AFL-CIO and endorsed Walter Mondale, who is running around the country grabbing presidential endorsements from anything that breathes.

When I saw the news story about the endorsement, my reaction was: "Hey, wait a minute. Nobody asked me who I like."

And I asked a few of my co-workers, who are also members of the union, if anybody had sought their opinions on Mondale.

"No, and I don't even like the guy," one reporter said.

"I don't know," said another, "maybe they called when I was in the men's room."

I could not find anybody whose opinion had been sought by the union's national leadership.

That is because the leadership did not bother to ask the 31,000 dues-paying members how they feel.

Instead, the executive board — all 16 members — took a vote, and nine of them came out for Mondale.

This means that nine people took it upon themselves to speak for the other 31,000 of us.

The hell with that. I do not even know these nine people or what they do on the newspapers they work for.

For all I know, some of them might be sportswriters, a group generally regarded as the nice but retarded members of the journalistic family.

But it really does not matter what they do or who they are. What matters is that only nine of them have taken it upon themselves to speak for the other 31,000 of us.

Now, I realize that this kind of thing is not uncommon in labor unions.

Rank-and-file members of the Teamsters union, for example, have not been permitted to have their own thoughts for many years. Their thinking is done for them by assorted union thugs and crime syndicate figures.

And most other unions operate this way. The handful of leaders — sometimes only one man — tells them: I know what is good for all of you, so shut up and I will take care of it.

Then they endorse the candidate who makes them the most extravagant promises.

And nobody can make promises like Mondale. Before this campaign is over, he will have promised something special to everyone in the United States, born or unborn, living or dead, citizen or alien, animal, vegetable or mineral.

Fine. But I do not even know what he has promised me for my implied endorsement.

And the least any voter — especially a Chicago voter — expects to know is the answer to the question: "What's in it for me, Mac?"

I know that Mondale is not going to promise me that, as a union member, I will make more money in the future, because there is no way I will make more money if Mondale fulfills all of his promises to everybody else.

The way I figure it, if Mondale tries to keep his promises to make everybody happier and more prosperous, he will run out of money by about his third day in office. There just is not enough money floating around the country to make everybody happier and more prosperous.

So I would like a promise from him that if he cannot make me happier and more prosperous, at least he will let me keep what I already have.

But he cannot do that, because in order to shovel out all that prosperity and happiness, he is going to have to put the arm on everybody who has an extra sawbuck in their wallet.

Since we are a newspaper union, I would expect him to make special promises to us.

But what can he promise — that we will get bigger and better stories? That our typewriter ribbons will never wear out: That the quality of coffee in the office machine will improve? That we will be spared stupid editors and live happily ever after?

No, he cannot promise us any of that because as soon as he gets into office, he will do what all politicians try to do to newspaper people — he will tell us lies.

I am not saying that eventually I will not vote for Mondale, if he is the candidate. He might turn out to be the least nauseating in the field. But I prefer to make that decision for myself. Who knows — maybe a hard object will fall on my head, and I might prefer George McGovern. Or my brain might fall out of my ear, and I might turn into a Reaganite.

Until then, though, I prefer to wait and make my own decisions based on the issues, the positions of the candidates, the state of the nation, the state of the economy and whether the precinct captain offers me a new garbage can or a frozen chicken.

How Congress Works(?)

Following editorial is from the St. Cloud Times:

State and decorous debates on the House of Senate floor probably figure prominently in most Americans' vision of the congressional life.

But actually, senators and representatives spend surprisingly few days in session. The majority of their time each year is devoted to committee and subcommittee meetings, social events, campaigning and public speaking. Relatively few days are devoted to action on the House or Senate floor.

As a case in point, the Senate convened only 150 days and the House 146 during the session just ended, which ran from Jan. 3 to Nov. 18. The year before, the Senate met 147 days, and the House 140.

The two chambers will see even less activity next year, according to a preliminary legislative agenda. The schedule is typical of an election year, when attention and energy increasingly become devoted to persuasion of voters and contributors rather than the business of legislating. Political conventions and primary elections will shut down congressional activity at frequent intervals throughout the year, leaving only about 136 days for Senate and House business.

And not all of those days will be well-used. Because members of Congress tend to stretch their weekends during the campaigning season, little if any business will be conducted on Mondays or Fridays.

Regularly scheduled holidays apparently aren't enough to keep the handshake warmed up during the election year. That's surprising, considering the number of vacation days included in the preliminary schedule for next year. Congress will recess for 10 days in observance of the birdays of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln; 10 days for Easter; six days for Memorial Day; three weeks in July of Independence Day and the Democratic National Convention; and 25 days in August and September for Labor day and the Republican National Convention.

There are several ways one could react to this information. The more members of Congress stay out of the chambers, the less harm they can inflict on the American people through poor legislation. And if they can get their work done in 140 days, there is no reason for them to bore each other and the public with tendious floor debate.

On the other hand representatives and senators earn far too much to allow them the luxury of spending most of their time on a perpetual campaign trail.

If the work is there to be done, Congress should spend more time at home attending to business. If the workload is not compelling, it's time to revamp the congressional schedule and pay scale. As it is, members of the Congress are using a considerable amount of public resources in their continual quest for re-election. A critical examination is in order of a system that tends to force legislators to spend so much time and energy campaigning.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Thoughts to Ponder: Distance lends enchantment, but not when you're out of gas... Face powder may catch a man but it takes baking powder to hold him... With a small boy, cleanliness is not next to Godliness — it's next to impossible... Cheer up! Birds have bills, too, but they keep on singing... Even a mosquito doesn't get a slap on the back until it starts working.

Two can live as cheaply as one — but only half as long.

REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

The current recession is striking hard at many aspects of society — the most visible being slowed economic growth and high unemployment. And it is the extreme levels of unemployment that have created havoc with the state's unemployment compensation program, as I would like to outline for you in this week's column.

Unemployment compensation funds are generated by an unemployment compensation tax paid by employers. This tax is based on a somewhat complex formula based on how often employees draw from the fund over a specific period of time. For example, employers whose workers collect no compensation for three years running pay the lowest rate of one per cent on the first $8,000 in wages per employee. This rate climbs to a maximum of 7.5 per cent on the first $9,000 of wages for employers who experience high employee layoffs.

The formula works so that the more people working, the more money paid into the fund and the fewer benefits paid out from it. The excess raised during times of high employment are put into a trust fund which normally covers unemployment compensation payments during times of high unemployment. But this latest recession is lasting much longer than expected and consequently, both the income from the unemployment compensation taxes and from the trust fund were depleted.

A saving factor here was the federal government which authorizes loans to states to continue benefit payments. Before 1982, when the loans were interest free, Minnesota took advantage of the program by borrowing during the difficult economic times and repaying the federal government when the economy improved. Other states, though, were not as conscientious. They borrowed heavily from the federal government, but made no provisions for repayment.

As a result, staggering debts were made against the federal unemployment compensation trust fund and beginning in April of 1982, Congress imposed a 10 per cent interest charge on the loans.

In addition, a penalty of three-tenths of one per cent was imposed for each year the loan remains unpaid. And finally in early 1983, Congress required states with outstanding debts to pay the accumulated interest by October 1 of each year and specified that the interest payments be raised through additional funding sources. These events led to the passage of a 10 per cent surcharge on the unemployment compensation tax paid by Minnesota employers.

This surcharge should help the state repay the $332.3 million it owes the federal government — $169 million interest free and $163.3 interest-bearing. In addition, the state needs to borrow as much as $50 million more by December 31, so the total deficit will reach $386 million.

Under the current tax and benefit structure and assuming a normal economic recovery, our outstanding loan balance will not be repaid until close to 1990. Employers will continue to pay the federal three-tenths of one per cent penalty during each of those years.

This brings us up to the 1984 legislative session during which this issue promises to be the subject of much attention, and most likely, misinformation.

If any changes are implemented by the legislature, though, you can be assured they will be thoroughly researched first. During the past decade no change was made to the unemployment compensation tax and benefit structure without recommendation from the unemployment compensation advisory council. This council is appointed by the commissioner of economic security and includes representatives from labor and business, as well as the general public.

The governor and legislative leaders have expressed hope that the new council, which held its first meeting in November, will continue providing an open forum for negotiation and compromise. Without this system, it would be extremely difficult for the legislature to enact any major changes in Minnesota's unemployment compensation program this year.

BACK HOES of the city utilities department were kept busy during past two weeks, digging up streets so that broken water mains could be repaired. Digging required use of two machines, with operator Doug Martell using this one to break up the blacktop and concrete to allow the bucket to be used for digging. Water department supervisor Allan Lamm noted that they had four broken mains last week, with two more the week before, and another one this morning. He said the most likely cause is ground movement resulting from fluctuations in temperature but added that maintenance problems are compounded by soil conditions which corrode the pipes.

TRF, MCC Meet Tuesday

First-ever Thief River Falls basketball game at Marshall County Central Tuesday should be an interesting high school encounter. The two teams rarely met over the years until the series was picked up last winter. They did meet earlier this season when the Prowlers pulled off a surprise in beating the Nordics 47-45 for third place honors in Thief River Falls' Christmas Classic.

As soon as that game was completed the Nordics were talking about the chance to reverse the decision in this week's regularly scheduled meeting. Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland said his team didn't play anywhere near as well as they're capable of playing that night, and he's anxious for the chance to make amends tomorrow.

"We'd like to be able to play our best and see what happens then," said Ueland. "Hopefully we can play well against them."

It'll be an interesting match-up of a smaller school with a record of success in the Class A ranks against a larger school struggling as a Class AA team. Last year the Prowlers beat the Nordics 63-49 here in the first meeting between the two schools since the 1970-71 season when Marshall County Central won here by a 63-45 season-opening margin.

Marshall County Central, after a 3-0 start, lost to Argyle 61-46 and Thief River Falls in the Christmas Classic, and also fell to East Grand Forks 67-43 in dropping to .500 for the year. But the Nordics' offense got untracked last week in 95-58 and 91-40 wins over Middle River and Badger. The Prowlers can't match those kinds of points, and will obviously have to slow things down to beat the Nordics, who in turn will try to get the running game going in high gear.

Thief River Falls is only 3-6 for the year, but the Prowlers are coming off their best effort of the season in a 45-44 overtime win over favored Crookston Friday.

"We did a good job," confirmed Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt, "but I told the kids it doesn't mean a thing unless we can build on it. We have to go out and play well in our next game, too."

After visiting Newfolden, Thief River Falls tackles a tall East Grand Forks squad Friday to start a string of six straight home games that will carry the Prowlers through mid-February. The Green Wave won by a 71-61 margin Friday over Bemidji, a team that destroyed Thief River Falls 84-39 the week before.

Hockey Injuries Mount

List of serious injuries seems to be at an all-time high in Section 8 high school hockey this winter, with Thief River Falls wing Tim Bottem the latest addition to the group.

Bottem, one of the Prowlers' top players and second-leading scorer with 8 goals and 7 assists for 15 points in 10 games, was lost to the team in Saturday's 7-4 win at Moorhead with a broken collarbone.

He joins many other top Section 8 players on the injury list, including Monte French of Crookston, out for the year with a broken leg, and Todd Boushee of East Grand Forks, out for the year with a knee injury.

Others currently sidelined include John Robinson and Monte McDougal of Detroit Lakes, both with broken arms; Russell Palm (back) and Mike Ross (knee) of Roseau; Steve Dorsey (paralyzed in collision with the boards), Chad Timm (shoulder) and Jeff Falconer (shoulder) of Moorhead; plus John Schmidt (broken leg), Chad Weisel (shoulder), Mike Henderson (shoulder) and Brent Lervick (hip-pointer) of Alexandira.

Bottem will be sidelined indefinitely, but the Prowlers hope to have him back in the line-up before post-season play begins.

Ryan Bakke currently leads a balanced Thief River Falls scoring attack with 9 goals, 8 assists and 17 points, followed by Bottem with 15 points and Steve Wiskow (4-9) and Mitch Semanko (5-8) with 13 points apiece.

Miscellaneous

+Lincoln high school girls basketball team has a single game this week — Thursday at East Grand Forks, but it'll be a tough assignment for the Prowlers. The Green Wave knocked off previously unbeaten Crookston 48-42 Saturday in a match-up of highly-regarded Class A teams. Crookston was coming off a 40-36 victory over the Prowlers.

+Two area sports rivalries will be renewed this week in the form of girls high school basketball games when Goodridge and Grygla meet tonight (Monday) at Grygla, while Marshall County Central and Middle River tangle Thursday at Middle River. The Huskies (1-6) and Eagles (3-7) will be playing for pride, but the Nordics (6-3 going into a Monday game at Warren) and the Skippers (11-0) will be playing for first place in the North Border Conference.

+Section 8 high school hockey statistician Frank Fee of Crookston issued his weekly rating today (Monday): 1. Roseau; 2. Bemidji; 3. Warroad; 4. Fergus Falls; 5. East Grand Forks; 6. Thief River Falls. The Prowlers have a chance to prove themselves this week when they host Warroad Tuesday and entertain Bemidji Saturday.

Trojans Beat Northmen 13-6 On Wednesday

University of Minnesota-Crookston avenged a season-opening 5-4 loss to underdog Northland community college Wednesday with a 13-6 Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) hockey conquest matching northwestern Minnesota rivals at Crookston.

Eight different Trojans scored, led by freshman defenseman Jerry Paper of Baudette with a three-goal hat trick. Jeff and Kary Strandell, along with Tom Folske had two goals each.

Northland coach Tony Dorn, Jr. described the play as "brutal" as he watched three Northmen take hard checks that produced injuries — Ladd Bjugson, Bob Rockwood and Bob Martin.

With the loss, the Northmen fell to 3-5 in the MCCC, including five straight losses. They return to league play Wednesday with a 7:30 p.m. rematch against UMC in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Northland will be at Hibbing for a weekend series, playing Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday at 1 p.m.

Jim Dillon and Bob Martin scored two goals each for the Northmen, with Rob Blankenfeld and Bob Rockwood scoring once each.

UMC owned a 6-4 first period lead and stretched the margin to 10-4 after two periods.

Crookston had a sizeable 65-20 shots-on-goal advantage, with Northland freshman goalie Jay Boomgaarden of Baudette kicking out 52 shots while UMC's Larry Fertig had an easier 14-save night.

Northmen Win 2 Games From Winnipeg Team

Northland community college hockey team evened its season record at 5-5 with a weekend sweep over Winnipeg Bible College in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Snapping a five-game losing streak, Northland rolled to an easy 13-1 Saturday night win over the newest addition to the schedule, then completed the sweep with a 7-3 Sunday afternoon victory.

NCC 13, Winnipeg 1

Ladd Bjugson scored four goals Saturday night in the one-sided 13-1 Northland romp over Winnipeg Bible College.

Jim Dillon had a three-goal hat trick for the winners, while Todd Graalum and Dean Cuno scored two goals each and single goals came from Tony Holcomb and Scott Steinbach.

Northland had a 4-0 first period lead and owned a 10-0 second period cushion.

There was a 51-35 shots-on-goal advantage for the Northmen.

NCC 7, Winnipeg 3

Score wasn't as one-sided in the Sunday rematch, but Northland was still an easy 7-3 winner over Winnipeg Bible College.

Rob Blankenfeld scored three times to earn the hat trick for the Northmen, who led 2-0 after one period and had a 5-0 lead through two periods.

Single goals were added by Ladd Bjugson, Bob Rockwood, Tony Holcomb and Todd Graalun.

Northland out-shot Winnipeg 41-33.

THIEF RIVER FALLS forward Michelle Olson drove the base line and put up this third quarter shot against Crookston during Thursday's girls high school basketball game played in the Lincoln gym. Ember Rogalla (33) and Kim Ricard (44) of the Pirates looked on. Crookston won the game 40-36.

Girls Challenge Pirates, But Lose 40-36 Contest

Unbeaten Crookston had its hands full with an underdog, but determined Thief River Falls outfit Thursday, however, when it was all said and done, the Pirates were still undefeated as they held off the upset-minded Prowlers 40-36 in an entertaining girls high school basketball game at the Lincoln gym.

Crookston ran its record to 7-0 heading into a Saturday night showdown against fellow District 31A rival East Grand Forks, while Thief River Falls fell to 7-4. But it was the Prowlers and not the Pirates who received most of the post-game praise.

"That was the best ball game, from start to finish, we've played all year," beamed Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "I'm very pleased."

Crookston coach Harlen Stahlecker, too, was impressed with the Prowlers' showing. "They played well," he said. "That's the best ball club I've seen him (Schafer) have here. Before, you could count on them to make 30 mistakes a game, but they sure didn't do that tonight. They keep playing like that and they're going to be tough to beat."

A pair of sophomores were the key people in the game — Crookston forward Christy Rongen and Thief River Falls center Michelle Puetz.

Rongen's defensive play was instrumental, according to Stahlecker, in holding high-scoring Thief River Falls forward Michelle Olson to eight points, well off the 20-point clip she has been supplying the Prowlers. Rongen also helped out offensively with nine points.

Puetz, meanwhile, was involved in an interesting match-up against Crookston's top ball player — senior center Ember Rogalla, who carried a 17-point, 17-rebound average into the game. Rogalla finished with 15 points, but Puetz had 11, and Rogalla got five of those points when Puetz ran into foul trouble at the end of the first half.

And that proved to be the decisive point of the ball game. Two free throws by Olson and a nice turn-around move to the inside by Puetz provided Thief River Falls, ahead 10-8 at the end of the first quarter, an 18-13 lead with 2:59 left in the second quarter. But moments later Puetz was whistled for her third foul on a questionable call as she tried to block a shot by Rogalla. Puetz immediately went to the bench and the Pirates went on to score nine unanswered points over the final 2½ minutes of the half, including a three-point play off an offensive rebound by Rogalla with two seconds left, for a 22-18 halftime edge.

It was a stand-off in the second half. Both teams scored eight points in the third quarter and 10 in the fourth. The Prowlers were never closer than four points, but never any farther behind than six until late in the game when the Pirates had a brief seven-point lead.

Rongen made both ends of a bonus free throw opportunity with 1:30 to play to give Crookston a 40-33 cushion. Sophomore forward Connie Grovum, the Prowlers' leading scorer with 13 points, scored on a rebound (the Prowlers had four shots and three offensive rebounds in a flurry around the basket) with exactly one minute to play, making it 40-35.

Last point — a single free throw by Puetz with 16 seconds left (second shot on the bonus try was taken away by a lane violation) — also belonged to the Prowlers, but they missed two chances moments earlier that could have really tightened things when Penni Johnston, rushed on a fast break lay-up by a pair of Crookston defenders on her heels, missed the shot and seconds later Grovum missed the front end of a 1-and-1 free throw opportunity.

"I thought it was our ball game to win at the end," mentioned Schafer, "but we missed a couple of shots."

Shooting wasn't Thief River Falls' strong point, with the Prowlers 15-for-54 from the field (28 per cent) and 6-for-13 at the free throw line (46 per cent). Crookston suffered similar fate, 16-for-52 from the field (31 per cent) and 8-for-19 at the line (42 per cent).

"That's our lowest percentage of the year," pointed out Stahlecker, "but give Thief River's defense a little credit for that."

Rest of the figures were nearly even, too, with Crookston winning the rebound battle by a slim 28-26 margin and also topping the turnover figures by a slight 21-20 amount.

Thief River Falls' lone start this week will be at East Grand Forks Thursday.

Prowlers Edge Pirates 45-44

Jeff Hamerlinck's free throw with three seconds left in overtime gave Thief River Falls a dramatic 45-44 high school basketball victory over rival Crookston Friday.

Hamerlinck, who missed his second free throw at that point, had scored from the field earlier in overtime to account for all three Thief River Falls points in the extra session after the two teams played to a 42-42 tie in regulation time.

Randy Erickson of the Prowlers created the tie by capitilizing on a Crookston defensive mix-up to score on an uncontested lay-up with about 20 seconds left in the fourth quarter. Crookston had the ball for the final shot, but missed, forcing overtime.

It was 44-44 when the Prowlers' John Brandt missed from the field, but Hamerlinck had position, grabbed the rebound and drew the two-shot foul to set up the game-winning free throw.

It was just the third win in nine starts for the Prowlers, while Crookston lost for the third time in seven games.

"It has to be the best game we played this year," offered Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt after the upset victory. "We played with a lot more patience and poise than we have in the past. We took total control of the game in the first half. We controlled the tempo."

Thief River Falls owned a 9-6 first quarter lead and took a 19-16 edge into halftime. The Prowlers were rattled a bit in the third quarter, admitted Hunt, and they surrendered eight straight points in falling behind 35-31 to start the fourth quarter.

But they regained their composure and collected the victory. "Defensively, we did a number of things well," explained Hunt. "It was a good team win."

Senior guard John Brandt led the Prowlers with a strong 10-point night that also included four assists and three steals. He was the only Thief River Falls scorer in double figures, but Hamerlinck finished with 9, while Erickson and Jeff Langan each had 8 in a balanced attack. Jay Huseby scored 14 for the Pirates.

Shooting figures were nearly identical, with Thief River Falls going 18-for-40 from the field (45 per cent) and Crookston 19-for-40 (48 per cent). But the Prowlers were 9-for-13 at the free throw line, where the Pirates were 6-for-9. Crookston had a 22-17 rebound edge, but the Pirates also topped the turnover figures 16-10.

Thief River Falls will play Marshall County Central Tuesday in Newfolden, then host East Grand Forks Friday.

Prowlers Defeat Spuds

Thief River Falls' third straight Section 8 high school hockey win Saturday, a 7-4 victory over Moorhead, enabled the Prowlers to reach the .500 mark for the first time this season at 5-5, but it was a costly victory with the loss of first-line wing Tim Bottem to a broken collarbone.

Bottem, injured in the second period, will be lost to the team indefinitely. The Prowlers hope to have him back in the line-up before beginning post-season play.

Moorhead, an early-season surprise in Section 8 with 10 quick wins, played Thief River Falls to a 4-4 tie before the Prowlers erupted for three goals late in the third period, including an open net clincher at the end.

An unassisted goal by Moorhead's Jim Steen tied it 4-4 at 8:41 of the third period, but Thief River Falls defenseman Brian Johnston scored a quick 34 seconds later and teammate Mitch Semanko provided a two-goal cushion at 13:46. Ryan Bakke completed a three-goal hat trick game by hitting an open net with just eight seconds left.

While impressed with Moorhead's play, Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand still felt the Prowlers were in control. "We played well enough for a bigger difference in the score," he said, "but we had trouble killing penalties."

Moorhead scored twice on the power play, including a goal with a two-man advantage by Todd Schuler in the first minute of the second period that snapped a 1-1 first period tie. Chipper Ole gave the Spuds a brief 3-1 lead, but Bakke, Bob Huot and Semanko all scored before the second period was over for a 4-3 edge.

After struggling offensively in getting off to a 1-4 start this winter, Thief River Falls has netted 18 goals in wins over Lake of the Woods, Crookston and Moorhead.

"We're naturally happy to score seven goals," acknowledged Grand. "With the way we've been playing defense (the Prowlers have played well defensively throughout most of the season), the six goals a game we've been scoring puts us in pretty good shape."

Moorhead defeated Thief River Falls 6-5 in junior varsity hockey Saturday, leaving Thief River Falls at 4-5 for the year.

First Period

Scoring — Moorhead, Jeff Kappes, 2:28; TRF, Ryan Bakke (Jim Geatz, Steve Wiskow), 9:03. Penalties — Moorhead, Tim McGeehan, holding, 6:38; TRF.

Bemidji Beats LHS Swimmers

A strong Bemidji squad out-scored visiting Thief River Falls 100-72 Thursday in dual meet high school swimming competition.

It was the Lumberjacks' 38th dual meet win against just one loss over the past three years. The young Thief River Falls squad saw its dual meet record slip to 2-2 this winter.

Thief River Falls came up with four first place finishes, and junior Todd Wing had a hand in three of them. He won the diving competition and the 100-yard backstroke, while also swimming a leg on the first-place 200-yard medley relay team, where he joined Eric Ose, Dave Ose and Paul Wefald for the meet-opening victory.

Dave Ose added a victory in the 200-yard freestyle.

"All-in-all, I can't be too disappointed," reported Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney. "Bemidji has a strong team. We're young and inexperienced. We're just not ready to challenge Bemidji yet."

Most exciting race of the night, said Forney, came in the backstroke where Wing edged Dave Ose 1:03.88 to 1:03.91 in a 1-2 Thief River Falls finish. He was also happy with the showing of Dave Ose in the 200 and Eric Ose in the I.M., where they were both regional qualifiers, along with eighth grader Shon Thompson, who made his varsity debut with a third place finish in the diving competition, where the Prowlers were missing Jeff Rosetta because of another commitment.

Thief River Falls will be at Grand Forks Tuesday for a 4:30 p.m. dual meet.

Northmen Sweep Games Against Itasca, Hibbing

Proponents of the work ethic could have proved their point during the two-game Northland community college basketball homestand that kicked off the 1983-84 Northwest Division-counting schedule against Itasca and Hibbing.

Northland didn't work particularly hard at hit Friday night, admitted coach Chet Engelman, and the Northmen struggled to emerge an 82-77 winner over Itasca, a team they probably should have handled easily. But Saturday afternoon they put together a full 40-minute performance that netted a 30-point, 96-66 win over Hibbing, a team they might have expected to have a tougher time against.

Results left the Northmen 8-3 for the season. They'll be on the road for Minnesota Community College Conference competition this weekend, playing Mesabi Friday at 8 p.m. at Virginia and meeting Vermillion Saturday at 2 p.m. at Ely.

"I thought we hustled well today," mentioned Engelman after the romp over Hibbing. "Friday night was one of those games we won and maybe we shouldn't have. But today the kids worked hard. If we play hard like that all the time, we'll have a nice year."

Underdog Itasca battled Northland to a 32-32 halftime draw and challenged the Northmen throughout the second half, too, before the Vikings finally conceded an 82-77 decision.

Itasca put up and made more field goal attempts than Northland, but the winners were 12-for-16 from the free throw line, where the losers were a less-productive 1-for-3. From the field, Itasca was 38-for-95 (40 per cent) and Northland was 35-for-73 (48 per cent).

Sophomore guard Kyle Ramsey had 27 points and 18 rebounds for the Northmen, with sophomore forward Jon Neumann of Middle River hitting 16 points and grabbing 11 rebounds, while sophomore center Rodney Scales scored 10 points, had 17 rebounds and was credited with five assists. Mike Ford of Itasca, hitting mostly from the outside, had a game-high 34 points on a busy 17-for-37 shooting night.

Northland owned a 57-42 rebound edge and topped the turnover charts 27-15.

Six Northland scorers hit double figures Saturday afternoon as the Northmen ran by Hibbing 96-66 to complete the weekend sweep over Northeast Division opposition, games that count in the winner's Northwest Division standings.

Jon Neumann completed a productive weekend with a 21-point, 12-rebound performance, giving the Middle River transfer student from Lake Region 37 points and 23 rebounds in the two games. "Jon had two very good games for us this weekend," confirmed Northland coach Chet Engelman.

Meanwhile, the outside shooting of sophomore guard Rick Van Camp of Newfolden netted him 16 points, while Kyle Ramsey came off the bench to score 12, Kevin Sanders had 12, Shorty Johnson 12, along with 11 rebounds, and Dan Flanagan 10. Kerry Loberg, a sophomore forward from Floodwood, led Hibbing with 13 points.

It was a blow-out at the start when Northland snapped a 4-4 tie by out-scoring Hibbing 22-6 over a seven-minute span that produced a 26-10 bulge with 10:42 left in the first half.

However, the only lull in the Northland attack all afternoon saw Hibbing net 14 of the next 18 points as the 16-point gap narrowed to 30-24 with 6:10 remaining.

That was the Cardinals' only threat, though, as Sanders scored on a drive to the basket with 29 seconds left to finish the first half scoring with Northland's lead back to a comfortable 42-29 spread.

Hibbing was never closer than 15 points in the second half, with a fast break basket by Flannagan, a hard-working 5-7 freshman guard from Edinburg, N.D., at the final buzzer matching Northland's biggest lead of the game, 96-66.

Northland shot 54 per cent from the field (45-for-84) and 55 per cent from the free throw line (6-for-11). Hibbing shot only 33 per cent from the field (26-for-79) and 64 per cent at the line (14-for-22). Northland had a 57-45 rebound advantage. The turnovers were even at 18 apiece.

Michelle Jones (42) of Hibbing and Jenyne Beehler (53) of Northland watched the play. Dahl scored 14 points in the 53-49 victory for the Northwomen.

NCC Women Split Games

Involved in a pair of close encounters over the weekend, the Northland community college women's basketball team picked up a Northwest Division-counting split against Northeast Division foes Itasca and Hibbing in Thief River Falls.

Itasca pulled out a 49-48 Friday night win, with Northland getting by Hibbing 53-49 Saturday afternoon.

Split left the Northwomen 6-4 overall.

"I was real pleased with their play," reported Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "They never gave up when we were behind."

Northland will play Mesabi Friday at 6 p.m. in Virginia and will meet Vermillion Saturday at 12-noon at Ely.

Northland bounced back from a 32-30 halftime deficit to challenge Itasca down to the final horn before losing a tough 49-48 decision Friday night.

A basket by sophomore Tara Nicholson of Thief River Falls put Northland ahead 48-47 with 30 seconds left, and the Northwomen appeared to be in control when they rebounded a missed Itasca shot in the final seconds. But a quick turnover gave the Vikings one last shot, and they made it as Anne Bylkas hit one from near the free throw line with five seconds left for the one-point victory.

Nicholson was the game's high scorer with 20 points, with teammate Karen Sovde, a freshman from Greenbush, getting 14. Kelli Christensen scored 14 points for the winners — all in the first half.

Northland shot 27 per cent from the field (20-for-73) and went 8-for-19 at the free throw line. Itasca shot 29 per cent from the field (21-for-71) and was 7-for-14 at the line.

Trailing 13-4 just five minutes into the game, Northland battled back gamely and beat Hibbing 53-49 Saturday.

Northland still trailed 24-17 when the Northwomen began their comeback by scoring 10 straight points over the final stages of the first half. They gained the lead for the first time when Karen Sovde took a feed from Kari Skogland, a freshman guard from Middle River just returning to the line-up off a knee injury, and scored from underneath for a 25-24 edge with 2:33 remaining. Sovde added a rebound basket in traffic and freshman guard Jenee Frolander, a new addition to the team from Warroad, hit one from the outside for a 29-24 advantage before the Cardinals finally put an end to the Northland scoring streak with

Schroeder led 12-10 at the end of the first quarter and carried a 22-18 lead into intermission.

Brian Stark led Thief River Falls with 10 points. Bryce Crawford and Rob Koppenhaver each had 12 for Schroeder.

Grygla Blanks Badger In Third Quarter For Win

Grygla out-scored host Badger 14-0 in the third quarter Thursday to erase a 20-8 halftime deficit and propel the Eagles to a 35-32 girls high school basketball win.

It was just the third win in ten games for the Eagles. "We didn't play our best game, but I'll take the win," said first-year Grygla head coach Mike Gast. "It wasn't pretty, but I was really proud of the way they came back."

Sophomore Debbie Klein had her best night of the year, said Gast, with an 18-point effort, including the credit for a basket scored in the wrong hoop by the Rockets. She was the game's only double figure scorer.

Grygla, trailing 11-2 at the end of the first quarter, had trouble shooting, hitting only 12 of 57 shots (21 per cent). They were 11-for-25 at the free throw line (44 per cent). Badger had similar figures, 13-for-60 from the field (21 per cent) and 6-for-12 at the line (50 per cent).

"We didn't do anything different in the third quarter," explained Gast as the Eagles bounced back from that 20-8 deficit to a 22-20 lead. "They just came out ready to win."

Grygla hosts rival Goodridge tonight (Monday) and entertains Lake of the Woods Thursday.

Plummer continued its season-long pattern that has seen the Cardinal win, then lose; win, then lose through eight games and a 4-4 record Thursday in a 60-47 home court loss to Fisher.

Ahead 10-8 at the end of the first quarter, Plummer was out-scored 17-4 in the second period and that 13-point difference was the margin of victory.

"We've been having trouble putting four quarters together," acknowledged Plummer coach Rick Koivisto. "We had the same shots in the second quarter — good shots — but they just wouldn't drop."

Fisher took a 25-14 lead into intermission and maintained that spread, 42-31, through the third quarter.

Junior Jody Pahlen scored 28 points and had 13 rebounds for the Cardinals. Stacey Quern led Fisher with 14 points.

Plummer shot 30 per cent from the field (19-for-63) and 50 per cent at the free throw line (9-for-18). Fisher shot 40 per cent from the field (25-for-63) and 48 per cent at the line (10-for-21).

Freshman Robin Brantl grabbed 15 rebounds as Plummer finished with a 52-36 rebound advantage, but the Cardinals hurt themselves with 25 turnovers.

Plummer will be at Mentor Tuesday and at Goodridge Thursday.

Marshall County Central lost a 54-37 game at Stephen Thursday when the Tigers out-scored the Nordics 16-4 in the third quarter.

It was an 8-8 first quarter tie before Stephen converted four successive late first half Marshall County Central turnovers into a 27-22 lead at intermission. The Tigers then opened up a 43-26 third quarter cushion.

"The third quarter did us in," explained Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. The Nordics made just one of 13 field goal attempts that quarter, with the Tigers going 7-for-12.

"We got good shots, but nothing we put up went in. It was really frustrating," said Mjelde.

Brenda Ignaszewski's outside shooting netted 22 points for the winners, Shelly Anderson led the Nordics with 13 points.

Marshall County Central shot 32 per cent from the field for the game (15-for-47) and only 35 per cent at the free throw line (7-for-20). Stephen shot 43 per cent from the field (24-for-56) and 46 per cent at the line (6-for-13).

"They have a good team," said Mjelde, whose team fell to 6-3 for the year. "They're one of the best teams we've faced all year."

Marshall County Central was scheduled to play in Warren tonight (Monday), then visit Middle River Thursday for two tough road assignments.

Goodridge . . . . . . . . . . 33

Oslo jumped out to an 11-0 game-opening lead and went on to beat Goodridge 56-33 in Polar Conference play Thursday.

Host Bobcats led at the quarter breaks 19-8, 28-19 and 36-28, then out-scored the Huskies 20-5 in the final eight minutes.

Three Oslo scorers hit double figures, including Kristi Devine and Dawn Knutson with 11 each. Jennie Boutain scored 13 and Diana Troska had 11 for the Huskies.

Cold shooting from the field hurt the Huskies, explained Goodridge coach Patti Johnson, with Goodridge shooting just 18 per cent (10-for-55). "We had good shots, but they wouldn't go in," she noted. The Huskies were 13-for-28 from the free throw line (50 per cent).

Oslo was 25-for-72 from the field (35 per cent) and 6-for-13 at the line (46 per cent). Goodridge forced Oslo into 38 turnovers, but the Huskies failed to convert on those opportunities, said Johnson, and turned the ball over 21 times themselves. Oslo owned a commanding 63-31 rebound advantage.

Goodridge, 1-5 heading into a Saturday make-up game with Fisher, visits Grygla Monday and hosts Plummer Thursday.

Middle River . . . . . . . . 41
Warroad . . . . . . . . . . . 38

Middle River extended its season-opening winning streak to 10 games Thursday with a 41-38 North Border Conference win over visiting Warroad, but it took overtime for the Skippers.

Paula Rantanen scored 20 points and Jody Christofferson 11 for the Skippers, who led 11-8 at the end of the first quarter, but trailed 19-16 at halftime and 28-25 going into the fourth quarter that ended in a 38-38 draw.

It was a struggle for the shorthanded Skippers, who were playing without Diane Black and Tammy Sorter, both out with injuries, while several others who played battled illness.

Warroad was primed for an upset with a 36-33 lead and just 30 seconds left, but Christofferson came up with a steal and a basket to make it 36-35, and when the Warriors' Robin Marvin missed a free throw, the Skippers grabbed the rebound and sent Vonda Peterson to the line for a good-tying free throw with 12 seconds left.

Marvin connected on two free throws to start overtime, but Rantanen tied it, and

Oslo Trips Goodridge At Buzzer 40-38 . . .

Huskies Beaten In Overtime

GAME-HIGH scorer during Saturday's community college women's basketball game played in Thief River Falls was Northland's Karen Sovde (25), a 6-0 freshman from Greenbush, who scored 16 points as the Northwomen defeated Hibbing 53-49.

Oslo scored the only basket in overtime — at the buzzer — Friday as the visiting Bobcats edged Goodridge 40-38 in Polar Conference high school basketball action.

Both teams had chances at the end of regulation time to break a 38-38 tie, but Goodridge, after working nearly a minute off the clock, turned the ball over with 13 seconds left, and Oslo, harried by the Huskies' swarming defense, never got a final shot off.

A wild finish at the end of the three-minute overtime left the fans buzzing. With just seconds left, Oslo threw an inbounds pass that two Bobcats appeared to grab, with Roger Ronan gaining possession and throwing up a desperation, off-balance shot from a tough angle on the base line that dropped through at the horn.

Goodridge backers questioned not whether the shot got off in time, but that they felt the two Bobcats catching the in-bounds pass should have been called for traveling because of the dual possession.

"That was a tough one to lose," admitted Goodridge coach Dan Brinkman, who took pride in the behavior of the Huskies amid the last-second controversy. They questioned the call, he explained, but never got out of hand, and were praised for their conduct by the officials in a post-game talk with Brinkman.

"It was a great defensive ball game," he pointed out. "Both teams played great defense. It was an exciting ball game. The fans got their money's worth; it's just that our fans went home mad."

Oslo owned quarter leads of 10-7, 18-13 and 27-25 before the tie at the end of regulation time.

Inside play of Reed Veralrud netted him 17 points for the Bobcats to take game-high scoring honors, while Tony Wiseth had 13 for the Huskies, whose high-scoring Scott Groven was held to just six points.

Goodridge, shooting 40 per cent from the field (17-for-43) hurt itself with a poor 4-for-14 night from the free throw line. Oslo was 6-for-12 at the line.

Now 4-5, Goodridge has a double date this weekend, hosting Red Lake Falls Friday and visiting Oklee Saturday.

Middle River held Warroad to just 12 points in the two middle quarters Friday for a 48-33 North Border Conference road win.

Climbing above .500 at 5-4, Middle River took an 11-10 first quarter lead and opened up a 26-14 halftime cushion, then carried a 36-22 advantage into the final eight minutes.

"Defensively we played real well," reported Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "Offensively, we didn't shoot very well."

Kevin McKeever led the Skippers with 18 points, while Tom Neumann scored 11. Chris Runnels was the only Warroad scorer in double figures, getting 13 points.

Middle River shot only 35 per cent from the field for the game (17-for-49), but the Skippers scored enough points at the free throw line (14-for-26) 54 per cent, to make for an easy victory margin. Warroad shot 33 per cent from the field (15-for-46) and wasn't nearly as busy at the free throw line (3-for-6).

Sparby said it was simply a matter of feeding the ball inside to Neumann, drawing fouls and sending the Skippers to the free throw line on a steady basis.

Middle River will host Badger Tuesday in the Skippers' only outing this week.

Marshall County Central offense broke the 90-point barrier for the second time in a four-day span Friday as the Nordics routed visiting Badger 91-40.

And they got all those points despite a slow start that saw the Nordics hit just three of 24 first quarter field goal attempts. However, they still had a 9-2 lead when the first quarter came to an end. It was up to 32-10 by halftime and 63-22 after three quarters.

"Our depth just wore them down," explained Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "We got real good play out of our reserves."

Fourteen Nordics put their names in the scoring column, led by Kevin Boe with 15 points, Jay Nelson 14 and Randy Dahl 11. Barrett Hoosier paced Badger with 11 points.

Marshall County Central shot 39 per cent from the field (36-for-92) and 68 per cent from the free throw line (19-for-28). Badger shot 31 per cent from the field (15-for-49) and 48 per cent from the line (10-for-21). The Nordics had a 47-30 rebound edge and the Rockets topped the turnover charts 27-12.

Thief River Falls will be in Newfolden Tuesday to play Marshall County Central, now 5-3.

a half-ending basket, cutting the lead to 29-26 for the Northwomen at intermission.

Hibbing was never able to wrestle the lead away from Northland in the second half. Freshman Brenda Dahl of Newfolden fed Sovde underneath for a 49-37 cushion — Northland's biggest lead — with 6:56 remaining.

Three times Hibbing cut the gap to four points over the final four minutes, but Northland always responded with the next basket. At 49-45, Sovde once again scored from close-in with 3:09 left, and at 51-47, Tara Nicholson finished off a fast break with 2:22 left. That was it for the scoring, save for two free throws by Hibbing's Virginia Schulte with just four seconds to play.

Sovde led the Northland scoring with 16 points, with Dahl adding 14.

Northland shot 38 per cent from the field (24-for-63) but was just 5-for-23 at the free throw line. Hibbing shot 27 per cent from the field (21-for-79) and was 7-for-13) at the line.

Christofferson completed the scoring with a field goal and a free throw.

Middle River overcame a poor shooting night (29 per cent) with a good defensive effort, said Skippers coach Tom Neibauer, who gave special credit to Christofferson for her efforts in holding the high-scoring Marvin without a field goal.

Fisher . . . . . . . . . . . . . 69
Goodridge . . . . . . . . . 45

Goodridge lost to Fisher 69-45 in a Saturday matinee make-up contest at Goodridge.

Fisher took a 9-5 first quarter lead and turned it into a 36-14 halftime cushion when Goodridge ran into second quarter foul trouble, explained coach Patti Johnson of the Huskies, who had four players with three fouls before the half ended.

It was 47-29 at the end of the third quarter.

Stacey Quern and Susie Wagner, Fisher's inside game, scored 20 and 19 points, respectively. Diana Troska and Jennie Boutain each had 14 for the Huskies.

Fisher shot 39 per cent from the field (24-for-62) and had a busy 21-for-27 afternoon at the free throw line, including an 11-for-12 second quarter of free throw shooting. Goodridge shot 28 per cent from the field (19-for-68) and was 7-for-16 at the line.

Fisher's size advantage still only netted the Flyers a 40-36 rebound edge. "For our size, I can't be displeased with the way we played," explained Johnson.

Goodridge, 1-6, is geared up to take on rival Grygla tonight (Monday), said Johnson, with the two teams meeting in Grygla. Goodridge hosts Plummer Thursday.

Tri-County . . . . . . . . . 30

Jody Christofferson and Paula Rantanen both scored 24 points Saturday as Middle River defeated Tri-County 53-30 at Karlstad.

Middle River, 11-0, owned quarter leads of 16-2, 27-6 and 44-18 as Christofferson and Rantanen combined for all but five of the 53 points for the shorthanded Skippers. Arla Spilde scored 15 points for the Rabbits.

"We played a lot better than we did Thursday night (a 41-38 overtime win over Warroad)," pointed out Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "We're a little more used to playing shorthanded," he mentioned in reference to the injury-forced absence of starters Diane Black and Tammy Sorter, both expected to be in the line-up for Thursday's encounter with rival Marshall County Central.

MSHSL Playoffs . . .

Review Formats For Tournaments

Number of changes affecting the winter activities program of the Minnesota State High School League are few in number for this 1983-84 season. Changes that were implemented were based on recommendations by advisory committees, the athletic council, and the MSHSL board of directors. Changes and other pertinent data related to upcoming state tournaments are highlighted below for the winter athletic activities sponsored by the MSHSL.

Girls, Boys Skiing

Cross county skiing state meets for girls and boys is scheduled for Friday, February 10, at Sugar Hills Resort in Grand Rapids. The slalom meets for girls and boys will follow a week later on Friday, February 17, at Welch Village, south of Hastings. A change in format in the slalom meet will find the competition for individual qualifiers only beginning at 9 a.m. with two runs down the slope. The team portion of competition will follow with the first of two runs beginning at 1 p.m. Previously, only two runs were held for both individual and team competition.

Defending champions: girls cross country — Stillwater; boys cross country — Eden Prairie; girls slalom — Duluth East; boys slalom — Bloomington Jefferson.

Wrestling

There are no changes in the format for the 47th annual state wrestling tournament, which is scheduled for March 1, 2 and 3 at the St. Paul Civic Center.

Defending champions: Class AA — Apple Valley; Class A — Staples.

Girls Gymnastics

Tenth annual state girls gymnastics meet will again be conducted at the Minneapolis auditorium on March 2-3. The first day's schedule involves team competition. The final day will find individual and all-around champions being named.

Defending champions: Class AA — Robbinsdale Armstrong; Class A — Blake.

Swimming, Diving

There are no format changes for the 61st annual state meet, which will be conducted at Cooke Hall pool on the campus of the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, on March 9-10. A total of 109 high schools are participating in the sport this season.

Defending champion: Mounds-View.

Hockey

St. Francis high school is registered with the MSHSL in hockey for the first time this season. With the merger of White Bear and White Bear Mariner high schools into one school this year, and with Litchfield not officially registered in hockey with the MSHSL this season, the number of hockey playing teams statewide numbers 149, one less than in 1983. Fortieth annual state hockey tournament will be held for a ninth straight year at the St. Paul Civic Center March 8-9-10. More than 100,000 fans are again expected to attend the event.

Defending champion: Hill-Murray.

Girls Basketball

Beginning this year each of the eight teams in Class AA and eight in Class A that qualify for the state tournament will have the opportunity to practice on the Met Center floor in Bloomington, main site for the ninth annual state tournament, which will be held on March 15-16-17. First round quarterfinal games on March 15 will be split between two sites — Class AA at Met Center and Class A at the Minneapolis Auditorium. Semifinal and championships games the next two days will be played at the Met Center.

Defending champions: Class AA — Albany; Class A — Henderson.

Basketball

Beginning this year each of the eight teams in Class AA and eight in Class A that qualify for the state tournament will have the opportunity to practice on the St. Paul Civic Center floor, main site for the 72nd annual state tournament, which will be held on March 22-23-24. First round quarterfinal games on March 22 will be split between two sites — Class AA at Williams Arena and Class A at the St. Paul Civic Center. Semifinal and championship games the next two days will be played at the St. Paul Civic Center.

Defending champions: Class AA — Woodbury; Class A — Barnum.

Advance Tickets

Advance tickets to the general public are not available for the state hockey tournament and state boys swimming and diving meet because those events are virtual sell-outs with remaining tickets being held for participating schools. Advance tickets are available for the state wrestling, girls gymnastics and basketball tournaments. Persons interested in purchasing advance tickets are asked to write the MSHSL Office, P.O. Box 309, Anoka, MN 55303, or telephone (612) 427-5250 for ticket information.

Athletic Council

Athletic council of the MSHSL will meet for a second time this school year on Wednesday and Thursday, Febuary 15 and 16, 1984, at the league office in Anoka to take action on sports advisory committee reports.

Sports advisory committees from various sports will meet previous to the athletic council meeting to prepare reports.

Reports at this athletic council meeting will be received from committees representing the sports of basketball, golf, skiing, track and field, wrestling, swimming, hockey, baseball, softball and girls gymnastics.

Recommendations of the athletic council will be submitted to the board of directors at their March, 1984, meeting and acted on by the board at their April, 1984 meeting. Earlier reports from the other sports advisory committes that were heard by the athletic council at their December meeting were acted on by the board of directors at their January meeting.

Athletic council and sports advisory committees are vital arms of the board of directors. Council serves as a clearing house for recommendations received from the various advisory committees.

THIS INNOVATIVE bluebird house, designed by Dick and Vi Peterson of Brooklyn Park, will be explained at seven bluebird workshops to be sponsored by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources in February and March throughout the state as part of the DNR nongame wildlife program.

Bluebirds Part Of Wildlife Programs

Over 500 people discovered the joys of helping bluebirds in 1983 through a cooperative project of the nongame wildlife program in the Department of Natural Resources and the bluebird recovery committee of the Minneapolis Aubudon Society.

Last winter six bluebird workshops were held to teach people how to help bluebirds, and each family attending was given a cut out bluebird house to take home and use as a pattern for making additional houses. Bluebird experts Dick and Vi Peterson of Brooklyn Park presented most of the workshops with DNR regional nongame specialists Katie Hirsch, Pam Perry and John Schladweiler. Dave Ahlgren of Burnsville volunteered his services to cut out 500 bluebird houses to distribute at the workshops.

By the end of the 1983 nesting season, bluebird volunteers reported 800 pairs of bluebirds raising over 3,000 baby bluebirds in their house. Over 2,700 bluebird houses were maintained by these volunteer bluebird cooperators.

This bluebird project has been so successful that the nongame wildlife program will sponsor additional workshops this winter. They will be held at the following places and times:

Detroit Lakes — March 8, coordinator Katie Hirsch (218) 755-2976; Fergus Falls — February 11, coordinator Katie Hirsch (218) 755-2976; Duluth — March 24, coordinator Jack Mooty (218) 327-1711; Whitewater State Park — February 25, coordinator John Schladweiler (507) 354-2196; Marshall — February 18, coordinator John Schladweiler (507) 354-2196; St. Paul Minnesota — March 10, coordinator Steve Hage (612) 432-9010; Zoological Gardens; Brainerd — March 10, Pam Perry (218) 828-2228.

Persons wishing to participate should contact the appropriate workshop coordinator. Applications will be taken on a first-come first-served basis because of space limitations at workshop facilities.

"AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER"

5,000 Acres Of County Land Is Erodible

Pennington county has about 5,000 acres of highly erodible land that could be eligible for payments under a new federal program to establish permanent vegetative cover, according to Allan Gustafson of the Pennington county soil and water conservation district.

Secretary of Agriculture John Block wants farmers to reduce soil erosion and apply conservation practices by idling marginal cropland. To do this, Block says USDA will provde $20 million to farmers through a special 1984 acreage conservation reserve (ACR) program.

Implementation of the ACR program will be a joint-cooperative effort of USDA's soil conservation service (SCS) and the agriculture stabilization and conservation service (ASCS), and the state division of forestry, department of natural resources.

Minnesota's SCS state conservationist, Don Ferren, St. Paul, said "Only highly erodible land in Minnesota that is removed from crop production by converting it to permanent grass, grass or legume mixtures, or planting it to trees will be eligible on this program." Ferren added that this land must be eroding at a rate greater than eight tons per acre per year before treatment and that it must be predominately classed as 3E or above.

"Such cropland," Ferren said, "has severe limitations and is highly susceptible to soil erosion if a grass or other vegetation cover, or a higher level of conservation treatment is not maintained on the soil surface."

ACR program cost-sharing will be available to persons who own or operate eligible cropland. ASCS state executive director, Don Friedrich, St. Paul said that "ASCS will cost-share up to 90 per cent on implementation of the approved conservation practices applicable to the ACR program."

Marginal land idled and planted to a permanent vegetative cover must be maintained for at least five years and 10 years if planted to trees.

To sign up for the 1984 ACR program, eligible landowners should contact their local SCS and ASCS offices during the January 16-February 24 sign-up period.

Ferren and Friedrich say the ACR program is designed to achieve four objectives: To coordinate commodity and conservation program objectives; to convert highly erodible cropland to permanent vegetative cover; to accelerate the rate of soil savings on critical areas; and to encourage and increase conservation farming practices.

Photographs On Exhibit At UND Gallery

AT THE BOTTOM of an eight foot hole, Doyle Thompson stood in muck within a few inches of the tops of his waders, digging the last few inches of dirt away from a broken water main so that it could be patched. City crews faced hazardous working conditions as they worked on the breaks, with constant danger of a cave-in adding to the discomfort of 24 below zero temperatures. Crews also reported a number of close calls caused by traffic getting too close, and asked that drivers use extra caution around the work sites, since ice resulting from the breaks can make avoidance maneuvers difficult.

Three Farmers Gain Land In Farm Program

Three approvals in December raised the accumulative total of new farm owners established under the Minnesota family farm security program to 387, according to agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols.

Two of the December approvals are for seller sponsored loans on crop and livestock farms in Chippewa and Renville counties, and the other is a lender sponsored loan on a cash grain farm in Chisago county.

Ninety per cent state guarantees on the three privately negotiated December loan approvals for $592,500 raised the accumulative total of guaranteed loans under the Minnesota family farm security program since March, 1977, to $67.3 million. The 387 active cooperators are acquiring ownership of 61,211 acres of farm land in 67 of the state's 87 counties.

Reagan Praises Voluntary Blood Donors

President Ronald Reagan has designated January as National volunteer blood donor month to thank the volunteer blood donors of America, announced Perry Hallford, executive director of United blood services of the Upper Midwest.

In his proclamation, the president commended both donors and blood banking: "Our blood banking service is the finest in the world and, through participation in the volunteer blood program, blood donors unselfishly share the blessing of good health with those who are less fortunate."

Each day nearly 37,000 units of blood or specialized blood components are transfused nationwide. Most Americans, at least 95 per cent of those who reach age 72, will need blood during their lifetime.

Furthermore, the need for blood is increasing with rapid advances in medical science; such as organ transplants, open heart surgery, and cancer treatment.

"Also consider the everyday use of blood in the 48 hospitals in our three-state service area to treat the sick, injured and burned," commented Hallford. "It's estimated that almost half of the American population is medically eligible to give blood. But less than ten per cent of eligible donors actually give. That's only four per cent of the population."

Egg Production In State Hits 11 Year High

Egg production in Minnesota for the year ended November 30 totaled an estimated 209 million dozen, the highest for this eleventh leading state in eleven years, according to Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols.

But the poultry farmers saw their gross income shrink to $98 million, a drop of $1.3 million compared to 1982, and $3 million less than the recent peak income year of 1981.

Paralleling the income drop for chicken farmers was a continued reduction in the number of egg type chicks commercially hatched in Minnesota, 36 per cent lower than a year ago in November and 20 per cent fewer chicks hatched in 1983 than in 1982. The January-November hatch of 12,671,000 chicks in Minnesota was 3.1 million fewer than a year ago.

Nationally the hatch of replacement egg type chicks in 1983 was 376.1 million, lower than a year ago by 37.2 million or more than a nine per cent reduction.

Minnesota's November egg check grossed farmers an estimated $10.8 million, the highest in 35 months, primarily due to the fact the average market egg price of 63 cents a dozen was the highest since December, 1980.

Preliminary estimates indicate, however, that the average market price received by Minnesota poultry farmers for eggs in 1983 has been the lowest in three years. Based on month production and market prices, the average 1983 Minnesota farm egg price was slightly more than 47 cents a dozen, a half cent below last year and five cents less than the 1981 average.

Tax Deductions Give Relief Of Disabilities

Nearly one in every six Americans has a disability of some kind. While the economic aspects of a handicap may not be obvious to the general public, the increasingly high cost of health care and disability-related expenses can be a tremendous financial burden on the persons and families affected.

According to an article entitled "tax deductions available to disabled persons," some relief from the financial burden of a disability can be realized through tax savings generated by deducting all qualifying medical expenses on state and federal income tax returns.

Article is written by Arthur Sauter, CPA and tax supervisor with Deloitte Haskins and Sells, Minneapolis. Sauter, who is himself disabled, outlines some general criteria for deducting disability-related expenses. These criteria are illustrated by examples from actual tax court cases and IRS rulings. Article is a good starting point for people wanting to learn about this kind of tax savings.

Article is available from the Courage stroke support network by sending a written request and $1 to cover the cost of printing and postage. Send requests to Courage Stroke Support Network, Courage Center, 3915 Golden Valley Road, Golden Valley, Minnesota 55422.

Don Loeslie Ends Term As Wheat Growers President

DON LOESLIE FARMS

AFTER A YEAR of frenzied activity as president of the national association of wheat growers, Don Loeslie of Warren will turn over reins of the organization January 27 to Earl Pryor of Condon, OR. Loeslie's learning experience and his effort to be an influencing factor in the wheat-producing world have provided an emotional high from which he expects his "love affair with my farm" to help him recover.

"A CLUTTERED DESK Is a Mark of Genius". So states a sign which can only occasionally be found amidst the stack of material on the desk of the Times editor. It was therefore heartening for the editor to view the desk of Don Loeslie, president of the national association of wheat growers, which occupies one entire wall of the Loeslie farm office northeast of Warren and is only slightly less cluttered than the editor's own. "My wife and I have an agreement," Loeslie smiles. "She puts up with my dashing here and there and my unfinished piles of reading and reference materials. In return, when this year is over, I have agreed to help clean up the mess." Loeslie will end his term at the association's annual convention January 27.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Chatting with the Vice President . . . meeting the President . . . attending an audience with the Pope . . . being a guest on the Secretary of Agriculture's farm . . . representing the United States government at trade meetings . . . taking telephone calls from U.S. Senators and Congressmen . . . jetting around the country to meetings, conferences and conventions. Pretty heady stuff for a northwestern Minnesota farm kid with a rural school background and Red River Valley soil under his fingernails.

Don Loeslie of rural Warren has done all of those things and more during the past year as president of the national wheat growers association. His one-year term will come to an end January 27 when the new president — Earl Pryor of Condon, OR, assumes his duties. The national convention will be conducted under Loeslie's leadership from January 23 to 26 in Denver, CO.

Loeslie is philosophical in a down-home way about his year's experience with airplanes and airports. "I came out even on number of landings and take-offs," he quips. Other than that, he has seen accomplishments, experienced disappointments and witnessed first-hand the inner workings of national government and big time politics.

He was seated next to Vice President Bush at a luncheon on U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block's farm near Galesburg, IL, when secret servicemen suddenly virtually covered the Vice President and hurried him away. Bush returned later to explain that a gunman had been apprehended after crashing a gate where President Reagan was appearing at Augusta, GA.

"That was an eye-opening experience," Loeslie said. "Despite the incident, I had an hour and a half to visit with the Vice President and talk about America's agriculture and especially wheat. When you are part of a high government official group your movements are restricted by the tight security, but on the other hand you can avoid a lot of the hassle and red tape you would otherwise encounter."

Such was the case when Loeslie, his wife Gloriann and other members of a small group had a special audience with Pope John Paul in Rome, Italy. He said he was impressed with the Pope's comments that the problem of enough food for a hungry world seemed to be one of distribution rather than of production. He said the pontiff called for a more even exchange rate to assist in the distribution of food.

International experience also included setting up of exchange groups among wheat exporting countries, primarily Canada and Australia in addition to the United States. Loeslie said that farmers in most countries are not doing particularly well, that most countries don't have farm programs and that farmers don't have much influence on their governments or their markets.

Noting that other nations key their actions to the United States farm situation, Loeslie pointed out a statement by Australia's Sir Leslie Price. "He said he would like to see the United States wheat support price at $5 a bushel because they would rather undersell us by a nickel at $5 than at $3 on the world market," Loeslie said. Dialogue between the competing nations on the world market is an important first step toward eventual mutual cooperation, he said.

Loeslie served as representative from the United States at the International Federation of Grain producers in Ottawa, Ont., Canada, and at an exporters meeting in Natchez, MS. He met with politicians and policy makers in Washington offices and corporate officials in board rooms in New York City and Connecticut. He led a leadership conference at Jackson Hole, WY, and toured nearly all 16 wheat states.

A general tabulation by the Minnesota Wheat Growers association office in Red Lake Falls reveals that Loeslie has traveled approximately 125,000 miles during the past

Operation Child Print Program To Be Offered

"Operation Child Print", a voluntary child identification and finger-printing program endorsed by the Minnesota chiefs of police association, will be conducted in Thief River Falls public schools February 6-10 and the Goodridge public schools during the week of February 20.

The state police chiefs association is providing the finger-printing cards and donations of $130 from the Kiwanis club and $120 from the Veterans of Foreign Wars auxiliary will cover other supplies.

Thief River Falls police chief Ken Froschheiser emphasized several important aspects of the program. First, it is entirely voluntary and the child's parents' signature is required. Second, the card on which the fingerprinting is done will be returned home with the child to be kept at home. Third, there will be no other copies made of the card and none kept on file by any school or law enforcement agency.

During the last week in January, Chief Froschheiser said, fingerprinting cards and explanatory letters will be sent home with students in kindergarten through fifth grades at Thief River Falls public schools. Parents who would like to have their children participate in the program will sign the card and return it to school with the child. No child will be fingerprinted without a parent's signature.

During the week of February 6-10, fingerprinting sessions will be conducted by the police department and county sheriff's department with the assistance of several interns from Northland community college. These sessions will be in the schools on a pre-scheduled basis. The planned schedule includes the following:

Monday, February 6, 9 to 11 a.m., kindergarten at Washington school; Tuesday, February 7, 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m., kindergarten through fifth grade at Washington school; Wednesday, February 8, 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m., kindergarten through fifth grade at Northrop school; Thursday, February 9, 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m., kindergarten through fifth grade at Mark Twain school; Friday, February 10, 9 to 11 a.m., kindergarten at Mark Twain; 1 to 3 p.m., kindergarten at Northrop.

Arrangements may also be made to conduct the program at local private schools. Our Saviour's Christian academy has already requested the program to be offered to all of its grades (k-12) and a February 16 date has been scheduled.

Parents who have older children or pre-schoolers from age three to five who they would like to have fingerprinted as well may bring the child to the law enforcement center between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday to have the process completed.

Once the program locally has been completed, the plan is to offer the fingerprinting for each entering kindergarten class. Chief

Paradis And Hruby To Make Home In Bemidji

Bernadette Marie Paradis and Jerome Allen Hruby are at home in Bemidji at 617 21st Street, following an exchange of marriage vows at a mid-afternoon wedding ceremony at St. Anthony's Catholic church at Terrebonne, and a wedding trip to Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada.

The bride, who retained her maiden name, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Paradis of Terrebonne. Mrs. Marie Hruby of Oklee is the mother of the groom.

Rev. Laurn Virnig officiated at the ceremony. Val Gagnon was the organist playing "Fugue in G Minor" for the processional and "Though the Mountains May Fall," as the recessional. Sheryl Guzek and Tim Gagnon were guitarists. All vocal selections were provided by the church youth choir. Altar boys were Thomas McGlynn and John Berhow, cousins of the bride. Serving as lectors were Carol Berhow and Ruth Ann McGlynn, also cousins of the bride. Offertory bearers were the groom's brother, sister-in-law and niece Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hruby and Holly of Fergus Falls. The wedding programs were distributed by Patti McGlynn, cousin of the bride.

A wedding banner graced the chancel as did candelabra entwined with orange tiger lilies, yellow daisies, brown mums, ferns and white bows and streamers. Corresponding flowers filled the planters on the altar, and Swedish love knots marked the pews.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, was attired in an empire styled gown of white organza with Venice lace forming the stand-up collar, accenting the elbow-length sleeves and bordering the chapel-length train. Her Victorian headpiece was attached to blusher and mid-length veil. For sentiment, she wore her late grandmother Dora Paradis' white gloves. Her late grandmother Myrtle Baatz' pin graced her garter. Complementing the bodice was a gold and diamond locket, a gift from the groom. She carried a cascade bouquet of orange tiger lilies, yellow daisies, purple violets and greenery, accented with a tatted white rosary, made by the groom's sister, Rosetta Hruby.

Matron of honor was Debbie Brandes of Greendale, Wis. Bridesmaids were Becky Reek, Iron, cousin of the bride; Rosetta Hruby, Oklee, sister of the groom, Peggy Nelson, Thief River Falls, and Ann Nephew, Fertile, cousins of the bride. The flower girl was April Hruby of Oklee. All wore floor-length gowns of a forest green knit with white lace yokes and stand-up collars. Their white gauntlets were also of lace. In their hair, they wore yellow daisies and an orange tiger lily. The flowers in the bridesmaids' round bouquets and in the wicker basket carried by the flower girl were similar to those carried by the bride. Cascading from the bouquets were ribbon streamers in orange, yellow, brown and white.

Personal attendants were Wanda Opheim, Grand Forks, N.D.; Mary Lizotte, Fargo, N.D.; Lorie Schindler, Moorhead; Cam Donarski, Mount Vernon, Wash.; and JoAnn Winger, Cambridge.

Mark Hruby, Oklee, attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Fred and Kenneth Paradis, Terrebonne, brothers of the bride; and Kevin Bergeron, Storm Lake, Iowa, and Paul Coauette, Minneapolis; friends of the groom. Nathan Hruby, Fergus Falls, a nephew of the groom, was ring bearer. Ushers were Louis and Thomas Paradis, Terrebonne, brothers of the bride; Matthew Radniecki, Oklee, and Ronald Dessellier, Brooklyn Center, cousins of the groom. The groom was attired in an all-white tuxedo with tails and his attendants wore nutmeg brown tuxedos. Their boutonnieres were of orange tiger lilies, yellow daisies, purple violets and brown mini mums.

A reception in the church parlors followed. Hosts and hostesses were LeRoy and Dava Hruby of Oklee and Tom and Mary McGlynn of Mentor. At the guest book were Susan Reek, Iron; and Diane Tougas, Oklee, cousins of the bride and groom. Punch was served by Mr. and Mrs. Mike Dessellier, Oklee, cousins of the groom.

The four-tiered wedding cake, baked and decorated by Mrs. Edna Hyde of Plummer, was surrounded at the base by four heart-shaped cakes, connected by two stairways with miniature replicas of the bridal party on the steps. The cake was cut and served by Yvonne Berhow, Fertile, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Mae Moran, Mentor, aunt of the groom.

Pouring coffee were Mrs. Ruth Carriere, South Milwaukee, Wis., and Mrs. Addie Prevost, Oklee, also aunts of the bride and groom.

Waitresses were Eva Dessellier, Tracy Smith, cousin of the groom; Larisa Carriere, cousin of the bride, and Janet Suprenant and Pauline Rysavy, friends of the couple.

Honor guests at the wedding and reception were Mr. and Mrs. Adelore Paquin and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wicks, Oklee, godparents of the bride and groom; Sister Marie Paradis, Crookston, great-aunt of the bride; and Ernast Paradis, Terrebonne, grandfather of the bride.

The bride and groom are graduates of Bemidji State university and are employed in Bemidji. The bride is employed as a relief worker at Northwoods Shelter, and the groom at First National Bank. Both are also employed by Gold Pine, a congregate housing facility. Photo, Don Nordlund, Bagley.

Krystosek And Larson Vows Exchanged In TRF

Sharon M. Krystosek and John A. Larson of St. Cloud, former Thief River Falls residents, exchanged marriage vows on December 17, 1983 at 1:00 p.m., at St. Bernard's Catholic church in this city.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Ed Krystosek and Mr. and Mrs. A. Cliff Larson of this city.

Officiating at the ecumenical ceremony were Rev. Stanley Bourassa of St. Bernard's and Rev. Richard Larson of Zion Lutheran church. Chris LaCoursiere, a friend of the bride, was the organist, playing "Marche Nuptiale," as the bride was escorted to the altar by her parents. During the ceremony, Tim Ostby and Michelle Kaspari, friends of the couple, sang "Beginning Today," "Here I Am Lord," "You Are Near," "On Eagle's Wings," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Forming the background for the bridal party were potted white poinsettias, and altar bouquets of wine colored carnations and white starburst mums. Highlighting the chancel was the wedding banner, "And the Two Shall Become One," made by the groom's father.

For the ceremony, the bride wore the gown which her mother wore at her wedding 23 years ago. It was fashioned of a white, sheer embroidered nylon over taffeta featuring a four tiered, hoop-styled, floor-length skirt. The fitted bodice with brief sleeves was complemented by a dropped waistline. To complete her attire, she also wore her mother's pearl beaded, princess-styled crown and sheer, double-layered veil of white netting. She carried a crescent bouquet of roses in wine and rosy pink, accented with white miniature poinsettias, flocked babies' breath, cedar greenery and white lace.

Similar bouquets were carried by the bride's attendants: Sarah Krystosek, her sister, who was maid of honor; Kathy Krueter, a friend; Elizabeth Klemz, Cold Spring, a cousin; and Traci Walseth, a friend. All wore wine lustrous polyester knit gowns with collar, sleeves and yoke of a sheer nylon lace.

Flower girl was Kelly Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael D. Olson. She wore a frosty rose colored floor-length gown with wine lace accents. She carried a white lace basket filled with flowers matching those carried by the bride.

The rings were carried by the bride's seven-year-old brother, Simon Krystosek. He wore a charcoal gray Baron stroller tuxedo with matching vest, pin-striped pants and a champagne colored shirt with a band bow tie.

Best man was Mark C. Larson, a brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Allan Morkrid of this city, David Sorgaard, Fosston, and Tim Ostby, Moorhead, all friends of the groom. Eddie Krystosek, a brother of the bride; Brian Liden, Hazen, N.D.; Loren Lendobeja and David Hagen, Crookston, friends of the groom, served as ushers. The groom and his attendants wore Baron cutaway charcoal gray tuxedos and vests with winged collar champagne shirts, and charcoal gray band bow ties. The groom's trousers were pin striped and his attendants wore solid gray pants, as did the fathers and ushers, who were attired in charcoal gray Baron stroller tuxedos. All had wine colored carnations pinned on their lapels.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Krystosek selected a sleeveless peach colored gown with empire waistline, a pleated floor-length skirt and a matching capelet. Her corsage was of three wine roses with peach ribbon accents. A similar corsage with mauve ribbon accents complemented the mauve polyester blouson gown worn by the groom's mother.

Special guests were the groom's 94-year-old grandmother, Mrs. Marion Green, and a special friend of the bride's family, Mrs. Irene Reopelle.

The bride's personal attendant was her aunt and godmother, Corinne Klemz, Cold Spring.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception in the church parlors for approximately 200 relatives and friends. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Bud Johnson, friends of the bride's family, and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hamre, uncle and aunt of the groom. Shari Larson, a sister-in-law of the groom, was at the guest book as Mark and Peggy Samuels, Moorhead, friends of the couple, ladled the punch.

The three-tiered wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with wine roses, was topped by a cross and surrounded at the base by silk flowers, corresponding with those carried at the wedding. Between the tall pillars which supported the two upper tiers, were a miniature bride and groom and a lighted church. Wine colored streamers extended to inscribed heart-shaped cakes at the base. The cake was cut and served by Beverly Hamre and Tawnya Morkrid, aunt and cousin of the groom.

Mark Van Beek and Lori Engelking, Moorhead, friends of the couple, served the Scandinavian Kransekage decorated with flags denoting the bride and groom's nationalities.

Pouring coffee were Phyllis Green, Bismarck, N.D., and Gloria Larson, aunts of the groom. Elizabeth Thissen, Grand Rapids, great-aunt of the bride, pinned the flowers and Shirley Timm, a friend of the bride, was at the gift table. Waitresses were Jackie Hahn, Brenda Espeseth, Ann Lykken, Natalie Kaspari, Anita Wood and Kris Peterson, friends of the couple.

The evening prior to the ceremony, the groom's parents hosted a dinner at Lon's for the bridal party, Rev. Bourassa, Rev. and Mrs. Richard Larson, and the immediate families.

Following a wedding trip to Grand Forks, N.D.; Minneapolis, and Apple Valley, the couple is at home at 1831 15th Avenue S.E., Oakwood Court 5, St. Cloud. The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and Northland Community college, and is attending St. Cloud State university. The groom, a graduate of Lincoln high school, and Bemidji State university, is employed by Franklin Manufacturing, St. Cloud, as an industrial engineer. Photo, Richard Kennedy, Thief River Falls.

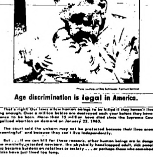
Congratulations go out to Janet Flateland and her husband, Randy Olson who got married before Christmas. Janet is the daughter of Howard and Sylvia Flateland.



Age discrimination is legal in America.

That's right! Our laws allow human beings to be killed if they haven't lived long enough. Over a million babies are destroyed each year before they have a chance to be born. More than 15 million have died since the Supreme Court legalized abortion on demand on January 22, 1973.

The court said the unborn may not be protected because their lives aren't "meaningful" and because they can't live independently.

But . . . if we can kill for these reasons, other human beings are in danger - the mentally retarded newborn, the physically handicapped adult, sick people who become burdens on relatives or society . . . or perhaps those who somebody thinks have just lived too long.

Help stop this deadly discrimination again the defenseless.

REPORT

From The Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

The Minnesota Miracle was revived in 1983, at least according to the news Governor Perpich delivered to both houses of the legislature in his state of the state address last week.

A year ago, the governor opened his state of the state address with the remark, "The state of the state is not good." In this year's address, he reported that the state had balanced its budget, paid off more than $500 million in old bills, improved its credit rating, and that Minnesota's unemployment rate had dropped from 10.4 per cent to 6.8 per cent.

The news was so good, in fact, that for the first time in five years, legislators will be faced with the prospect of lowering taxes rather than raising them. In his legislative program, Governor Perpich made the repeal of the 10 per cent income tax surcharge his most important proposal.

Now that the state is in the black, said the governor, the surcharge is no longer needed, and he urged lawmakers to repeal the surcharge on July 1 and return $230 million to the taxpayers. Current estimates of the budget surplus range from $500 million to $750 million.

The governor also proposed four other tax measures: repealing the unitary tax on corporations, transferring the six per cent motor vehicle excise tax from the general fund into the highway construction fund, adopting $10 million in tax incentives to encourage Minnesota businesses to enter world markets, and repealing the estate tax to encourage senior retired citizens to stay in Minnesota.

In addition, Governor Perpich said his bi-partisan tax commission will make a thorough review of the state tax structure and make recommendations to the 1985 legislature. "This will be the most thorough analysis of tax policy in 30 years," he said.

Combining his tax iniatives with restraint on spending, said Perpich, will "make Minnesota a competitive leader in this country."

In other areas, the governor recommended changes in all three branches of state government. He said a citizen commission will soon report on some options relating to constitutional offices. One of the ideas most often discussed is merging the offices of secretary of state, state auditor and state treasurer into a single elected office, such as auditor general.

In the judicial branch, Perpich said that a legislative commission has recommended unification of county and district courts. He indicated support for the recommendation. The governor also renewed his support for a reduction in the size of the legislature. Another key proposal in the governor's legislative program is revision of the unemployment compensation system. Although he did not make any specific recommendations, he urged lawmakers to adopt a plan that was "fiscally prudent and socially responsible."

The remainder of the state of the state address was devoted to outlining some long-term goals for Minnesota in education, agriculture, sports, interstate cooperation, art and the environment.

Specific goals include establishing a graduate school of international business at one of the state universities, developing the agri-processing industry, and upgrading sewage treatment plants throughout the state.

Despite the state's efforts to poise itself for the remainder of the 1980's and 1990's, the governor promised that Minnesota would not "abandon our commitment to those who need help the most — the handicapped, the elderly, the poor, and the unemployed, minorities who are victims of discrimination, and women who are underpaid solely because they are women."

The governor's message was upbeat and optimistic, and was well-received by legislators of both parties. He outlined a vision to move Minnesota into the 21st century and set the tone for a legislative session in which decisions will be made without the pressure of the past few years when the state was on a fiscal roller coaster.

Although legislators may disagree on specific proposals of the governor's program, the choices we make this session will all be positive: how to capitalize best on Minnesota's good health and build a future.

Loeslie Ends Term As Wheat Growers Prexy

year by plane, train, bus and car to conduct business of the national association. He estimates that he has been gone from home more than 250 of the 365 days in 1983. Asked how many days he spent without devoting at least some time to the wheat growers association during the year, his wife Gloriann estimates the number somewhere between three and five.

"It isn't proper to compare one national president with another," states Merle Hedland of the Minnesota Wheat Growers office in Red Lake Falls, "but we know that Don has done an exceptional job in representing our state and, I feel, the wheat growers of the nation during the past year. He can be proud of the effort he has exerted in fulfilling his duties." Loeslie is the first national president from a spring wheat producing state.

Indicative of the effort is one 10-day period during which Loeslie averaged less than three hours of sleep a night while traveling and meeting on wheat grower business. A combination of airport delays and meeting changes resulted in the marathon effort.

"I got back Saturday night from Rome," he explained, "then left Sunday afternoon for Minneapolis. From there I went to Denver, then to Boise, ID, back to Denver, to Minneapolis; to Winnipeg, on to Regina, Saskatchewan, back to Winnipeg; then to Toronto and on to Washington for several days of meetings and debates. I went through flight delays, flight cancellations, reservation confusion, having planes wait for me, displacing standby passengers who had already boarded, you name it. When things go wrong, they go wrong in bunches."

Through his year he emphasized the point that agriculture exports are not a cost program but a benefit program for farmers, agriculture related businesses and consumers. He appeared at a news conference at the Washington Press club with Ray Daniels of the Chase Manhattan bank where Daniels substantiated the figures showing a positive cost benefit from farm exports.

"I pursued that point in talking to the AFL-CIO union convention in Duluth," Loeslie said, "pointing out that 22 per cent of the jobs in the United States are related to agriculture although only three per cent of the nation's people are farmers. Twenty-five per cent of the farm income and 40 per cent of the farm production acreage is derived from exports. The plus factor of agricultural exports has been contained in a speech by President Reagan.

Loeslie said he believes it significant that the date for announcement of wheat programs has been advanced from January to July. The bill passed both houses of Congress but was vetoed by the President, he said. Because the association showed it had enough votes in Congress to override the veto (no Presidential veto by Reagan has been overturned by Congress), concession for the July announcement was made to begin in 1985.

Signing of the Soviet grain purchase agreement was cited by Loeslie as a highlight of his term, although the new "higher" levels are about the same as the amount that was embargoed several years ago. And the New York Times published a front page retraction of an earlier editorial position that the embargo was a useful tool in foreign policy, Loeslie added.

He predicts that trade will be a big issue in the election year and that agriculture will be in the forefront with food aid on center stage. Export of more food products would be more than a humanitarian effort for third world countries, Loeslie says, because it would be a job producer for the United States at home. He expects an increase in the Public Law 480 program which deals with foreign aid and trade.

"There are people who aren't comfortable with using our food reserve," Loeslie said. "I maintain that there is no need to have a food reserve if you don't use it when people are hungry."

While the national wheat growers recognize that virtually no program has a chance without administrative support, it is urging a compromise program with a 15 per cent set-aside, an extended but modified PIK program rather than a paid diversion, and a support price above the projected $3.30 which has been mentioned.

"A $3.30 support is a fail program," Loeslie says emphatically. "It fails the farmer and it fails the taxpayer." Current support rate is about $3.65 per bushel.

He said that agriculture, including the wheat association, took on the textile industry and the maritime unions and made considerable progress. "Agriculture has never been able to fight in that arena before," Loeslie said. "Alliance with agri-business which makes our voice represent 25 per cent of the people rather than three per cent is a significant factor in Washington."

He cited the positive public relations of the flour promotional program where cash or wheat in the amount of $435,000 was contributed toward feeding the nation's hungry, noting that providing 1,700,000 meals of macaroni to Cleveland, OH, was covered by television's "Today" show. Advancement of "Ag in the Classroom" program has resulted in many urban area students becoming familiar with what agriculture is and does and means.

The association was successful in preventing harmful actions from taking place — perhaps equally as important as securing passage of positive legislation. Loeslie lists continuing problems as efforts to keep embargoes and sanctions from being balanced on the farmers' back, further reducing interest rates which are still too high, addressing illegal subsidies to the EEC, attention to bilateral agreements between rival exporters and correction of the present farm program.

In four years as a member of the association, Loeslie has served as a national officer for three years — an unprecedented situation. Although there has been a monumental upheaval in traditional family living for the past year, the experiences gained by all family members have been an offset.

"I've never been one to look back," Loeslie said about leaving his national position. "Everybody likes to be consulted for their opinion. This past year has been a pretty emotional high. But I'm behind on a lot of things at home and around the farm, I want to try to replace some of the time I've taken from my wife and our 13-year-old daughter, and there are other options that may be presented in the future."

Loeslie has been serving as first vice president of the Minnesota Wheat Growers association (Harry Howard of Warren is in his second year as president) and could advance to the presidency of the state organization in 1985. There are other positions with the national organization which could become available.

What about political ambitions? Loeslie maintains that he has none, although there is the distinct impression that a gentle push might be all that it would take to get him involved.

"I feel confident that I could handle political office and I believe in the system," he admits. "Two-thirds of it is real solid and some self-serving seems necessary to get reelected. I sort of agree with Hubert Humphrey who once said: 'Never say no, just be careful how you say yes.' And if people have to ask me which political party I would affiliate with (we did ask him), all I can say is that if they have to ask I must be doing a pretty fair job."

Loeslie says he can't put a value on his year of experience with the association, the contacts he has made, the people he has been able to meet, the places he has been permitted to go. The job carried no salary, only payment of expenses, and ". . if you donate your time, people are willing to take a lot of it," he said.

"I said when I took the job that I would put everybody else's farm ahead of my own," he said. "We made some errors in our operation last year that cost us a good deal of money; errors that I would like to think wouldn't have happened if I had been giving full time to the farm. But we have been blessed with having very good people to help us or the errors could have been catastrophic."

In summary, though, the year of frenetic activity boils down to this statement: "I know I got back a whole lot more than I gave."

Farm Bureau Project Wins Special Award

Minnesota Farm Bureau's first care program has won the special projects award sponsored by the American Farm Bureau federation at its 65th annual meeting in Orlando, FL.

A program designed to meet the emergency medical needs of rural Minnesotans, first care has provided emergency training to thousands of Minnesotans. Working with Dr. Van Beek, from North Memorial hospital in the Twin Cities, first care organizes training meetings put on by trained medical personnel in local areas. These medical personnel are trained by Dr. Van Beek personally, and are then available for meetings in their area.

Initiated by the women's committee of the MFBF, Chairman Jean Fellows of Worthington says that "It's with great pleasure that we see first care win this prestigious award. We're proud that first care has proven to be a success, and we're even more proud that we can help save limbs and lives."

Special projects award is given annually to a state Farm Bureau that has sponsored a project over and above traditional Farm Bureau programs, and that has achieved a wide spread following in that state.

First care is available through local county Farm Bureau organizations, and more information can be obtained by contacting your county farm bureau.

Child Print Program To Be Offered Here

Froschheiser also encourages parents to attach a current photo of the child to the fingerprint card, and to update the description of the child (height and weight) on the card each year.

There are 980 students in kindergarten through fifth grade in the Thief River Falls public schools, according to school enrollment figures. The Minnesota chiefs of police association has distributed more than 250,000 cards for use in the program so far.

"Naturally, we hope the cards will never have to be used because a child is lost, kidnapped, runs away or meets with an accident," Chief Froschheiser said. "But we receive reports of these situations at our law enforcement center every day, and there may well be instances where the availability of the information on the card can be of assistance in finding or identifying a child."

The Operation Child Print card contains a listing of procedure to follow if a child is missing.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District I

In less than two months, 201 state legislators — 67 Senators and 134 House Representatives — will convene for the second meeting of the 1983-84 state legislature's 73rd session.

Whereas the 1983 session was a long, five-month affair dealing primarily with state biennial budget issues, the upcoming session is intended to be much shorter (March 6-April 19) and will focus on a wider array, but smaller number of bills introduced by lawmakers.

The watchword for the next session will be "prudence," chiefly since the state has recently concluded a series of six special sessions over the past three years called to deal with repeated budget and state financial crises. As a result, and in view of the fact we will have a "projected budget surplus" by June, 1985, there will be much debate over any and all spending bills offered to us.

One particular piece of legislation that will emerge this session will be the unemployment insurance fund debt. Presently, this fund is over $335 million in debt to the federal government and something must be done soon to balance it. A non-partisan task force composed of labor and business representatives is currently meeting on this issue and will be reporting back to the legislature with its recommendations for change prior to the session's start.

Another issue that will be addressed is the proposal to accelerate the transfer of state excise taxes on new vehicle sales to the transportation fund instead of the general fund.

In the area of commerce, the governor is likely to propose some broad-sweeping, deregulation bills for the banking industry, and there is a chance the "Buy Minnesota" bill passed during the 1983 session will either be repealed or modified in some way.

In the area of agriculture, we are looking at some recommendations by a joint legislative commission calling for statewide land preservation and conservation programs, in addition to some possible help for new or young farmers in getting started in the business.

There will be various proposals to reduce property, income and other taxes, in light of the proposed budget surpluses by the end of the biennium, which will likely be debated throughout the session. The repeal of the 10 per cent income tax surcharge, reducing income taxes on one wage-earner families and providing additional property tax relief are just a few of the issues we will confront.

A number of judiciary-related bills will be considered, such as changing the sentencing guidelines, strengthening the DWI laws, passing an equal rights amendment and ensuring children protection from parental kidnapping, sexual abuse and drug abuse.

Local government bills concerning township designation may be introduced, and natural resource measures could include a landfill tax bill, provisions to control high and low-level radioactive wastes and grants for wastewater treatment facilities, among others.

General legislation bills expected to be considered include a statewide lottery bill proposed by the governor. An election measure that would study the size and make-up of the legislature and party designation during elections may be considered, as will a bill to combine certain constitutional offices into one office.

I would like to encourage local legislative input into this process, and I urge you to contact me with your suggestions at 306 Capitol Building, St. Paul, MN, 55155 or call (612) 296-8660.

Stops Differ In Front-Wheel Drive Cars

Since last winter, many drivers have acquired front wheel drive vehicles. Now that winter's here again, those new front wheel drive vehicle drivers should be aware that some new techniques are needed for their new cars.

Conventional driving wisdom says to deal with a skidding car by easing off the gas while steering in the direction you want to go. This however, won't work completely with the new front wheel drive vehicles!

With a conventional car, letting up on the gas slows the engine, creating a drag on the rear wheels. To get the same effect with a front wheel drive vehicle, the driver must step lightly on the gas pedal, in order to pull the car out of the skid.

If either kind of vehicle starts to skid, don't slam the brakes: braking will increase the velocity of the skid and cause greater loss of control. Don't brake until you regain steering control. Instead, turn the steering wheel in the direction you want your car to.

In situations where there isn't enough road room for front wheel drive vehicle drivers to step on the gas, the driver may elect to disengage the transmission by jamming the clutch or shifting into neutral. This alternative could, however, prove extremely dangerous if it caused the driver to take his or her attention from the road or inadvertently shift into reverse!

Front wheel drive vehicles equipped with radial tires may not need snow tires. But snow tires, if used, must be installed on the front on drive wheels of such vehicles. On conventional cars, of course, snow tires are mounted on the rear wheels.

Whatever the kind of tire, check frequently for pressure and wear, the Minnesota safety council advises. Additional maneuverability and extra traction inherent in front wheel drive vehicles is caused by the weight of the engine resting directly on the drive wheels. This, however, may translate into extra tire wear.

Of course, when roads are slippery drivers should reduce speeds and follow other cars at a safe distance, thus reducing the need for braking and the likelihood of skidding, reminds the safety council.

Remember that it takes at least three times as much distance to stop on ice or snow as on dry pavement. When stopping on slippery surfaces, "feather" the brakes gently rather than slamming on them.

Dairymens Day Held Recently At Crookston

Northwestern Minnesota Dairymen's Day, held at the University of Minnesota's Northwest experiment station in Crookston, January 10, was attended by over 200 dairymen from surrounding counties, who heard research reports and the latest aspects of the milk marketing program recently put in place by the federal government.

Dr. George Marx discussed several important projects which have been implemented through the 60-cow dairy herd at the Northwest experiment station. Marx explained that milk-o-meters weigh the milk at each daily milking and feed is weighed and recorded daily for each cow. He reported further on trials which compared high-moisture ear corn to high-moisture shelled corn in the dairy ration. Conclusions of the two-year study are still being determined.

Dr. Robert Appleman, department of animal science, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, presented two sessions. His first, regarding ideas for profit in dairying, pointed out that along with concern for profit, every dairy farmer must be aware of the overproduction of milk in the United States. The national surplus of 12 per cent just about equals the production of Minnesota, according to Appleman, and if all the cows in Minnesota dried up, it would just about balance the national surplus.

Naturally, since all the dairy farmers in Minnesota are not going to pick up the national overage, Appleman advised dairymen to keep as flexible as possible by signing up for at least an eight per cent cut and close to the maximum at 27 per cent. Production cuts will be based on the 1982 average for most calculations but it is possible to average 1981-82 production. Return over variable costs will have to be analyzed more carefully in the near future and any unvariable costs that can be cut will have to be determined. Appleman warned farmers not to dribble off rations over a long period of time to reduce output on a dairy herd, but recommended drying cows off sooner to meet production quotas.

Dr. Charles Young, department of animal science, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, spoke on milk marketing and the economic factors associated with marketing regulations.

Marlyn Jacobson, assistant dairy scientist, Northwest experiment station, Crookston, reported on his experiences with an animal science group from Minnesota at the University of Damascus, Syria, teaching Syrian students and research personnel how to establish a reliable research herd.

Prior to the contract with University of Minnesota, the University of Damascus had only 18 assorted cows with which to establish a research base. Fifty bred heifers from Minnesota, Wisconsin and Ohio were selected by University personnel and flown to Syria for the new group. Johnson said good progress was made with the dairy herd management system and techniques taught. He hoped that relations with Syria might be improved because of it, and said the relationship should be continued.

Marsha Dahlgren, dairywoman in partnership with her brother David at Roseau, reported on their successful operation. Marsha said they decided in 1981 to build a barn for 50 or 60 cows on their parents' farm and get into the dairy business with modern facilities. They built two 20x70 silos as well, and a large concrete lot so they could install a feedbunk for youngstock. In the 60-stall barn they decided on a tie-stall system. A calf nursery with individual ties for each calf is completely shut off from the barn and has its own environment for better disease management. Large office area with bathroom and shower were also part of the unit. Marsha indicated that their production records and ability to run a profitable herd were a result of the way they had planned the new facilities but added that they fit in with management objectives which they had set prior to planning.

BSU Gallerie To Feature Nature Photos

Wild flowers of Minnesota will be the highlight of a nature photography exhibit January 30 to February 17 in the Touche' gallerie of the C.V. Hobson memorial union on the Bemidji state university campus. Gallery hours are 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Ralph Magnuson, professor of elementary education at BSU, and Del Blowers, secondary English teacher at Clearbrook, will display 50 photographs from their floral and wildlife collections. Orchids, found mainly in peat bogs, will be the focus of the exhibit which will include many of the 40 varieties found in Minnesota.

Magnuson and Blowers do much of their photography in the peat bogs of northern Minnesota. Blowers, who has taught in Clearbrook for 26 years, owns a farm which contains a tamarack bog. "The acid bogs are the most delightful places a photographer can go. They contain such a rare beauty that the average person doesn't realize", he said.

Magnuson has been teaching for 44 years and lives near Solway. He has a darkroom in his room and does his own color printing. Photography became one of his interests in 1945. "Photography has changed drastically since I began, materials and equipment are better and cheaper, and there is more information available. It's easy to teach yourself photography," said the self-taught photographer. Expensive equipment is not necessary and he said that some of his best pictures were taken with a simple low cost camera and lens.

Blowers also has his own darkroom and has been involved with photography for 35 years. He said that more people are interested in photography today because of the availability of the single lens reflex camera at a lower price and the improved quality of equipment.

Photographers often travel together on bog excursions. They said that they have traveled as far as 100 miles on an afternoon outing to search for new breeds of orchids and other flowers. Magnuson said, "If you want to photograph orchids you should expect to feed a lot of mosquitoes."

For additional information on the exhibit contact Linda Blanchard, Touche' gallerie director, C.V. Hobson memorial union, BSU, Bemidji, MN 56601 (218-755-3760).

State Turkey Growers Raise 26 Million

Minnesota growers intend to raise 26 million turkeys in 1984, down four per cent from the previous year. If these intentions are realized, heavy turkeys raised will total 24.8 million, up six per cent and light breeds at 1.2 million will be down 66 per cent. Minnesota will rank as the second leading state in production with North Carolina first at 30.6 million turkeys intended to be raised in 1984 and California third at 19.8 million.

During 1983, growers in Minnesota raised 27 million, a record production and up four per cent from 1982. Heavy breed turkeys accounted for 23.5 million, up eight per cent, while light breeds dropped 19 per cent to 3.5 million birds. Minnesota ranked second behind North Carolina's production of 28.7 million turkeys.

On Dec. 1, 1983, Minnesota turkey growers had 443,000 breeder hens on hand, down 15 per cent from the previous year. The average value of Minnesota breeder hens on Dec. 1, 1983 was estimated at $21.60, up $5.90 from the previous year. Minnesota's total breeder hen flock was valued at $9.6 million compared with $8.2 million in 1982, up 17 per cent.

Turkey gorwers in 20 major producing states intend to raise 167 million turkeys in 1984, up two per cent from the 164 million in 1983, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. The number of turkeys actually raised in 1984 may vary from growers' intentions shown in this report depending on feed prices, supply and prices of hatching eggs and poults, available financing and prices growers receive for turkeys during the next few months.

During 1983, turkeys raised in the United States (32 states), at 170 million, increased three per cent from the 1982 level of 165 million. Heavy breed turkeys totaled 164 million, up five per cent from a year earlier, but light breeds totaled 5.96 million, down 27 per cent.

Turkey breeder hens on Dec. 1, 1983 in 24 states totaled 3.16 million, down eight per cent from Dec. 1, 1982. Heavy breed hens totaled 3.08 million, a decrease of six per cent from a year earlier, and light breed hens totaled 73,000, down 51 per cent from the previous year.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

If thousands of children were wiped out accidentally by some illness or disease, society would be mobilized immediately to find the cause and stop it. During the last 11 years, millions of our children have been killed methodically and deliberately by abortion. More lives have been destroyed by abortion in this country than Americans killed in all our country's wars combined.

Abortions are now allowed at any time before birth. These babies have been legally destroyed because they were unwanted or inconvenient.

We should start initiating some more constructive solutions to the problems of women facing untimely pregnancies that would not involve the killing of the most innocent and defenseless members of our human family.

January 22, 1984 marks the 11th anniversary of the Supreme Court's decision to legalize abortion.

Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life (MCCL) and other pro-life groups across the country are working to change the Supreme Court decision and to build a society where both mothers and babies can live and have their rights protected. MCCL has a local chapter in the Newfolden area and we urge those who would desire a change in the Supreme Court's decision to join us.

Thank you,
Marge Olson

Child Safety Law Supported By Volunteers

Even the staunchest supporters of Minnesota's child passenger safety seat law, now two years old, have misgivings about how obstacles to the realization of the law's life-saving potential might be overcome.

Two major obstacles were seen to be public apathy toward the use of car passenger safety restraints and the financial burden that the purchase of child safety seats impose on financially disadvantaged families.

However, notable progress is being made in both respects, according to John Shaffer, director of the Minnesota occupant restraints program, a state-level, federally-funded educative and coordinating body that is part of the Minnesota safety council.

Remarkably, most of the progress has been made in the time-honored self-help way by volunteer groups actively enlisting community resources at hand to further their good cause. Typically involved in these efforts are local businesses, civic organizations, hospitals, schools, churches, the news media and units of municipal government.

To help the economically disadvantaged, child passenger safety seat loaner and rental programs are sprouting up all over Minnesota. They are run by hospitals, clinics, social clubs, civic organizations and other interest groups, who charge only a small deposit and rental fee for use of the safety seats.

"Large corporations are now beginning to take part, too," said Shaffer. United telephone has a rental-loaner program for its employees. Northwestern Bell procured child safety seats for its employees at cost. League general insurance company gives two child safety seats to its customers, free of charge and will provide more in case of multiple births."

Fact that the number of infants properly restrained in car safety seats was up during the annual survey of more than 5,000 motor vehicles last summer, was cited as a hopeful sign by Shaffer. In the most absolute of terms, statistics from the state office of traffic safety show that six children under three years of age were killed in traffic accidents this year compared to 12 in 1982.

February Set As Lifesaver Month In MN

Governor Perpich will proclaim February 1 to 29 as operation lifesaver month in Minnesota. Operation lifesaver, an active, continuing program designed to decrease car-train crashes through public education, engineering and enforcement, is spearheaded by the Minnesota safety council in cooperation with the department of public safety, the department of transportation and the Minnesota railroads association.

Goals of Operation Lifesaver Month in Minnesota are:

—to reduce deaths and injuries caused by car-train crashes in this state;

—to inform Minnesotans of the dangers in railroad-crossing accidents and to let them know that such accidents can be prevented but that citizens must act responsibly for grade-crossing safety to be achieved;

—to encourage public and railroad policies intended to reduce the number of railroad-crossing accidents.

Activities planned during operation lifesaver month include guest appearances on radio and television shows throughout Minnesota.

There also will be t-shirt quizzes on Minnesota rock radio stations. Simple questions on grade-crossing safety will be asked persons who call in. Those who answer correctly will receive operation lifesaver t-shirts.

Also during February, the winners of the first annual grade-crossing safety editorial contest will be announced.

21 Nonprofit Organizations Given Grants

Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) has recommended 21 private nonprofit organizations throughout the state to receive federal grants for purchase of vehicles to transport the mobility impaired and the elderly.

Federal funds totaling $431,676 were approved for the 21 organizations representing 17 counties to purchase vehicles varying in size from 11-passenger vans to more than 30-passenger school buses.

Organizations must provide 20 per cent of the vehicle costs and all operating expenses with federal funds covering the remaining 80 per cent of the vehicle purchase price.

Mn-DOT's office of transit administers the grant under the urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964.

Ag Statistics Service Gives '84 Forecast

Minnesota agricultural statistics service has prepared and published what it calls "a quick look at what's ahead for 1984" as follows:

Farm Income: Look for continued recovery in the farm financial picture. Net farm income in 1984 should range between $29 and $34 billion, versus $22 and $24 billion in 1983. Keep tabs on the following because they'll affect income this year: World ag production, participation by U.S. farmers in government programs; input use; capital purchases; interest rates; price of inputs; and demand for farm products.

Crops: After a year of PIK, we're looking at an increase in crop production. Smaller feed grain and soybean crops have strengthened prices. These prices will be affected by the prospective '84 crop, so a lot of attention will be focused on what farmers intend to plant this year. Watch for our prospective plantings report late next month.

Livestock: Record U.S. meat supplies are pushing down prices to livestock producers. Beef and pork output will probably fall off in 1984 but poultry might take up some of the slack, exceeding 1983 levels despite higher feed costs. Consequently, meat supplies in the 2nd half of 1984 may still be the third highest on record.

Dairy: The new dairy bill, a big controversy last year, goes into effect this year. Designed to cut back on milk production, the bill's impact on meat prices will be closely watched as more dairy cows are expected to go to slaughter. It's estimated that each 100,000-head increase in dairy cow slaughter would raise red meat supplies 67 to 70 million pounds and would have a negative impact on livestock and poultry prices.

Exports: A better year is in the offing, with a 12 per cent increase in export values now forecast. Export volume, however, will be about five million metric tons lower.

Inputs: Because of the expected increase in plantings this year, fertilizer and pesticide use should rise significantly.

Retail Food Prices: The slow-but-sure gains in retail food prices over the past few years should gain momentum with a 4 to 7 per cent increase above 1983 now expected. Prices will be propelled upward by continued higher marketing costs, small gains in farm prices, and heavier consumer demand.

State Auditor Summarizes City Finance Reports

In releasing the annual report on the revenues, expenditures and debt of cities for 1982, state auditor Carlson noted significant changes in revenue sources from those in the 1981 report.

"Intergovernmental revenue, the single largest source of funds for Minnesota cities, decreased in 1982," Carlson said. "Local taxes — property, sales and excise, and franchise — increased $50 million or 16.1 per cent over 1981." Intergovernmental revenues primarily include funds from the state and federal governments.

"The overall picture shows intergovernmental revenues decreasing from 43 per cent of total revenues in 1981 to 40 per cent in 1982, while local tax revenues increased from 23 per cent of total revenues in 1981 to 26 per cent in 1982," Carlson said.

"This is a significant change for one year and one which local officials and this office are watching closely," Carlson said.

He noted that the increase in local tax revenues more than made up for decreases in intergovernmental revenues, indicating a potential trend toward local self-reliance.

According to the report, in 1982 federal aids to cities decreased $19.7 million and county aids decreased $1.5 million, while other intergovernmental aids decreased $5.4 million. Total state aids remained almost steady. On the other hand, local property, franchise and sales tax revenues increased $50 million to a total of $363 million. Tax revenues were the second largest source of city revenues in 1982.

"Expenditure patterns also changed in 1982 in several categories," Carlson said. "Public safety replaced streets and highways as the largest single expenditure category, with an increase of $19 million over 1981. Interest costs increased $15 million, while parks and recreation expenditures decreased $15 million."

"There was a time when city revenue and expenditure patterns showed only gradual, incremental changes from year to year," Carlson said. "But over the past several years, these patterns have been changing with sufficient speed to make city financial management a more complex, demanding task."

The auditor's report of revenues, expenditures and debt of the cities is a comprehensive, 170-page document compiled annually from the annual financial reports of the 855 cities.

"Changes in nationally recommended accounting and reporting procedures caused some considerable variances in the 1981 and 1982 expenditure figures," Carlson explained. "The 72 per cent decrease in sanitation costs in the governmental funds in 1982 is mainly attributable to these accounting changes. The increases of $25 million (61 per cent in capital outlay for enterprises — mainly water and sewer, and the $39 million (54 per cent) in urban redevelopment and housing were the two largest increases in the expenditure categories. However, these increases are also chiefly explained by accounting and reporting changes."

Other highlights of the 1982 report include these findings:

—In addition to intergovernmental revenue and taxes, city revenue sources include special assessments (decreased $7.3 million from 1981 collections), interest (decreased $4.1 million), and charges for services (increased $1.5 million). Special assessments amounted to 11.3 per cent of total revenues, while interest earnings and charges for services provide 8.5 per cent and five per cent, respectively.

—Of total governmental fund expenditures in 1982, the largest share, 22.8 per cent, was for public safety. Streets and highways were 22.1 per cent of the total, general government 9.3 per cent, park and recreation 8.5 per cent and interest expense nine per cent.

—Governmental fund revenues for cities totaled $1.38 billion while expenditures were $1.35 billion. The three cities of the first class (Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Paul) show revenues of $513 million and expenditures of $527 million. These revenues and expenditures equal 37.1 per cent of the total city revenues and 39 per cent of the total city expenditures.

—Cities with populations under 2,500 had revenues of $134.6 million or 9.7 per cent of total revenues, and expenditures of $128 million or 9.5 per cent of total expenditures.

—Total bonded indebtedness of the cities in Minnesota amounted to $2.43 billion or $776.75 per capita. This is an increase of $223 million or 10.1 per cent over 1981. Total borrowing (short-term, long-term and bonded) in 1982 was $18.1 million greater than in 1981. This is an increase of 5.8 per cent.

—Comparing the 1982 year to 1981, enterprises services (financed through user charges) reported lower net incomes in six out of nine categories. Water, heat and gas utilities had greater net incomes this year than last. However, of the 675 water utilities, 251 (37 per cent) showed a net loss for the year. Fifty-three per cent of heat utilities and 11 per cent of gas utilities also showed net losses in 1982.

"Many cities will be taking a closer look at their enterprises," Carlson continued. "Currently, there are too many of them operating with subsidies from their city. Enterprises should be self-supporting.

"The Minnesota financial health program, a service provided by this office, can assist municipalities in monitoring changing revenue and expenditure trends and in detecting areas of fiscal stress," Carlson said.

MFU Requests Wheat Program Improvements

The U.S. senate, led by Minnesota Senators David Durenberger (with his interest in the national well-being) and Rudy Boschwitz (with his leadership role as a member of the senate agriculture committee), both Republicans, should take the initiative to bring to the senate floor a wheat program amendment offered by their colleagues. Amendment should be debated for improvement, according to members of the Minnesota Farmers Union board of directors meeting in St. Paul recently.

The directors, representing every county Farmers Union organization in the state, said the amendment authored by Senators Robert Dole, R-Kan., and Thomas Foley, D-Wash., offers three positive improvements to the wheat program.

However, the amendment also proposes a freeze on wheat target prices at their 1983 level, which should be totally rejected, the board members said.

Three improvements offered by the Dole-Foley amendment would reduce from 30 to 15 per cent the amount of "voluntary acreage reduction" required of participating farmers; would allow farmers to place an additional 25 per cent of their wheat base acreage into the 1984 payment-in-kind program; and would increase PIK payments from 75 to 85 per cent of established yield.

"It has already become evident that wheat farmers are planning to plant fence row to fence row," the directors said. "With huge plantings planned just one year after a successful production reduction program and a devastating drought, this program could completely undo the stockpile reduction that was accomplished in 1983 and drive down prices received by farmers while input costs continue to rise.

"Reducing the voluntary acreage reduction requirements would make this program attractive enough to most farmers that they would want to participate. And increasing the PIK possibilities would reduce plantings and help keep supplies more in balance with demand," the directors said.

Amendment would also increase PIK yield payments from 75 to 85 per cent of the established normal yield.

Signup for the 1984 wheat program will close February 24. Because of time limitations, without a push from senators representing agricultural states, as Durenberger and Boschwitz do, no action is likely.

"We urge congress to take the initiative and provide common sense direction to agriculture. The senate must exert its rightful responsibility since the Reagan-Block administration has shown it will not," the directors said.

Any proposal, including this Dole-Foley amendment, allows for debate and improvement by the full senate.

"Following the collosal horror story of the 1983 PIK program where congress was not involved, the payment limitation law was wrongfully not enforced, and the cost factor has threatened the very existence of future farm programs, there is a growing concern and reluctance on the part of farmers to participate in any federal farm program. This clearly illustrates that this administration can no longer be allowed to dictate to farmers and discredit their programs. Instead, congress must do the job of formulating solid farm policy," the board members said.

As it now stands, the 1984 wheat program calls for farmers to voluntarily reduce their planted acreage by 30 per cent in order to be eligible for a loan rate of $3.30 per bushel and a target price of $4.45 per bushel. Farmers wishing to participate in the 1984 wheat PIK program must further reduce their planted acreage by 10 to 20 per cent in return for a payment of 75 per cent of their established yield. There is no paid diversion for 1984.

1983 Traffic Deaths Lowest Since 1949

Minnesota department of public safety preliminary traffic fatality figures for 1983 reveal a slight reduction from the previous year, resulting in the lowest death toll since 1949. This reduction is a continuation of a trend which shows traffic crash fatalities dropping by over 480 deaths from 980 in 1978 to 580 in 1983.

Preliminary figures as of December 31, 1983 show 543 traffic fatalities compared with a 1982 preliminary tally for the same date of 554. Included in the preliminary 1983 fatalities were 59 pedestrians, 73 motorcyclists and 14 bicyclists. Standard traffic accident reporting procedure in Minnesota allows for a 90 day cut off for fatal accident reports to be received from local reporting agencies. Final fatality figures for 1983 are still being compiled and are expected to go up about 25 or 30. Final fatal total for 1982 was 581.

Since 1949 the highest number of traffic fatalities for one year occurred in 1968 when there were 1060 deaths reported. The toll in 1949 was 580.

Chief Roger Ledding of the Minnesota state patrol, a division of the department of public safety, said the lower fatality figures are very encouraging. "Looking at this year's total from a long range perspective, we'd have to say that voluntary compliance with the 55 mph speed limit is an extremely important factor, as are the patrol and local law enforcement efforts in getting the drunk driver off the road. If we continue to emphasize these areas in enforcement and public education campaigns, while increasing the number of drivers remembering to buckle up their safety belts whenever they drive, we could continue to see significant traffic crash reductions," said Ledding. The 55 mph speed limit took effect on March 2, 1974.

Road deaths in other years were: 1982 — 581; 1981 — 763; 1980 — 863; 1979 — 881; 1978 — 980; 1977 — 856; 1976 — 809; 1975 — 777; 1974 — 852; 1973 — 1024.

Metro Folks Favor State Waste Treatment Funds

Strong support exists among residents of the seven-county Twin Cities metropolitan area for state financial support for the cost of building facilities to treat or process hazardous industrial wastes, according to the results of a survey conducted in November by the Minnesota center for social research (MCSR), a research unit of the University of Minnesota's sociology department.

In the survey, the 1,101 residents polled were informed that about three-fourths of Minnesota's hazardous wastes are generated in the Twin Cities metropolitan area, and were asked: "It has been proposed that the state pay part of the cost of building hazardous waste treatment facilities. Would you support or oppose an arrangement of this type?"

Of those surveyed, 733, or 67 per cent, said they would support that arrangement, while 282, or 26 per cent, said they would oppose it. Seven per cent did not know or did not answer.

When those who supported state subsidies were further questioned as to the source of such subsidies, 403 — or 55 per cent of those supporting subsidies — favored a tax on industry; 95, or 13 per cent, favored general state taxes; and 133, or 18 per cent, favored a combination of the two tax sources.

The question was part of an "omnibus" survey conducted by the MCSR on the hazardous waste issue and a variety of other topics. The Minnesota waste management board was one of several public, institutional and corporate co-sponsors of the survey, including the University of Minnesota's sociology department.

The margin of error for the poll — which consisted of random telephone interviews — is plus or minus three per cent. The survey sample was generally representative of the Twin Cities area's population according to age, income brackets, marital status, race, employment, education and other factors.

The survey differentiated between facilities for the secure disposal or containment of hazardous wastes and industrial facilities to process or treat hazardous wastes prior to disposal. (The Minnesota waste management board is considering eight potential siting areas in Minnesota for a secure hazardous waste disposal or long-term storage facility, and has identified 21 "preferred areas" — including 13 areas in the Twin Cities metro area — where it is encouraging the establishment of commercial hazardous waste processing facilities.)

When asked "should places to process hazardous wastes be located in the Twin Cities metro area, or not?" 34 per cent said such facilities should be sited in the Twin Cities, 56 per cent said they should not and 10 per cent did not know.

Of those surveyed, 72 per cent rated hazardous wastes as a "very important" issue facing the people of Minnesota, 24 per cent said the issue is "pretty important" and four per cent said either that the issue was not very important, not at all important or did not know.

In addition, 85 per cent of those surveyed indicated that over the past two years they have heard something about the siting of hazardous waste facilities in Minnesota.

In addition to siting hazardous waste facilities the waste management board is developing an overall state hazardous waste management plan for Minnesota, which will recommend state hazardous waste policies and outline specific programs to encourage hazardous waste reduction and the establishment of treatment plants and other alternatives to hazardous waste land-disposal facilities.

Included in the draft hazardous waste management plan issued by the board December 21 are recommended state programs to provide financial incentives for the establishment of hazardous waste processing facilities — including grants for facility feasibility studies and loans for facility development — as well as other incentives to encourage hazardous waste reduction by industry.

The draft hazardous waste management plan is to be discussed at a public hearing beginning at 9 a.m. January 16 in Room 112, State Capitol Building, St. Paul. Following a 10-day public comment period and a report by another state agency the waste management board will further revise the draft plan before submitting it, and its recommended programs, to the 1984 session of the Minnesota legislature.

VFM Program Is Aided By Mardag Grant

A $8,000 grant has been awarded to the Minnesota office on volunteer services (MOVS) by the Mardag foundation of St. Paul. Reception of this grant completes the funding for Volunteer for Minnesota: A project for developing public-private partnerships in communities (VFM). Other contributors to the project have included foundations, corporations, state agencies and private individuals.

Volunteer for Minnesota is the first project of its kind in the country. It is designed to help communities get the maximum benefit of citizen involvement through the development of partnerships, coalitions, and teamwork.

Benefits of VFM include the enhancement of a community's ability to meet its needs with available resources; development of self-sustaining and active community coalitions; creation of incentives to increase citizen involvement in the community; and development of a cooperative partnership between public and private resources.

Accomplishments of the project have included the development of handbooks and two, day long workshops on the topics of "solving community problems by building community partnerships," and "volunteer program management." Each were conducted eight times on a regional basis throughout Minnesota. In total, they attracted 910 registrants from 187 communities.

Planning for VFM has been accomplished by a fifty member planning committee. Its membership represents a wide variety of state and local organizations.

Leadership and staff support for the project have been provided by the Minnesota office on volunteer services, a division of the state department of administration.

MOVS was established in 1975. It encourages the effective coordination and channeling of voluntary action to improve the quality of life for Minnesota citizens. Office provides statewide leadership and supportive services to volunteer leaders to initiate, expand, and improve the contributions of volunteers.

Mardag Foundation makes grants to organizations located in and operating primarily in Minnesota. Its primary areas of emphasis have been programs to benefit senior citizens, education, conservation of resources, social services, and cultural heritage of the arts.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hottis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

A class of air force cadets selected as their motto, "Never underestimate the power of the enlisted man." They were very perceptive, understanding that achieving any success, after they were second lieutenants, would require the cooperation and support of a team.

They learned how to communicate, and the need to do so regularly, not just when a problem arises. They recognized the need to keep intelligent team members (everyone from management to the newest laborer) informed as to the objectives and techniques to be used in achieving those goals. They understood that honesty and a straight approach was necessary, or they would lose the confidence of their teammates.

They knew that the right to issue orders, enforce discipline and promote or demote, would not, by itself, produce good results. There was a need for a sincere interest. They also knew that deceit, speaking with a "forked tongue," or downright dishonesty, would kill any real chance for long term success.

Being straught and true has one other significant advantage. Most of us do not have good enough memories to be effective liars.

Recently I visited a distant city to speak to its business leaders. When my program was completed, some of the people started discussing with me a strike that had torn their city apart. The company, the largest employer in town, had been closed down for months by a strike. Everything has progressed from an anger stage to a deep hate. No one was willing to talk. Communication was occurring in newspaper and radio interviews, ads and letters.

Business leaders were concerned about the big loss in sales to workers who no longer had pay checks. The plant manager was upset because he knew that sooner or later responsibility had to be affixed, and he was management's representative on the spot. The union leader said that everything had gotten out of hand, and he was concerned about keeping his job if concessions were made. They were all looking for an instant answer that would satisfy everyone. There was no instant answer to a problem that might have taken years to develop.

The young plant manager had been on the job for about a year. He had come directly from a prestigious graduate school and had taken courses in labor relations and personnel management as part of an MBA program after finishing engineering courses. He thought he was prepared for his job. He learned quickly that he had big problems. He found that some of his problems stemmed from an education based upon no experience (Not one of his teachers had ever been out in the real world practicing personnel management and labor relations, getting all of their "education" from textbooks, many of which were written by authors with no practical experience!).

At some time it would have been helpful if he had been exposed to a real-life situation and observed what it takes to resolve issues before they get "red hot." It might even have been useful if one of his teachers had lived with labor and personnel management, getting a degree or two from the "college of hard knocks." This might even give us a hint as to one possible reason for the failure of our higher education system in training students for vocations.

What is the secret to success in personnel management and labor relations?

Continuing truthful and significant two-way communications with employees (and, where applicable, their union leaders) all of the time (including the entire contract period, not just before contract negotiations) is that secret. If concessions are needed, it takes months to teach the business facts of life. Honest facts (straight talk), given time, can help to solve problems.

If it is true that most American workers are only producing up to half of their capacity, and managers are concerned and capable, with some trust and time problems can be solved that will let business be competitive and survive. If managers would spend more time listening and talking to their co-workers, I believe the payoff would be shocking.

In more than 25 years of negotiating and living with labor union agreements, I never had a strike, work stoppage or labor problem that could not be resolved. I never "paid off" anyone or caved in to demands that could kill a business. I even negotiated a "giveback" contract with the auto workers before that term was used. My secret was continuing communication.

That air force cadet class was right, "never underestimate the power of the enlisted man," because, properly motivated, it's amazing what he can achieve.

That's Straight Talk!

You know that the United States is experiencing a two hundred billion dollar federal deficit (spending that much more in one year than it takes in). With continuing big deficits and a trillion dollar debt, our congressmen have just given another $8,400,000,000 to foreign countries as loans that they will probably never be repaid.

Western bankers, businessmen and politicians have spent years inducing other nations to live well beyond what they can afford, buying goods and services that we produce and sell. Since most of these nations did not have the money to pay for this "good life," they charged everything at high interest rates. They now have big debts and an inability to pay them off.

Instead of being careful lenders, our banks, the government and international credit agencies always work things out. Loans are "turned over" and the interest due paid out of additional lending or added to the balance (both procedures amounting to the same thing).

Our bankers, very conservative when it comes to lending to small businessmen and farmers, with careful review of operations and collateral assets, pursuing aggressively those debtors who default, are not so careful in their international lending. They assume that these big loans owed by nations will always be paid off as a matter of pride and honor.

Some counties owe much more than they will ever be able to repay. Brazil's debt is ninety billion dollars. Mexico's debt is more than eighty five billion dollars. Both nations, as examples, would not be able to sustain a national austerity program to repay their debt.

When the bankers concluded that many of these debtor nations had been living beyond their means based on this credit, and got concerned, the situation becomes more interesting. These governments, spoiled by credit and a "good life" based on borrowed money, now find that their citizens no longer are concerned with honor and pride, they want to continue the "good life." These citizens threatened to overthrow any government that wants to repay debt by cutting back the standard of living.

Recently an Argentine banker was sent out of the country to work out a rescheduling (delay in payment) of Argentine debt. When he returned home, he was arrested because the lenders required that repayment start, even if it is somewhat delayed. No one wants to endure the suffering that will come with living cheaper and giving up even a part of the "good life."

Typically, in making loans in the United States to you and me, bankers check a customer's debt, the purpose of the loan, and where the money is coming from to pay off the loan. If the loan is used for new plants and equipment, the banker checks to see if there will be adequate income from this new capital investment to pay off the loan. If the loan is used for a purpose that does not produce income, the banker wants assurance that some source does exist that will pay off the loan.

For reasons known only to our large international bankers, there has been a double standard. While tough in their domestic lending practices, many of our largest banks and institutions have made foreign loans with no understanding or concern, apparently, about the use of the funds or their repayment. When these bankers finally recognized their foreign loans were in trouble and might not be repaid, they started an intense campaign to get more money from an empty U.S. treasury for the International Monetary Fund, World Bank and other similar agencies that might delay the inevitable. With a foreign nation who defaults on a debt there is no repossession of assets of bankruptcy sale. There is just a write-off and the recognition of bad debts that will never be collected.

To those who claim that our sales overseas will be hurt by not extending more credit, I say that a sale requires a purchase, delivery and payment. All we have been doing is giving away our goods and services, receiving nothing in return (except our own money, which we have loaned). That isn't selling, it's contributing. If our international sales are really gifts, then I would like to see us direct those gifts here, in the United States, raising the standard of living for all Americans, before I would take on a world charity effort, because charity should begin at home. Those uncollectible foreign loans, which were really gifts, are going to hurt the careless bankers and their shareholders and depositors. It is time to face up to reality, world trade with no real payment is not trade. We must stop kidding ourselves.

That's Straight Talk!

Imagine yourself in a second story loft of a hundred year old building on the main street of an old western town. The street is loaded with bars, restaurants, stores and an old hotel. Just down the road is the only large economically successful operating gold mine in the United States. The rest of the town exists in layers on the sides of the mountains. 1,800 very friendly people call this town home and depend on that gold mine and tourism for their survival.

It's snowing in the Black Hills of South Dakota. In this warm old loft you are with a young former puppeteer, who now serves as chief executive officer of a unique company, Dragons Are Too Seldom. The chief executive officer, her husband, a five-year-old and a brand new baby, Dillon, live in the factory.

Dragons, as it is known in Deadwood, is a company manufacturing hand puppets, Tub Buddies, used by the very young while bathing. The Tub Buddies include Bubbles (the elephant), Squirt (the pig), Sudsy (the dog), Soapy (the bear), Drizzle (the dragon) and Slick (the shark). They are the dream products of two sisters, Claire (the CEO) and Markie Scholz. The packaging has won awards, even though Claire's husband, a full-time member of a graphics design organization, is just a part-time consultant.

Claire discussed starting up Dragons on a "shoe string," the hard work that went into product development, the marketing program and the manufacturing of these puppets, the first in a family of such products. This year Claire projects shipments of more than 60,000 Tub Buddies. She already has orders for more than that quantity for 1984 delivery. Claire and her full-time staffers buy the fabric, cut it into the pattern shapes, and dye (color) the material in washing machines that operate continuously. Originally material cutting was done by hand. Now it is done on a machine that operates multi-shift to increase production to meet demand.

Once the materials have been dyed and cut, the part-time "home" staffers start sewing. When the Tub Buddies are completed and returned, they are checked in by a full-time quality control staff. Only top quality products are packed and shipped. The rest go to a local thrift shop, with many becoming the best "dusters" to be found, according to the shop owner.

As of my visit to Dragons, 91 jobs had been created in an area that needed them. Many of the home sewing machine operators are receiving regular income for the first time in years. The community is excited about Dragons and its hand puppets. It's proud that the label of this small firm, identifying their town as the place of origin for Tub Buddies and Dragons Are Too Seldom, appears on products being distributed in stores from one coast to the other.

Here is an example of free enterprise at work. Claire Scholz and her sister, Markie, work hard to make their dream (a successful business) come true. Their banker understood their commitment and helped. A manufacturer's representative saw the possibilities and has brought in lots of orders. Stores, including the chain toy, grocery and general merchandisers have given these entrepreneurs a chance, and the public is proving that Tub Buddies have a place in our homes.

Dragons was not an overnight success. Other products were tried over the past four years before the Tub Buddies made the big time. There has been considerable sacrifice and lots of risk-taking. Because the public is fickle in its desires, it is even possible that there could be some problems. But I suspect that Dragons' owners have garnered the kind of experience you can not buy. That experience and a desire for success is going to help the Scholz sisters to "make it."

At least, they made the decision to try, something that can only happen in a nation where individuals are free to take a chance and express themselves with new products and new services in the hope of "making it big!" That decision has created 91 new jobs. Regardless of the final ending to this story, in the years ahead, Dragons Are Too Seldom proves that this is still a land of opportunity for those willing to risk and work.

GULLY . . .

Rev. Marvin Arneson was honored on his 80th birthday Sunday, Jan. 15 at the First Lutheran church in Fargo. Hosting the occasion were their three adopted children, Jim Arneson, Grand Forks, Ludmille Anderson, Vancover, Wash. and Mary Beth Ehli, Fargo. There was an interesting article and picture of Jane and Marvin Arneson in last weeks Fargo Forum, "The teamwork of Marvin and Jane." Mrs. Arneson suffered a stroke in 1982 so she has spent a lot of time in hospitals, at St. Luke's, rehabiliation center in Grand Forks and she was at Sister Kenny Institute in Minneapolis. This was quite an adjustment for both of them but she has improved a lot. Pastor Arneson served Gully Trail Parish, Lund, Sandvalley, Oak Grove and Bethany from 1943-1949.

Seminars Are Set On 'Right To Know' Act

Statewide seminars will be held by the Minnesota safety council on the new employee right to know act, which took effect January 1. Developed by the safety council in cooperation with the state department of labor and industry, the seminars are entitled "Employee Right to Know Act and Chemical Handling Safety: the Law, How to Comply, How to Get Results."

Under the right to know act, an employer is required to evaluate the workplace for the existance of hazardous substances and harmful physical agents and to provide training and information to any employee routinely exposed to them. Health care facilities also must be evaluated for infectious agents. Training programs must be completed by July 1 for current employees; new employees are to be trained as hired. In addition, the right to know act requires labeling of hazardous substances and harmful physical agents. After July 1 employees may refuse to work under certain conditions.

Seminars are designed to provide Minnesota companies with instruction on pertinent aspects of the right to know act. Each participant will be furnished with necessary resource materials including the hazardous substances list, right to know standards and complete right to know act as passed by the Minnesota legislature.

According to Robert L. Anderson, president of the Minnesota safety council, it is important for employers to have increased knowledge of chemical hazards and effective training techniques in order to derive accident prevention benefits from the new requirements.

Seminars will be held from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on the following dates: January 20, Happy Chef North restaurant, Mankato; January 24, Casa de Roma restaurant, Duluth; January 26, Kahler Inn, Hibbing; January 31, Holiday Inn South, Rochester; February 2, Red Wing Area Vo Tech, Red Wing; February 7, Holiday Inn, Detroit Lakes; February 9, Holiday Inn, St. Cloud; February 14, Holiday Inn Capitol, 161 St. Anthony Avenue, St. Paul; February 21, Holiday Inn, Willmar; February 23, Holiday Inn, Worthington; February 28, Ramada Inn, 4200 West 78 Street, Bloomington; and March 1, Holiday Inn Capitol, 161 St. Anthony Avenue, St. Paul.

Registration is limited to 50 participants at each seminar. The $50 tuition which includes lunch and materials should be sent to the Minnesota safety council, 555 Wabasha Street, Suite 102, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102.

School Nurse Week And Day Are Proclaimed

To center attention on professional school nurses and health service staffs, January 22-28 has been proclaimed the eighth annual "School Health — A Positive Environment" (SHAPE) week and January 25 as the 12th annual Minnesota school nurse day.

Gov. Rudy Perpich, in a two-part proclamation, says, "We are fully aware of the outstanding contributions made to the well-being of Minnesota children and youth by school nurses as members of the education team" and of their support and enhancement of "the opportunity of all students, including handicapped students, to fully utilize education opportunities.

Theme for the observance is "Healthy Kids Are Better Learners."

The sponsor of SHAPE week and school nurse day is the school nurse organiation of Minnesota (SNOM) which is associated with the Minnesota Education association (MEA).

SHAPE week, explains SNOM president Jean Norrbom, senior school nurse in the Mounds View public schools, helps bring attention to health programs "essential to the welfare of children, which is the reason for our theme."

In his proclamation, Gov. Perpich urges "Minnesotans, community organizations, education agencies and news media to join in this recognition by promoting and encouraging the goals of professional school nurses and their staffs as they continue to contribute to the health and welfare of our communities, state and nation."

Thief River Falls-Bemidji Hockey Games

It'll be a big day Saturday in the Bemidji-Thief River Falls hockey rivalry when the two communities are matched up in nine games that day at the two Thief River Falls arenas.

It starts at the Squirts level (9-10-year-olds) when the three Thief River Falls In-House teams draw Bemidji opponents: Hardees playing at 11:30 a.m. at the old arena; Coke playing at 12-noon at the sports arena; and TG Sporting Goods playing at 1 p.m. at the old arena.

Regular traveling team schedules include the Bantam B contest at 1:30 p.m. at the old arena; Pee-Wee B at 2:30 p.m. at the old arena; Bantam A at 3:15 p.m. at the sports arena; and Pee-Wee A at 4:15 p.m. at the old arena.

That sets the stage for the Lumberjacks vs. Prowlers high school games that night in the sports arena, with the junior varsity contest scheduled for 5:30 p.m. and the varsity game set for 7:30 p.m. when Wendell and Bryan Grand renew their family coaching duel.

They both took over as head coaches for the 1975-76 season. Wendell's Prowlers own a 10-6 edge in the series that began, appropriately enough, with an overtime tie at Bemidji. The Lumberjacks beat the Prowlers 2-1 earlier this year.

Shorthanded NCC Teams Are Winners

Short on numbers, the Northland community college athletic teams nevertheless had a successful weekend in the won-loss column.

A seven-member Northland women's basketball team had a weekend split, losing a narrow 48-47 decision to Itasca, but beating Hibbing 53-49.

Eight-member Northland men's basketball team swept Itasca 82-77 and Hibbing 96-66.

Northland's small hockey roster, reduced even further to 13 skaters after a series of injuries in a Wednesday night loss at the University of Minnesota-Crookston, still had too much manpower for Winnipeg Bible College, sweeping the visitors 13-1 and 7-3 in the sports arena.

All three Northland teams will be playing the numbers game again this week.

Coach Tony Dorn, Jr. will put his hockey team on the ice against rival UMC for the third time this winter tonight (Wednesday) in a 7:30 p.m. Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) game at the sports arena. The Northmen upset the defending state champion Trojans 5-4 to start the year, but last week UMC romped to an easy 13-6 win. The two teams finish their regular season four-game series next Wednesday, Jan. 25, at Crookston.

It'll be a demanding week for the Northmen, who follow up the UMC game with a weekend series at Hibbing, meeting the Cardinals Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday at 1 p.m. Hibbing and UMC represent the top two teams in the six-team MCCC standings. Northland completes the schedule with two-game weekend series at Rainy River Jan. 28-29; here vs. Mesabi Feb. 3-4; and at Rochester Feb. 11-12.

Meanwhile, the Northland basketball teams will be playing doubleheaders this weekend at Mesabi Friday and at Vermilion Saturday. Coach Deb Jacobson's Northwomen play at 6 p.m. Friday and 12-noon Saturday. Coach Chet Engelman's Northmen play at 8 and 2 p.m.

Those games against Northeast Division teams count in Northland's Northwest Division standings. They face their first Northwest Division opponent a week from tonight (Wed., Jan. 25), when the Northmen and Northwomen travel to Fergus Falls.

Miscellaneous

+Rainy River defeated the University of Minnesota-Crookston 6-2 in the first game of a weekend Minnesota Community College Conference hockey series at International Falls, but UMC bounced back to win the second game 6-1 for a 7-3 season record, 5-3 in the MCCC. "We're still good enough to win the league, but we may have already lost too many games," reported UMC coach Jim Clauson as the Trojans trail front-running Hibbing.

+It was a tough weekend for the Crookston high school basketball team as the Pirates lost two one-point games, dropping a surprising 45-44 Friday night overtime decision to Thief River Falls and losing a 48-47 Saturday contest against No. 8-ranked Breckenridge to fall to 4-4 for the year. "It was not the same team playing both nights," Crookston coach Herb Hasz told Lori Mateer of the Crookston Times. "Friday we deserved to lose because we played terrible. But Saturday was different. The loss was hard to take because the kids played very well."

+In a match-up of what may be the best teams in the North and South sub-regions of Region 8AA high school girls basketball last week, Little Falls romped past Bemidji 66-49. The Flyers, ranked No. 2 in the Associated Press poll at the time, ran up a 37-12 halftime lead for their tenth straight win. Bemidji fell to 5-3.

BATTLING FOR POSITION in front of the net, Thief River Falls forward Rick Spong and Warroad defenseman Tommy Persson were involved in a heated shoving match as goalie Scott Foster kept an eye on the puck near the boards during the third period of Tuesday's Section 8 high school hockey game played at the sports arena. The Prowlers edged the Warriors 2-1 in a defensive struggle, improving their season record to 6-5, which includes a current four-game winning streak.

Prowlers Extend Winning Streak With 2-1 Decision Over Warroad

Fourth straight win for the Lincoln high school hockey team was a defensive battle Tuesday as the Prowlers edged Warroad 2-1 in the sports arena to climb above .500 for the first time this winter at 6-5.

A first period goal by Brian Johnston tied it for the Prowlers, who had given up a game-opening power play goal, and a third period goal by Steve Wiskow won it.

"It was a very, very defensive game," confirmed Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "It was very conservative — the score and the shots-on-goal certainly indicate that."

Thief River Falls put 21 shots on net against Warroad sophomore goalie Scott Foster, while Warroad was limited to 18 shots on Thief River Falls junior netminder Steve Solheim.

Only one to get by Solheim came at 5:15 of the first period when the Warriors' Chad Bakke swatted in a power play rebound from Solheim's right side.

But the only Warroad lead of the night lasted just 49 seconds as Johnston gave the crowd a treat with an outstanding move on a game-tying goal at 6:05. The senior defenseman, who is rounding into form after missing most of the first part of the season with injuries, showed strength and speed in getting around a Warroad defenseman, put Foster on the ice and placed a point-blank backhand into the net.

That was the extent of the scoring until Wiskow's game-winning at 4:11 of the third period. After a first period of up-and-down action, the second period was uneventful as defensive play on both sides controlled the tempo. Third period, though, belonged to the Prowlers, who carried the play and missed a couple of excellent scoring opportunities earlier before Wiskow won it with a long slap shot as he crossed the blueline, beating a screened Foster low to the glove side.

Warroad was limited to just three shots-on-goal in the final period, but the Warriors made it interesting when they pulled Foster in favor of an extra attacker in the final minute. It ended, though, when Warroad failed to control a face-off to Solheim's right with eight seconds to play.

"I thought we had a pretty good third period," mentioned Grand, who said that the Prowlers have controlled the third period play in each of the games during their current winning streak. "This was a good game for us to win," he added. "We need to learn how to win the close games."

First-year Warroad head coach Jon Bittner didn't look at the results in the same vein. "We stood around too much," he said. "We stood around and waited for Thief River to take advantage of things. It was really frustrating. One of our biggest games of the year and we played lackidasical."

Thief River Falls will try to continue its winning streak Saturday when Bemidji visits the sports arena for a 7:30 p.m. game.

Sophomore Al Erickson replaced injured Tim Bottem as a wing on a line with freshman Scott Novak at center and senior Mitch Semanko on the other wing last night. Bottem suffered a broken collarbone in Saturday's 7-4 win at Moorhead. The other lines remained intact — Ryan Bakke-Rick Spong-Wiskow; Bob Breiland-Bob Huot-Joe Blankenfeld.

First Period

Scoring — Warroad, Chad Bakke (Dion Hebel, Mark Boucha), 5:15; TRF, Brian Johnston (un.), 6:05.

Penalties — TRF, Ryan Bakke, charging, 4:07; TRF, Joe Blankenfeld, interference, 11:20.

Nordics Defeat Prowlers 42-40

Two high school basketball meetings this year between Thief River Falls and Marshall County Central produced a pair of two-point ball games — a win for each side, including a 42-40 victory for the Nordics Tuesday night in Newfolden.

Thief River Falls won the earlier unscheduled match-up when the Prowlers edged the Nordics 47-45 in the third place game at the Christmas Classic here.

"This one was very much like the first time we played them," said Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland, whose team had its recent offensive production (90-point outbursts in two games last week) cut in half. "Thief River took some things away from us. We don't play our normal offense against them — they won't let us," he explained.

Thief River Falls started with a 10-7 first quarter lead. It was 19-19 at halftime, but Marshall County Central opened up a 29-23 third quarter lead when the Prowlers struggled through a 2-for-14 shooting spell and went the first 5½ minutes of the second half without scoring.

Marshall County Central led by as much as 12 points early in the fourth quarter before Thief River Falls, or rather John Brandt, rallied down the stretch.

Brandt, a 6-1 senior, scored all 17 Thief River Falls fourth quarter points, connecting on nine consecutive free throws and finishing with four straight field goals.

"He just took the ball to the hoop," praised Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "John just took control out there."

But it wasn't enough. Marshall County Central still led by six with 30 seconds left, and Brandt's final basket that closed the gap to 42-40 came with just three seconds to play.

"We played hard, but we didn't play particularly well," offered Hunt. "But the kids deserve credit. They worked hard, and they never gave up."

Brandt finished as the game's high scorer with 21 points. Marshall County Central forward Ken Krohn, a 6-1 senior, was the only Marshall County Central scorer in double figures, getting 14 points.

"I thought defensively we did a good job," said Hunt, "but offensively, we just didn't shoot very well."

Neither team shot well. Marshall County Central charts showed the Prowlers 14-for-28 from the field (29 per cent) and the Nordics 14-for-52 (26 per cent). Thief River Falls was 12-for-17 at the free throw line (71 per cent) and Marshall County Central was 14-for-29 (48 per cent).

Marshall County Central made it tough on itself, explained Ueland, by missing the front end of three 1-and-1 free throw opportunities and turning the ball over on three charging calls after the Nordics had built that 12-point lead.

Still, Ueland was elated with the win over the Class AA school. "We're real happy to beat them," he smiled.

Thief River Falls, now 3-7, faces a tough task Friday when highly-regarded East Grand Forks visits the Lincoln gym. The Green Wave owns a 67-43 win over Marshall County Central this year. The Nordics, 6-3, will host Roseau in a key North Border Conference showdown Friday.

Goodridge Girls Edge Rival Grygla By 50-48

Goodridge edged Grygla 50-48 Monday in a see-saw match-up of area girls high school basketball rivals at Grygla.

It was just the second win in eight outings for the Huskies, while the Eagles fell to 3-8.

Grygla jumped out to a 17-10 first quarter lead, but Goodridge went into halftime with a 25-23 edge and the Huskies had a 38-35 lead heading into the final eight minutes.

There was still some jockeying around on the scoreboard, though, with Grygla, down by nine at one point in the third quarter, building a five-point lead midway through the final period, only to see Goodridge regain the lead in the final minute of play.

Grygla still had a shot at a tie, though, when the Eagles rebounded a missed Goodridge free throw with nine seconds to play. But Kathy Foss' shot from near the free throw line at the end was off-target.

"It's hard to lose — the girls took it hard," explained Grygla coach Mike Gast, "but I'm not disappointed. I thought the girls played pretty well. I was happy with the improvement they made."
